Judge Gives Miss Coplon 40 Months To 10 Years

(Partial text of Judge Reeves' statement, Page 2.)

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

With a reference to American history's most notorious traitor — Benedict Arnold—Judge Albert L. Reeves yesterday sentenced Judith Coplon to the maximum imprisonment possible under law on each count. Her two terms, however, were made to run concurrently.

"If I were to spend a long time on the bench attempting to illustrate a case that the Congress had in mind (when it wrote the espionage law), I couldn't imagine a more extreme case, except that she is a woman," the aging jurist said in a long statement that well may be historic.

'They Want to Break Me'

Perhaps equally to be remembered in the annals of this Republic was a flaming and defiant statement made by the Government girl, convicted as a spy for Russia, before her sentencing.

"I understand I can plead for mercy—that I will not do, because I am innocent," her voice rang through District Court.

"They may gloat in the glory of their Pyrrhic and hollow victory. They want to break me. They will never break me! They are trying to make me hysterical. They will never make me hysterical! They are the hysterical ones. They want the people to be hysterical!"

Never, it may be, was greater tribute paid the 28-year-old Barnard College honor graduate than that from her judge before he meted out a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison.

"A Very Brilliant Mind"

"She is highly intelligent," he said. "Unusually intelligent. I am going to go further and say that she has a very brilliant mind."

He mentioned that Benedict Arnold was "one of the bravest men in the Revolutionary War, one of the most loved of all our soldiers" before he betrayed his country. Then he said of the Department of Justice girl sitting stonily before him:

"Here is a young woman with infinite prospects, a great future before her. Yet, what prompted her to do that . . ."

The white-haired jurist, his face fatefully solemn, paused and looked down from the bench at the small figure at the defense table, as if searching for an answer in her face. The masked eyes looked back at him, the set expression varied not a flicker.

"What prompted her to do that, I do not know," the jurist, his wrinkled face drawn and heavy, said, turning back. "But she undertook to betray her country."

When Judge Reeves had finished, he looked again at the convicted girl.

"She may rise," he said.

"Let it be the judgment and sentence of the law . . ." the awesome words came.

The story that Judith Coplon says began in front of a cubist painting in a New York museum where she met Valentin Gubitchev, Russian U. N. engineer, had ended, at least for the time being, with the Department of Justice girl sentenced as a spy.

Palmer Rebuked

Formally Judge Reeves sentenced her to "40 months to 10 years" in prison under a law requiring a jurist to state the minimum sentence. The effect would have been the same had the "40 months" been eliminated, since after that time Miss Coplon is eligible to apply for a parole anyhow.

But, stating the minimum for both, he sentenced her to the maximum period on both counts of the indictment. The 10-year sentence was three years short of the maximum she could have got, since the

How extensive will today's economic recession be? Need we fear anything like the slump of the early 30s? For the answer to that, business columnist J. A. 3 Highways Urged Here For Defense

Plans for three national defense super-highways to criss-cross the District, at a cost of more than 180 million dollars, have been put before Congress by the Public Roads Admnistration, it was disclosed yesterday.

The proposed expressways would be outside of and in addition to present or planned Federal aid highways, but would connect with all the existing or planned ones, according to L. M. Hedgecock, of the District Highway Department. The proposed roads would measure 16.6 miles.

No definite routes have been outlined yet, Hedgecock said, but the proposal is for the routes to go from north to south, east to west, and also to cross at an angle.

The cost estimates were submitted by the District Highway Department purely on known costs of the type of highways contemplated in urban areas like the District, including condemnation of property for rights of way and actual building costs.

As outlined by the Public Roads Administration in its request to the District for estimates, the roads would be huge, dual-lane expressways like the one proposed for the new Washington - Baltimore boulevard, Hedgecock said.

"They might coincide in routing with some existing roads or streets," he said, "but except for directions, there is nothing definite yet on their locations.

"All the money for them would

Clark Voices Confidence In FBI, Hoover

Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday expressed complete confidence in the FBI and Director J. Edgar Hoover and made it clear there would be no change in FBI investigative methods as a result of the Judith Coplon espionage trial.

A few hours after Miss Coplon had been sentenced in court here, the Attorney General issued a statement saying that while the trial was in progress it had been impossible for him to speak publicly about the clamor raised when the defense forced introduction of confidential data slips found in Miss Coplon's pocketbook when she was arrested.

Introduction of the slips led to the reading of detailed FBI investigative reports on which the data slips were based.

Claimed Threat to Security

Prosecutors tried to keep the detailed reports secret, claiming that their publication would be a threat to national security. They even tried to withhold a dozen of the data slips themselves, on the same ground.

The defense, however, forced the introduction of the reports, which contained the names of numerous persons not connected with the trial.

There was a chorus of denial and protest from the persons named in the reports. Many of them were accused by unidentified informants of having subversive associations. There was nothing in the evidence to show what if any part of the reports the FBI believes.

Clark took note that the disclosure that such investigative reports were in the FBI files had resulted "in some clamor for an investigation of the FBI."

Asserting that some of the charges leveled against the bureau have been "intemperate and ill-advised," the Attorney General said "an inquiry is not justified or necessary."

Clark Quotes Jackson

Clark said:

"I regret that it became necessary, outside of the question of national security, for the reports to be admitted as evidence.

"I say this for the reason so aptly stated by Justice Jackson, then Attorney General, in his opinion of April 30, 1941, to the chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, in declining to furnish the committee with certain reports of the FBI:

" 'Disclosure of information contained in the reports might also be the grossest kind of injustice to innocent individuals. Investigative reports include leads and suspicions, and sometimes even the statements of malicious and misinformed people. Even though later and more complete reports exonerate the individuals, the use of particular or selected reports might constitute the grossest injustice, and we all know that a correction never catches up with an accusation.' "

His statement added:

"Before I concluded to permit the introduction of these reports, as is always my policy, I discussed the problem with Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. We both realized the importance of maintaining the department's long established policy of protecting FBI reports. Hoover agreed that certain reports could be introduced

Hiss Trial Bars Woman As Witness

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, July 1.—Mrs. Hede Massing, former wife of fugitive Communist Gearhart Eisler, today was blocked from appearing as a prosecution witness in the perjury trial of Alger Hiss.

Federal Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, without publicly announcing his reasons, ruled she could not appear as a collateral witness for rebuttal, as the Hiss trial neared its closing stages.

Legal arguments over her appearance delayed the trial for an hour and three-quarters as Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy and Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker met privately with the judge. Three witnesses then appeared for brief testimony before the court recessed over the holiday weekend.

The Government hoped to use Mrs. Massing's testimony to substantiate Whittaker Chambers' charges that Hiss was a Communist in 1938 when he is accused of passing State Department documents to Chambers for a Russian spy ring.

Hiss Denied Acquaintance

In cross-examination here Tuesday, Hiss denied he knew a woman "named Hede Massing, Gumperz or Gumpertz." He was asked if he ever had a talk with her "in the home of Noel Field, in which she complained about you trying to get Noel Field into your (Communist underground) apparatus."

"No such conversation ever occurred," replied Hiss, who said he had known Field, another former State Department employe also described by Chambers as a member of the Communist underground.

Mrs. Massing, described as the wife of Paul Massing, a lecturer on sociology at Rutgers University and the first wife of Eisler, has previously been questioned about Communist activities by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

When it was disclosed on Tuesday that she would be summoned here by the prosecution, Stryker noted he would vigorously object to her appearance, declaring, "She has no relation whatsoever to this case."

Presumably, the reason for barring her testimony is that the legal issue here is not whether Hiss was or was not a Communist or underground worker, but whether he perjured himself when he told a Federal grand jury on December 15 that he had not seen Chambers since January 1, 1937 and had not given him secret documents in early 1938.

Judge Kaufman told the jury that, ". . . There has been a long conference about the testimony of one Hede Massing.

"The court has ruled that her testimony is not admissible. She will not be called as a witness."

While her appearance was being debated, Mrs. Massing, a tall, dark-complexioned woman with glasses, wearing a black dress and light hat, waited in the witness room, accompanied by an FBI agent.

Later she passed through the corridor where Mr. and Mrs. Hiss were talking to friends, and Hiss seemed to glance in her direction, but there was no indication whether they knew each other.

Another person proposed as a prosecution rebuttal witness also

Employment Mark for 1949 Set In June

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Seemingly contradictory statistics marked the Census Bureau's report on the Nation's employment in June, made public yesterday.

1. The report stated that total employment reached 59,619,000 in June—almost a million more than in May, and the highest number in any month this year.

2. At the same time unemployment reached 3,778,000—the highest since February, 1942, and 489,000 more than in May.

The increase in the unemployed—those seeking work unsuccessfully—was reported largely due to the June closing of schools and colleges. This brought an influx into the labor market of about 1¼ million students, and thousands of teachers out of work temporarily.

The report indicated that this year's high school and college graduates are having a harder time finding jobs than June graduates have had in 10 years.

Last night Robert C. Goodwin, director of the Bureau of Employment Security, reported a drop in June in the number of insured workers applying for unemployment insurance.

This drop was both in new applicants for unemployment insurance, and in those who have been on the unemployment insurance rolls.

The average weekly number of persons filing initial claims for unemployment insurance in June

'No Violence,' Says Plea to Pro-Catholics

Rome, July 1 (NYHT).—The Vatican in effect appealed to the reported pro-Catholic fighters of Czechoslovakia today to discontinue their violence.

An editorial in L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican's unofficial daily newspaper, said the church is flanked by truth, justice, the right, the moral force of the faith of its sons, and the invincible aid of God." It implied that no physical weapons were necessary or desirable.

The editorial expressed the fear the reported fighting may serve as an excuse for more severe measures against the clergy. The editorial implied clearly that no central authorities of the Catholic Church had ordered or wished any such reaction.

Verolino Is Accused Of Grave Interference

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 1 (U.P.).—The foreign ministry today charged the Vatican's representative in Prague, Msgr. Gennaro Verolino, with "grave interference in the internal affairs" of Czechoslovakia.

The official press agency said the charge was included in the foreign ministry's rejection of Verolino's protest against "undiplomatic" treatment given him by police during his tour of dominantly Catholic Slovakia.

The Czech reply said his "grave interference" consisted of making the five-day trip through the prov-

Defense Rests Case

'Something Swept Over Me,' Scott Says of Girl's Slaying

Roanoke, Va., July 1 (U.P.).—Lee Scott said in a choking voice today that "something swept over me" when Dana Marie Weaver slurred his friend. So he hit her with a bottle, he said, then held the clawing, kicking girl by the throat until "she didn't move."

But he loudly denied at his murder trial that he made sexual advances toward the beautiful blond girl who was slain in an Episcopal Church parish house May 8.

[The Associated Press reported that counsel agreed the case would be ready for the jury early tomorrow afternoon. Court adjourned today at 5 p. m. to reconvene at 9 a. m., after Judge Dirk A. Kuyk decided against another night session.]

The defense pinned its hopes of escaping a first-degree murder verdict by letting Scott tell his own story to a jury in Judge Kuyk's Hustings (Municipal) Court.

As he finished his halting testimony, protesting that "I wouldn't have hurt her for the world," the defense rested its case.

Scott, adroitly defended by T. Warren Messick, hopes to get off with a manslaughter conviction. He said he had only a hazy memory of the actual killing, which Messick called "one of the most pitiable tragedies that ever happened."

But the prosecution force, headed by Commonwealth's Attorney C. E. Cuddy, pressed for a conviction of "wilful, deliberate and premeditated murder." Cuddy pounded away at a sex motive and in cross-examining Scott today he waved photographs of the dead girl showing her tight skirt and slip ruffled up around her waist.

"I never bothered her skirt," Scott asserted, regaining some of the composure that had deserted him for the first time when he described the slaying.

"How on earth did her clothes get like that?" Cuddy thundered, again waving the picture at the muscular, 16-year-old defendant.

Scott said the girl's clothing may have become disarrayed during the struggle. He had no explanation for bruises on the girl's upper thigh.

Cuddy dropped the picture in Scott's lap and the defendant stared at it moodily.

Government $1.8 Billion In Red In '49

The Treasury announced yesterday that the Government ended up $1,811,440,047.68 in the red for the fiscal year 1949 ended Thursday night.

This was three times greater than the deficit forecast in President Truman's budget last January.

The figures released by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder showed spending jumped to a peacetime record of $40,057,107,857.79, including all the money put out for foreign aid programs.

Treasury receipts in the same period dropped to the lowest in five years—$38,245,667,810.11.

The unexpectedly large deficit—it even exceeded the $1,500,000,000 estimated by Senator Byrd (D., Va.), economy advocate—reflected increased spending and a decline in revenues due to lower taxes and the first effects of a slower rate of business activity.

Various authorities, including Senator Byrd, have predicted a deficit of from three billion dollars to five billion dollars for fiscal 1950 beginning yesterday. The President's budget last January estimated it at 873 million dollars based on present taxes.

President Truman asked Congress last January to raise taxes another four billion dollars to avoid deficit spending, but Congress seems in a mood to do nothing about it. Indeed, the Senate Finance Committee voted Thursday to cut back excise taxes by several hundred millions, but there appears little chance for it to pass this session.

Mr. Truman yesterday took a 45-minute look into the fiscal future a year away in a conference with top-ranking aides and Cabinet officers.

One man who attended said the

New Record Predicted In Holiday Traveling

Union Station Alone Estimates 150,000; Roads, Buses, Trains All Taxed to Limit

Vacation In the Park

FOR THOSE who are staying in town for the Fourth, Rock Creek Park offers multiple recreation possibilities. First of a series of three stories about things to do for the stay-at-homes. Page 4.

Transportation Jammed

An estimated 150,000 Washingtonians headed out of town via Union Station yesterday as the weatherman came up with a pleasant prediction for the Fourth of July weekend here.

"Fair weather ahead," he said, with little or no rain in sight. The thermometer will hit the lower 80s today, the mid-80s Sunday, and the upper 80s Monday. His only discomfiting note: increasing humidity is expected.

Residents of greater Washington, holiday-bound, swarmed out of town in a mass exodus that may set a record, transportation officials reported.

At Union Station, 21 extra sections rolled away from the city. A spokesman for the terminal manager's office was the authority for the 150,000 estimate. In all, 39 ticket offices were open for business—nearly double the usual number.

Airlines Taxed to Limit

Airlines reported their capacities were taxed to the limit. American Airlines said its traffic was up 15 per cent over last Fourth of July; Capital planned to lift 19 extra sections yesterday and today. United said every piece of equipment that could fly was airborne.

Bus-wise, National Trailways figured on running 40 extra sections through midnight last night. Greyhound said it would put every bus available on the road.

The American Automobile Association noted travel by auto was up about 20 per cent over last year's Fourth, and predicted this holiday weekend will set a record. Travel requests kept its phones jammed all day.

Peak exodus was reached late yesterday afternoon, transportation officials reported, but an above-normal outgo is expected through today. They said the holiday migration began as early as last Tuesday.

CSC Has No Estimate

Of the 216,000 Federal employes here, the Civil Service Commission could furnish no estimate as to how many would spend the holiday out of town. No Government offices were believed to have closed early but many Federal workers undoubtedly took a few hours' annual leave to get away early, a commission spokesman said.

District employes, meanwhile, whether spending the Fourth here or elsewhere, were paid yesterday to have some cash for the holiday. Normally, some 7000 would have received their checks Tuesday.

Unless extraordinary caution is observed, Nation-wide automobile accidents will claim 290 lives over the holiday, the National Safety Council predicted. Drownings, airplane crashes, fireworks and miscellaneous accidents will cost another 300 or more lives, it said.

Highlight of Fourth of July celebrations here will be the festivities Monday evening at the Monument Grounds. A tableau depicting the drafting of the Declaration of Independence and a giant fireworks display will be featured.

Where to Buy Tickets

Tickets for the celebration, at $1 for adults and 60 cents for children, are on sale at:

The American Automobile Association, Willard Hotel; D. C. Information Center in the Evening Star building lobby, and at Peoples Drug Stores at 5500 Connecticut ave. nw., 7820 Eastern ave. nw., 661 Pennsylvania ave. se. and 3521 12th st. ne.

Today the following activities commemorating American independence are slated:

Public inspection of four Navy vessels at the Naval Gun Factory. The ships may be visited from 1 to 4:30 p. m. today, Sunday and Monday.

The United States Air Force Band will give a concert this evening at the Tidal Basin, from the steps of the Jefferson Monument.

Greenbelt, Md., starts its three-day celebration at 10 a. m. today with a swimming and diving meet. Athletic and other events will follow throughout the day.

Oddly Garbed Woman Found Slain in Rockies

Helena, Mont., July 1 (AP).—The body of a fantastically clothed woman has been found along a highway in rugged mountain country south of here. Her head had been battered.

The woman wore men's outer clothing—but several women's undergarments, including 11 slips and six pairs of panties. She also wore a woman's garter belt, men's garters, two men's shirts and overalls. She was about 38 to 40 years old, weighed about 110 pounds and had brownish red hair.

Former Cop Turned Cabbie Nabs Suspects

Anthony J. Costello is a man with talent. Nobody can deny that.

He sings, does impersonations and manages a nice handspring.

But two years ago, police brass decided he had little talent for police work. He sadly put aside his police blues and took to driving a cab.

Costello, who is 31, lives at 3912 5th st. nw., and does a take-off on Al Jolson to a Mammy's turn, showed yesterday the police instinct never dies.

He put the finger on two passengers and sure enough they were carrying 27 stolen Government checks. They're in District Jail now.

Costello is remembered fondly by one police veteran as a lad who used to do nimble handsprings on his beat. And when his feet hurt him—heck, he'd take off his shoes. And there never was a funnier guy at a party.

But things come and go. And Costello, who became a policeman on February 10, 1942, became a former policeman on February 10, 1947.

He says he was asked to leave the police force because of inefficiency but was never given a trial board hearing.

So . . . hacking is a living, and yesterday at 12:30 a. m. Costello picked up two men at Rhode Island ave. and Fenton st. ne. They wanted to go to a shopping area in Virginia on the Columbia Pike.

Costello addressed one of the men, who was wearing a diamond ring. "You guys must be making plenty of dough. And I have to drive a cab."

"Oh, we're in all kinds of business," was the mysterious answer.

Costello heard dim mutterings between the two men and began to wonder if maybe he wasn't due to be held up.

"Gotta get gas," he explained as he swung into a filling station at 2d st. and Constitution ave. nw. He made a bee-line for the telephone and called police.

Two policemen responded and ordered the passengers out of the cab with drawn revolvers. A search brought to light the Government checks, some of them for as much as $108.

At police headquarters, it was remembered that the postal inspectors the day before had reported a mail bag rifled at S. Capitol and Danbury sts. and 50 Government checks stolen.

The men, identified as Martin M. Ballard, 28, and Robert L. Johnson, 29, both of 1233 E st. se., were charged with stealing from a Government mail bag. United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence held them for further hearing July 14 and they were committed to District Jail in lieu of $1500 bond each.

Opposing Sides Make Peace

Interior and Recreation Board Compromise on Segregation

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Substantial agreement on a formula for ending all the differences between the Interior Department and the D. C. Recreation Board was reached here yesterday.

The agreement, which must be ratified by the Recreation Board, is expected to give the board control of all public recreation facilities in Washington, including swimming pools and golf courses. The board also will be given clear title to disputed playground areas. In exchange, the Recreation Board would furnish Interior with assurance that it will work toward the eventual elimination of segregation.

First hints of the meeting of minds came yesterday after a conference between Interior heads, Recreation Board Chairman Harry S. Wender and the District Commissioners.

"We have reached a substantial agreement which I hope the board will accept," Wender announced. "I can't give details until it is presented to the board." Wender scheduled a meeting of the board's by-laws committee for 9 a. m. Tuesday. Proposals for by-law changes must be submitted seven days before the next stated board meeting. The board meets July 12.

The board recently announced a policy of making "every possible and realistic effort toward the removal of racial segregration in public recreation in such sequence and at such rate of progression as may be consistent with the public interest, public order and effective administration," but left intact its 1945 by-law requiring segregation of most facilities.

If the still-undisclosed formula is accepted by the Recreation Board, it will take over control of nine golf courses, about 80 tennis courts, six swimming pools now under GSI contract, and city-wide recreation facilities in East and West Potomac Park, the Ellipse, Anacostia and Rock Creek Parks.

Last year, Interior Solicitor Mastin G. White issued an opinion in which he claimed 62 Recreation Department playground properties

Coplon Trial Judge Visits White House

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves, 75-year-old jurist in the Judith Coplon case, called on President Truman at the White House yesterday.

He and Mr. Truman, it turned out, had known each other in Kansas City for 35 years and were good friends despite political differences and some other things.

Judge Reeves, a Republican appointed to the Federal bench by President Harding, attracted Nation-wide attention in 1936 when he charged a Federal grand jury to investigate election frauds by the Pendergast organization.

Discuss Coplon Case

Mr. Truman gave him a cordial welcome yesterday and took him out to the rose garden behind his office. They talked about the Coplon case but only briefly. Most of the conversation had to do with "old times" and Missouri political history.

Judge Reeves, talking to White House reporters on his way out, quoted Mr. Truman as saying he was glad the trial was over and that he, Reeves, was free of the pressure and strain.

The white-haired jurist, who was sent here to help with the overloaded docket in District Court, said that when the Coplon trial began he thought it would last no longer than a week. Actually it took 10 weeks.

He said it shouldn't have lasted more than a week. A lot of time was wasted on cross-examination, he said, that didn't bring out any really worth-while information.

Judge Reeves explained that when he came here from Kansas City to help out, it was understood he was to remain for four weeks—tha is, until May 21. However, under the law, he had to hold jurisdiction over the Coplon case until it had been carried to a conclusion.

Leaves for Missouri

One of the stories he and President Truman talked about had to do with John S. Phelps, one-time Governor of Missouri. He was what was known as a Union Democrat and was one of two men considered for the Vice Presidency as a running mate for Abraham Lincoln.

The other was Andrew Johnson of Tennessee. The latter was chosen and succeeded to the Presidency when Lincoln was assassinated.

Miss Coplon Is Sentenced

separate sentences on the two counts were made to run concurrently.

The jurist recommended that Miss Coplon serve her sentence at the Women's Reformatory at Alderson, W. Va.

Judge Reeves' statement from the bench included a startling crackdown on Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer, whose tactics through the 10 weeks of the trial in the patient jurist's court have prompted wide criticism.

"Abused Court's Comity"

"I question whether the courtesy and comity of this court ought not to be withdrawn from him," he said, "so he never again be permitted to appear in a case, either civil or criminal, in this jurisdiction. Because he has abused the comity and courtesy of the court."

Attorney Palmer continued to munch hard on his habitual Lifesaver as he looked at the judge.

Miss Coplon spent 3 hours and 10 minutes in jail yesterday while she waited for Palmer to raise $20,000 bond. The Government had asked for $100,000, amid suggestions from the prosecution Miss Coplon might attempt to flee the country.

Her masked, set expression did not change, the dark eyes never moistened in sorrow, as the massive marshal took her across the lawn and into her cellblock.

Leaves for New York

There she ate an egg and a corned beef sandwich, drank two glasses of milk. At 3:05 p. m. she walked out. At 5:26 she was in a plane and headed for New York, where she faces another charge of conspiracy to commit espionage, and a possible 35-year sentence in addition to the one here.

Due for trial in New York, too, is the Russian Gubitchev, with whom she was arrested by FBI agents March 4 in New York, her purse "literally bulging" with confidential FBI documents, in the words of Judge Reeves.

Before leaving with her, Palmer filed notice of appeal from the judgment here.

A clock nearby had just pealed 10 when Miss Coplon arrived at District Court yesterday morning to find how many years she would have to serve in prison for having stolen the Nation's secrets to pass along to Russia, as she was convicted.

She was a picture of black under the overcast sky. She wore a black suit and black pumps and carried a black brief case. Her brunette curls bounced on her neck as she walked rapidly across the carbon-dirty walk. Her face was drawn somewhat, but that was all.

Her feelings and thoughts she held eternally to herself, and with the brief case she almost might have been a young woman lawyer on her way to try a serious case—not a girl who the day before had been spelled out by a jury as a Soviet espionage agent.

With the same rapid strides, of a girl with a job to do and in a hurry to get there and do it, she walked into the filled courtroom and took her place at the defense table.

She sat curling her hair around her fingers and looking, as if at a specimen of something or other, at the giant-figured marshal who sat by the judge's bench and who later was to take her to a cell.

Another marshal came over and handed her a telegram. She opened it, read it, and put the yellow paper back in is envelope. No change of expression revealed its contents.

Comes Back to Court

Almost borne on the cameras of a dozen photographers, she was to have time to go out for a coke at the drugstore across the street before the sentencing. A flashing bulb punctuated each sip she took.

Then she was back to the court, the judge was there, and her moment had come.

"Have you anything to say before sentence is passed?" Judge Reeves, whose solemn face was never more so, looked down at her from the bench.

"Both of us have something to say," Palmer said.

Palmer, with his voice like the nearest thing to perpetual motion yet invented, said his in a good many words. He said, "No effort was made to prove any fornication or that Shapiro ever slept with the girl or did anything to blacken her up, and the jury which may have certain ideas of morality was put in a position of thinking she had no morals and couldn't love. I told you I couldn't discuss pathology or physiology."

"May I Present Miss Coplon"

All this was in reference to the prosecution question which burst like the impact of rockets against Miss Coplon's defense that she was seeing Gubitchev, not as a spy, but as a sweetheart in a kissless romance.

The prosecution had established that she spent nights in hotel rooms with H. P. Shapiro, Justice Department attorney, about the time of her alleged love for the Soviet man.

Palmer, not by any means expended, but pausing temporarily, introduced the 5-foot, 100-pound girl—unnecessarily, it would seem, there surely being no doubt in the mind of anyone by this time on who the figure at the defense table was.

"May I present Miss Coplon to the court," he said, his arm describing a wide arc.

The girl who not many hours before had been only a defendant, but now a convicted spy, stood easily to her feet.

Asks Judge a Question

It was the moment of all moments of the many words that had come from her in court.

Her fluency had been an incredible thing. From the witness stand, her hands moving in gestures equally fluent, she had given detailed, 10-minute explanations of everything from her Department of Justice work as a political analyst to why she saw Gubitchev in New York—speaking without the slightest quaver or hesitation.

But never had so much scorn, fluent scorn, ridden in her voice as she arose and began to speak in the minutes before she heard her sentence.

"Your Honor," she said, "I understand now that I can plead for mercy."

Judge Reeves leaned over the bench. "I didn't understand you."

"I am sorry. I said, I understand that I can plead for mercy."

"I Am Innocent"

"You have a right to do that," Judge Reeves said, nodding his head.

"That I will not do," Miss Coplon's voice bit down, "because, to me, pleading for mercy would mean an admission of guilt. And I have said from the very beginning, and I say it now, and I said it under oath from that stand, that I am innocent."

Dramatically she paused and her body turned slightly, her head completely, toward her two prosecutors sitting 4 feet from her—John M. Kelley, jr., and Raymond P. Whearty, the latter once her boss in the Justice Department.

As her body turned and she addressed them directly, one could then, from the press table, see full on into her eyes, those dark, narrow eyes with their clear outlines suggesting the eyes of women in Egyptian tomb wall-paintings.

Hate Shown in Eyes

It was hate, startling hate, that flowed out, like a black river jetting into the eyes of the prosecutors who laid before the jury the evidence that convicted her as a spy . . . hate, never the hate of hysteria, but hate contained and controlled, for all its passion and intensity.

Her voice smashed in crescendo against the prosecutors she could almost reach out and touch:

"I am innocent before all the Wheartys and all the Kelleys and all the Government, whatever they want to do against me! And they may gloat in the glory of their Pyrrhic and hollow victory!"

This well-read girl had reached into her memory for a striking phrase: A "Pyrrhic victory" is one "gained at too great cost—so called in allusion to the exclamation of Pyrrhus, King of Epirus, after his defeat of the Romans in 279 B. C., in gaining which he lost a large part of his army: 'One more such victory over the Romans, and we are utterly undone,'"

Palmer Corrects Her Error

"Now I understand they are askion had asked: '$100,000."

Palmer instantly corrected the slip about the bond the prosecution had asked: $100,000."

"One hundred thousand dollars," Miss Coplon flared with the amount. "In New York they asked for $50,000, after we raised the $20,000 that the judge agreed upon."

Her voice, fluent, hard, bitter, flamed on:

"They have done everything to prevent me from meeting with my lawyer. They know I am a person of limited means. They have made some remarks on that. But they know I am a person of limited means. I can never make $100,000 bond."

She then rose, her eyes at their blackest, to her highest pitch of scorn and defiance:

"They want to keep me in jail. They want to break me. They will never break me!"

She went on:

"The newspapers wanted me to break. When I was on the stand here, at the very end of his cross-examination, Mr. Kelley asked me who was in this conspiracy which I believed to be underfoot to frame me. And I told him. And I told him in the deepest indignation which I knew. But the newspapers said that I was hysterical.

"I wasn't hysterical then. Your Honor knows I wasn't. I am not hysterical now, when I say I do not think I got a fair trial."

She let go then with all her long dammed-up feelings about the city of Washington.

"I want to go to New York. I hope I can get a fair trial there. Especially as I will be out of this whole atmosphere of this loyalty-oath-ridden town."

"I Do Not Think It Fair"

Her eyes held now to those of the judge.

"I do not think it fair to keep me in jail on $100,000 bond, where I would have no way of consulting with my lawyer, where I would have no way to prepare for this case. They are just trying to do what they did before."

Again that utter defiance dominated in her voice as her eyes flashed back on her prosecutors:

"They are trying to make me hysterical. They will never make me hysterical. They are the hysterical ones! They want the people to be hysterical!"

As she waited a moment, as if at an end, Judge Reeves waited with her.

"Is that all?" he asked then, in a voice which was merely inquiring.

Miss Coplon's voice rose quickly again:

"That is all. I mean, I can keep on, I can say the same things. I have said all this before. But this is something new now, this $100,000. I guess it isn't new. It is just the same sort of tactics, the same sort of things they have been saying all the time throughout this case."

She turned again on Kelley, her neatly built figure whirling. The district attorney, whose face reminds one of nothing so much as those busts of the Caesars, sat impassively as the words from the girl he had successfully prosecuted tumbled on him.

"The same impassioned, filthy sort of way they have been conducting this case, the horrible way—and I look right into Mr. Kelley's eyes!

"He objected to that!" she rushed on. "He told me to look at the jury. I wanted to look at him! If I looked at the jury, they would say I was looking to the jury for sympathy."

As a savage-voiced peroration, the four words burst out:

Judge Opens Statement

"I don't want sympathy!"

Again Judges Reeves waited: "Is that all?" he asked again, the same inquiring, gentle voice.

Miss Coplon sat down, and it was all.

Judge Reeves looked at the prosecutor, to whom most of these verbal body-blows had been directed.

"Has the Government any reply to make?"

Kelley said one word: "No."

Judge Reeves then started into that long, vitally significant statement which preceded his sentence.

He had some difficulty getting it under way due to action of a defense attorney who chose, fantastically enough, to interrupt even at this point.

"I suppose in view of the statements that have been made here," the jurist began, "it is proper for me to make some statement in the nature of review of the evidence in the case."

But when Judge Reeves had got just this far in his review, Palmer cut him off:

"If Your Honor does that, may I, with due deference to the court, in view of the fact that Your Honor is the last word so far as the world is concerned—may I reply if there is any necessity for that?"

The usually patient voice of the Missouri jurist sharpened at the interruption.

"No, you may not. You have a right, and you understand the procedure, to say what you have said. And you have said more than was necessary. But now, when I make my statement, before sentence, you must not undertake to reply to what I say."

From then, Judge Reeves at last continued uninterrupted his statement reviewing the evidence before he pronounced sentence.

When he had finished sentencing Miss Coplon, Judge Reeves turned to the matter of bond for her.

Kelley said, "The Government requests that the defendant be held under $100,000 bond."

Judge Reeves said he could not grant the Government's request. But neither, he said, would it be well that the bond after her conviction be no more than before a jury found her guilty.

So he doubled the bond, setting it at $20,000.

"In other words she's to go to jail now!" Palmer rasped.

That was what it meant. The $10,000 was still on hand, available, but the new bond meant Palmer had to raise it from a bondsman.

Jail Sentence Upheld Against 'Red' Editor

New York, July 1 (AP).—The United States Court of Appeals upheld today a 30-day jail sentence imposed on John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker Communist newspaper, for contempt of court.

Gates is one of 11 Communist leaders on trial for conspiracy to advocate forcible overthrow of the United States Government.

Presiding Judge Harold R. Medina jailed him after Gates refused on the witness stand to name three persons who helped him prepare a pamphlet entitled "Who Ruptured Our Duck?"

Sustaining Medina's action, the three-judge Appeals Court said Gates "waived his privilege of immunity"—that is, put himself in a position where he had to answer questions—when he "voluntarily offered the pamphlet in evidence.

Part of Reeves' Statement in Coplon Case

The following is part of Judge Albert L. Reeves' statement yesterday in connection with the sentencing of Judith Coplon to prison as a spy. His introductory remarks reviewed how the Government became suspicious of Miss Coplon—"properly so,"—how she was shadowed and found to be meeting a Russian furtively, and how she was arrested with the Russian and while in possession of Government secrets. He then said:

"Now then, we are coming down to the sentence it is my duty to impose; and, of course, I must ask the audience not to express any approval or disapproval of the sentence that might be imposed here.

"This girl is charged with a serious offense. She violated a high trust. I must accept the jury's verdict as correct. We are all bound by that verdict. It might be that it would be within my power to set it aside. I see no reason why I should do that. For purposes of the sentence, the jury's is correct; this girl is guilty; the jury said that, 12 citizens, who sat here for two months and a half. They said this girl was guilty of the charge against her.

"Let's see the significance of that guilt. She was in a high confidential position; had indicated herself worthy of the confidence of the department. She betrayed that confidence, according to the verdict of the jury. She was ready, according to the verdict of the jury—she was attempting to betray her country, although she had taken a loyalty oath. She understood the solicitude of the Government concerning all the employes of the Government, the importance of loyalty oaths; she understood all that.

"She was attempting, according to the verdict of the jury, to give aid and comfort to the enemies of the country, and thus betray the country.

"Now, I say, comparisons are odious; and I don't want to make comparisons; and I am not comparing her with some of the characters I am going to mention; but I should call attention to the fact that one of the great soldiers of America, who betrayed his country, attempted to do so—it was Benedict Arnold—was one of the bravest men who fought in the Revolutionary War, one of the most loved of all our soldiers.

"At Saratoga—I think it was—where he took summary command of his old regiment, he was cheered by his regiment because they were losing the battle; Benedict Arnold rode to the front and won the Battle of Saratoga, where many of our Revolutionary fathers were killed. He was a brave, fearless soldier. Yet, he turned aside; and today his name is anathema.

The Verdict of the Jury

"I mention that. I could mention other great characters who have done things they ought not to have done; who have served well their countries or their religion, and then suddenly for one reason, they lost their perspective and did things they ought not to have done.

"Here is a young woman with infinite prospects, a great future before her; yet, what prompted her to do that—I must accept the verdict of the jury—I do not know. But she undertook to betray her country.

"Now, the Congress enacted a law, two laws, that the jury said she violated. One was the statute that forbade that any person should take, or if any person copied or took any documents or writings or notes relating to our national defense, and did it with the intention and wth the reason to believe that it would be used to the disadvantage of the country, the injury of the country, and the advantage of another country—that was a charge against her — that they should be punished; and the Congress said that the maximum penalty should be 10 years in the penitentiary.

"If I were to hypothesize, and spend a long time on the bench attempting to illustrate a case that the Congress had in mind, an extreme case, I couldn't imagine a more extreme case, except that she is a woman.

Cites Other Countries

"The Congress said that if they do these things, that the maximum should be 10 years in the penitentiary. Now, I couldn't imagine that Congress could have had in mind, when it wrote that penalty, a greater offense than she committed in this case. She was, as I said, trusted; and she betrayed, according to the verdict of the jury, that trust.

"Again, they said, in the event that any persons removed documents or files, records from the custody, places where they were deposited, that they should be punished, if proved guilty, if they did it willfully and unlawfully, and the maximum of not more than three years.

"Again, I couldn't imagine that Congress had in mind a greater offense than was committed in this case.

"So that on the offense she committed, the maximum penalty—and I am not going to impose the maximum—could have been 13 years in the penitentiary. I want to say here that I think Congress was very conservative. If there were other countries, the countries to which she sought to give information, according to the verdict of the jury—in that country, I question whether there would have ever been a trial in this case. I question that.

"I should pause here and say it is my duty—and I struggled as I knew—to see that the defendant had a fair trial. I even went so far, at the instance of her attorney, and opened the files of the Government, and even imperiled the Government's best interests in doing it, in the interest of her fair trial. Then her counsel tells me that I did not give her a fair trial.

"I gave her every opportunity. There is no avenue that I knew that she could resort to that I didn't open it, to the end that she might have a fair trial before the jury, so all the facts would be known.

"A Good Jury"

"It was my duty here to see that justice was done. It was not particularly my duty—it was the duty of others to look after the protection of the defenses of the United States. I was here to see that justice was done; and I have done my best to see that.

"On that question, I thoroughly approve the verdict of the jury. I think it was a good jury. I think that they were justified; I think they would have been derelict in the performance of their duty if they had not returned a verdict of guilty in this case."

FBI Methods Unchanged

if it became necessary while he believed it not advisable to produce others. The Central Intelligence Agency and the Army advised that information furnished by them and incorporated in the FBI reports in question might be introduced (through the FBI reports), if such was necessary to the prosecution of the case. I chose to proceed with the prosecution. There was no 'quarrel,' no 'feud,' no 'resignation.' There never has been in my 13 years in the department.

Has Complete Confidence

"Developments in this case have resulted in some clamor for an investigation of the FBI. Intemperate and ill-advised charges were unjustly leveled at this branch of the Department of Justice. I heartily concur with the President that such an inquiry is not justified or necessary. I have complete confidence in J. Edgar Hoover and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. I have worked closely with Mr. Hoover for 13 years and I have never known of an instance where the FBI has misused its investigative authority. Its important work should not be hampered just because a few individuals give the "cry" to investigate.

"Further, I see no menace to civil rights when citizens report their complaints to the FBI where they are sifted, studied and assigned for investigation if warranted. I would be concerned if they fell in the hands of vigilantes and self-constituted groups. The record of the FBI speaks for itself. That record is the best answer to those who have raised questions as to its policies and procedures. The entire department works as vigorously to establish facts showing innocence as it does to secure the evidence of guilt and it does it within the framework of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

House Unit Issues New Firing Threat

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Staff members of the House Un-American Activities Committee were warned yesterday that passing out unauthorized information might cost their jobs.

A committee member said Counsel Frank Tavenner and Senior Investigator Louis Russell were told to pass the word to the staff. It is the third time this year the committee has directed that any member of the staff who passes out information be fired.

"This time," said a committee member," we mean it."

Textbook Furor Cited

Immediate cause of yesterday's order, it was said, was the fact that names of witnesses to be called in the committee's probe of Communism in Washington leaked to reporters in advance. But even more important was believed to be the recent turmoil over what was interpreted widely as a committee plan to investigate textbooks used in schools and colleges.

As it finally developed, after several days of recrimination and denial, Chairman Wood (D., Ga.) had requested some 70 colleges and all State boards of education to furnish the committee with lists of textbooks in use. The request resulted, Wood said, from a petition by the Sons of the American Revolution charging Communist propaganda had entered some schools through textbooks.

Other committee members said Wood had mentioned the petition in a meeting but no vote had been taken on it. Many members declared they knew nothing of the request until stories of protests by educators began appearing in newspapers.

First protests to be published came from Edmund Ezra Day, president of Cornell University, and Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education. The National Education Association asked the committee staff to explain the request.

After other educators had criticized the committee and still others had announced they would comply with its request, Representative McSweeney (D., Ohio) took umbrage at inclusion of five Ohio educational institutions in the request. His blast at the committee, of which he is a member, was followed by a disavowal of any part in the move by Republican committee members.

The committee already had sent a letter to heads of institutions from which it originally had requested lists of books, explaining it had no intention of invading academic freedom or installing censorship.

Early this year the committee voted to fire staff members who gave out unauthorized information. It already had banned photographers, television and broadcasting from its public hearings, a move designed to allay criticism on grounds it was making "Roman holidays" of its sessions.

Einstein Atom Unit to Curb Its Activities

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—The Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists, headed by Albert Einstein, announced today it will curtail its activities "to avoid taking a stand on political questions."

The committee was founded more than two years ago to inform the public on atomic problems. It sponsored and financed the Bulletin of the atomic scientists, a monthly magazine; arranged numerous conferences and lectures, and carried out an educational campaign.

In a full-page statement in June-July Bulletin, the emergency committee said the important atomic issue now is the question of international control and that it cannot be solved "except within the framework of a general settlement of most of the other outstanding post-war issues.

"Any fruitful discussion of it will, therefore, involve taking a stand on political questions which, of necessity, must be of a controversial nature," the statement said.

However, the committee said it won't dissolve. It explained:

"If, during the year, problems arise with which we are peculiarly suited to deal, we shall do so. For the present, however, the emergency committee will remain dormant and will solicit no additional funds."

As for the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, it will continue publication, the statement said, "under the sponsorship of a broadly representative group of distinguished scientists under the chairmanship of J. Robert Oppenheimer."

That Brunette In Bottle Is Eye-Catching

Bartender! Pour me another drink of that brunette!

But how would you like to have a bottle of brunette, contents: 23-year-old, 120 pounds, 5 feet 7½ inches tall, bust 34, waist 24, hips 35?

This choice bottled vintage is Mona McHenry.

She is a brunette in a bottle of perfume in a store window at 11th and G sts. nw., southeast corner. Today's the last day you can look.

A model of gowns and lesser things, Miss McHenry lived at 5525 Kansas ave. nw., before going to Baltimore recently and getting tanked up in perfume.

You look through a square aperture in the blacked-out store window and there's Mona in a bottle. It's done with a diminishing lens.

"You'd be amazed at the looks I get," said Mona. "Especially from the old gents and the kids."

Warships of Four Nations Plan for Joint Maneuvers

Penzance, England, July 1 (AP).—Warships of Britain, France and Holland massed in Penzance Bay today as the foundation of a great, combined western European fleet.

With additions coming from Belgium, more than 100 ships of the four nations are going on blue water maneuvers from the English Channel to the Bay of Biscay, beginning Monday.

While the British, French and Dutch admirals exchanged compliments on the flagship, British ratings, French Matelots and Dutch seamen were busy getting their signals coordinated—the biggest job in three-tonged naval operations.

The three nations had previous—and at times disconcerting—experience with intercommunications in the Allied Eastern Fleet at Ceylon during the war..

Admiral Rhoderick R. McGrigor, commander in chief of Britain's Home Fleet, is top kick of the maneuvers.

American B-29 Superfortress bombers prepared to renew their mock raids on key British cities Saturday in the finale of "Operation Foil," which is testing England's defenses against atom blitzing.

Eisler's Former Wife Barred as Hiss Trial Witness

was prevented from appearing, it was announced. Murphy declared that he sought to call a representative of the Cherner Motor Co. of Washington.

"We have ruled," said Judge Kaufman, "that is not proper rebuttal evidence and will be excluded."

The Cherner representative was to testify to the controversial sale of Hiss' 1929 Ford roadster, which Hiss says was worth $25 and which he gave to Chambers in 1935.

Knew Him as Writer

Hiss says he knew Chambers only as a free-lance writer named "George Crosley" whom he befriended, and after turning the car over to him Hiss said he learned he had not filled out the title transfer certificate.

Under circumstances which Hiss says are now partly vague in his mind, in 1936, while working in the Justice Department, he signed the certificate showing the car was sold to the Cherner Co.

Chambers gave the House committee a completely different version of this, saying Hiss wanted to give the car to a Communist Party worker, and made the transaction through a used car lot operated by a Communist sympathizer.

Library Employe Called

Paul A. Schmidt, who identified himself as a Library of Congress employe, was called to the stand by the Government in an effort to counter the Hisses' denial of an incident which Chambers says occurred in 1937.

On August 10, of that year, Chambers testified, he and Mr. and Mrs. Hiss motored to Peterborough, N. H., spending the night at an inn named "Bleak House."

All during the first two weeks of that August, and on other occasions that summer and other years, the Hisses state, they occupied an apartment in the home of Mrs. Lewin W. Wickes in Cheetertown, Md., near a camp where Mrs. Hiss' oldest son was vacationing.

Solandt, under Murphy's questioning, said he and his mother, a semi-invalid, ocupied an apartment in Mrs. Wickes' home "throughout the summer" of 1937 and never knew the Hisses.

Six Apartments in House

He said there were six apartments in the house.

Asking Hiss and his wife, Priscilla, to stand, Murphy asked Solandt:

"Did you ever see either that man or that woman in Mrs. Wickes, house in Maryland—in 1937 I'm talking about?"

"No," answered Solandt.

Under cross-examination by Stryker, however, Solandt admitted that he and his mother frequently ate their meals in their own apartment, "and sometimes we would not come downstairs at all during the day."

"Are you saying," demanded Stryker, "that Mr. and Mrs. Hiss were not there or that you didn't see them?"

"I didn't see them," Solandt replied.

Asked if he knew Mrs. Wickes' handwriting, Solandt said he did and was given a letter to see if it would "refresh his recollection" about the Hisses.

He started to read, "My Dear Alger——," unaware that he was to read it to himself, when he was halted. He said it did not help remind him of the Hisses. When the trial resumes on Tuesday, it is believed that Mrs. Wickes will be called as a rebuttal witness for the defense.

Special FBI agent Lish Whitson of Washington, who testified about an interview wth Hiss on March 25, 1946, said he asked Hiss "whether any of his friends were Communists, and he said not to his knowledge . . ."

Whitson conceded that Hiss came to the FBI voluntarily, after the then Secretary of State James F. Byrnes told Hiss of a report that several Congressmen were about to charge there were a number of Communists or Communist sympathizers in the State Department, and that one of them was Hiss.

Not a Joiner

Hiss has previously discussed this in his testimony here, saying he told Byrnes the report was untrue, and that he would immediately check with the FBI about it.

Whitson said he and D. M. Ladd, assistant director of the FBI, interviewed Hiss and:

"He told us that he was not much of a joiner of organizations except for a short period of months with the International Juridical Association and for a period of months when he met with a group to discuss foreign affairs in a restaurant in Washington."

Hiss has stated that for a short time in 1932 or 1933 he was a member of the International Juridical Association. That group later was termed a Communist front by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Pressman Mentionted

Asked to name those who met in the restaurant, said Whitson, Hiss mentioned the name of Lee Pressman, former general counsel of the CIO, "and others (Chambers accused Pressman of being a Communist underground worker.)

He said Hiss, "Who did the talking and we did the listening," denied that he was a Communist or Communist sympathizer.

When asked if any of his friends were, said Whitson, Hiss replied, "Not to my knowledge," but said that "Mr. Pressman had been mentioned as a Communist or fellow traveler but htat he had not known him to be such."

During the talk, a memorandum from Whitson showed, the "matter of possible subversive associations or activities was brought up, and Mr. Hiss stated that during the time subsequent to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference," a number of State Department employes had been making speeches concerning the proposed United Nations Organization.

Interpretation Questioned

Hiss said according to the memorandum, that in this period "allegations were made that some (of the speeches) were whitewashing the Soviet Union and possibly some allegations of that kind were made against him."

Stryker demanded, on cross-examination, "Did not Mr. Hiss state to you that the State Department had those personnel . . . Explain Dumbarton Oaks to the public in order to enlist support for the United Nations . . . ?"

"It is possible that he did say that in substance," answered Whitson.

"Did Mr. Hiss tell you that the (restaurant) meetings he mentioned were of the Foreign Policy Association, or in connection with the Foreign Policy Association?"

(Chambers charges that he met Hiss in a Washington restaurant in 1934, and was introduced to him by two leading Communists, Harold Ware and J. Peters.)

Whitson said he could not state that positively.

"Do you deny that Mr. Hiss stated . . . 'either of or concerning the Foreign Policy Association?'"

Stryker pressed.

"In some way they were connected with the Foreign Policy Association," Whitson answered.

Stryker asked if Hiss had not told him that he saw "practically nothing" of Lee Pressman after leaving the Agriculture Adjustment Administration (in 1935), where they had both been employed as assistants to the solicitor.

Whitson said this was substantially correct.

Typewriter Employe Testifies

The third witness today was Stanley Russell, employed by a typewriter firm. He testified that for three months starting on February 24, 1949, Hiss' defense attorneys rented a 1929 model Woodstock typewriter from his company.

Sixty-four of the documents allegedly passed to Chambers by Hiss were typed on an old Woodstock typewriter in the Hiss home in 1938, the prosecution charges.

The Hisses declare they disposed of this typewriter in December, 1937. What is alleged to be that same typewriter was recovered in April of this year, and is a key exhibit in the case.

The prosecution has brought out that the rented typewriter was inspected by the Hisses recently, but has made no other allegation about this, beyond getting Mr. and Mrs. Hiss to state that they saw the rented typewriter in their attorneys' offices.

More Witnesses Slated

Mrs. Hiss, who Chambers accuses of typing some of the papers in evidence, said she did some typing on the rented typewriter to help her recall characteristics of the Woodstock she says she gave away in 1937.

When the trial—which began May 31—resumes on Tuesday, the prosecution is expected to call two or three more rebuttal witnesses, and the defense has one or two rebuttal witnesses to summon.

It appeared that because of extensive advance publicity about the possible use of Mrs. Massing as a witness, both the prosecution and defense have been directed not to disclose names of future witnesses.

Today was the twenty-third day of the trial, and 42 witnesses have appeared for the prosecution, with 27 for the defense. The case is expected to go to the jury late Thursday or Friday.

Condon Sees Loyalty Probe 'Politics'

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, charged today that loyalty investigations are being used for partisan political purposes.

Condon, once called the "weakest link" in atomic energy security in a House Un-American Activities Committee report, said he does not oppose inquiries into subversive activities that are "fairly and competently conducted."

"But I do want to be on record against incompetence in such investigations, and against their being conducted in an atmosphere of hysteria-generating publicity," he added.

Prior to Coplon Trial

Condon presented his "Reflections on Government" in the current issue of "The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists." The article was prepared before the Judith Coplon spy trial, during which he criticized the FBI for a loyalty report on his wife, and before the start of the current joint congressional committee investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Searching out disloyalty and treasonable acts among Government employes is an "important function of government" which "we confidently entrust" to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Condon said.

But, he charged, many persons favor using this activity "for partisan political purposes, for the trumping-up of attacks directed at persons whose only offense is that they think differently on some policies than do the attackers."

Reminiscent of Nazi 'Wave'

He said "several and perhaps all" of the inquiries into subversive activities in Washington, California, Illinois, Maryland, "and perhaps other States," are directing their attention to universities and scientists in "a way that is strikingly reminiscent of the wave of anti-intellectualism which formed an early part of the Nazi rise to power in Germany."

"The Nazi formula is being applied here with practically no variation from the way the Nazis were using it just 15 years ago," he said.

Where the Cause Lies

Condon said the cause of "these harassments and persecutions" lies in:

1. A widespread anti-intellectualism which is violently opposed to free speech and wants all views to fit its own.

2. A particular vindictiveness being shown against atomic bomb scientists for supporting civilian control of atomic energy.

3. "A larger group of American isolationists than is generally realized" which is trying to oppose any kind of international cooperation programs and is paving the way by attacking scientists who have the "one world concept."

4. Some honest and sincere persons who "genuinely believe that the scientists are untrustworthy fellows."

Illinois Bills to Outlaw Communism Are Buried

Springfield, Ill., July 1 (AP).—The Broyles bills to outlaw communism in Illinois died quietly in the Legislature today.

Assembly lieutenants of Democratic Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson failed to call the Senate-approved measures up for a House vote. They were killed in the sine die adjournment crush.

Stevenson had called them "Mundt-Nixon bills, Illinois variety."

Student protests had led to a legislative investigation of any subversive activities at the University of Chicago and Roosevelt College, Chicago.

Two rival resolutions, one to exonerate and the other to censure the two colleges and their officials, failed to come up for House roll calls.

Rock Creek Park Ideal for Holiday

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

(First of three stories for holiday stay-at-homes)

Rock Creek Park, with its miles of cool and shady footpaths, its picnic areas and zoo, offers a perfect relaxation spot for area residents who plan to stay here for the holiday weekend.

Blue jays, cardinals and scarlet tanagers are among the many colorful birds that can be spotted in the thickly leafed trees. Wild flowers, like the ox-eye daisy, the black-eyed Susan and Queen Ann's lace, are scattered through the woods. Gray squirrels delight the youngsters and ducks are everywhere upon the waters of Rock Creek.

For those who prefer merely to drive, there are 14½ of paved roads. For the more athletic hikers and horsebcak riders there are 9 miles of foot trails and 27 miles of bridle paths.

Zoo Is Highlight

For those who enjoy out-of-door lunching picknicking is permitted in most park areas. The 62 sites where tables and fireplaces are available have already been reserved for Sunday and Monday. Some sites are open for today, and permits may be obtained from the Recreation Department, Adams 2050.

There are tennis courts and baseball diamonds, and, of course, the 18-hole Rock Creek Golf Course, whose rolling fairways, bounded by woods, present a real challenge to the golfer.

One of the feature attractions for both young and old is the Zoo, operated by the Smithsonian Institution, but located in the park.

In addition to regular attractions like the monkeys, lions, elephants and many other animals, Dr. William Mann, director, promises several special treats for this weekend.

There's Sparky, a new arrival as of Thursday. He is the pet leopard of a trainer in the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. There is a new baby addition to the Scottish Highland cattle family, who was born Tuesday.

And the Solenodon

Plenty of baby raccoons and possums are on hand and the Zoo has also a rather unusual small animal, the Solenodon, which resemble a shrew and arived here recently from Haiti.

The animal houses at the Zoo are open daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. weekends and holidays. Gates to the Zoo grounds are open from daybreak to dusk. There is no admission fee.

A weekly campfire program is scheduled for tonight at 8:15 at the site at 16th st. and Colorado ave. nw., where Randle B. Truett, chief historian for National Capital Parks, will speak on "Impressions of Postwar Europe." A half-hour of recorded music will precede his talk.

If park visitors want a bit of history along with their back-to-nature jaunt, they can stop by old Pierce Mill, last of the eight flour mills that operated along Rock Creek during the early nineteenth century. There visitors will see wheat ground into flour between large millstones, turned by a water wheel.

Pierce Mill was built about 1820 by Isaac Pierce. Its most flourishing business was carried on in the '60s, when operated by his decendant, Pierce Shoemaker, who ground grain for residents as far away as Rockville and Falls Church.

Other Historic Spots

Business was discontinued there in 1897 and was not resumed until the Government restored the mill in 1936. Since then cornmeal and flour ground there had been used in cafeterias in local government buildings.

The mill is free to the public every day except Monday. On weekdays the hours are from 9 until 5 p. m. Sunday the mill is open from 1 p. m. until 5.

Other historic spots in the park include Piney Branch Valley, just north of the Zoo, once a quarry site for Indians who made arrowheads, axes and knives from rocks deposited there. And there is Soapstone Valley, where they got stones for their pipe bowls, jewelry and other small objects.

Many of the fords, formerly used to cross Rock Creek, still remain. Today, however, only three are kept open for autos during the daylight hours and when the waters of Rock Creek are low. One is on Blagden ave. and the other two in the Zoo grounds.

Even the park highways have historical importance. Take Military rd., for example. It was built during the Civil War for men and supplies hastening to the city's northern defenses when Washington was threatened by Confederate troops.

Entrances Listed

The historical points in Rock Creek might have been lost in the rapid growth of Washington had it not been for the dream of banker Charles Glover, who got the support of Congress in changing 1760 acres of wilderness into a park, starting in 1890. Years of work have gone into its smooth roads and its upkeep.

Rock Creek Park can be entered by auto at the following places: North on Virginia ave. nw., proceeding right into the park; the south side of the Massachusetts ave. bridge; Calvert st. nw. east of the Shoreham Hotel; Tilden st. nw. off Connecticut ave.; Military rd. nw. off Connecticut ave.; Chestnut st. at the District Line; Beach dr. from the District Line; Kalmia rd., Sherrill dr., Missouri ave., Morrow dr., Blagden ave. and Harvard st. all from 16th st. nw.; Arkansas ave. between 14th and 16th st. nw.; Klingle rd. from the vicinity of the Washington Cathedral, and Porter and Albemarle sts., both off Connecticut ave. nw.

The main entrances to the footpaths lie at 16th and Whittier sts. nw.; 16th st. and Colorado ave. nw.; 16th and Madison sts. nw.; Connecticut ave. and Rodman sts. nw., and 16th and Holly sts. nw.

The bridle paths can be reached easily from the following stables: Edgewater Stables, 2514 G st. nw.; where rates are $2 an hour Sundays and holidays; $1.50 an hour Saturdays and $1.25 an hour weekdays; Potomac Riding School, 2615 D st. nw., rates are $2 an hour weekends and holidays and $1.50 an hour weekdays; Northwest Stables, 2209 F st. nw., $2 an hour weekends and holidays and $1.50 an hour weekdays; Pegasus Stables, 2720 Washington ave., Chevy Chase, $3 for 1½ hours weekends and $2.50 weekdays, and Meadowbrook Saddle Club, East-West hwy., Chevy Chase, $3 for 2 hours on all days.

Many Picnic Areas

There are jumps at Equitation Field, in the west side of the park along Glover rd., and also at the back of the Shoreham Hotel.

Permits also are issued by the Recreation Department for the free use of two tennis courts at 16th and Kennedy sts. nw. Ten other tennis courts at that location are operated by Government Services, Inc., which also manages six courts at Tilden st. near Beach dr.

A reservation ticket for the GSI courts can be purchased for 60 cents for use of a court one hour by any number of persons. Tennis players can rent unreserved courts for 15 cents an hour a person. Tickets are obtained at the courts.

Word of Caution Issued

Rock Creek golf course is open 6 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. daily and weekends. Fees for golfers are 25 cents for nine holes and 40 cents for 18 holes during the week and 40 cents for nine holes and 75 cents for 18 holes, weekends and holidays.

Rock Creek Park lacks only water sports. Swimming and wading in the stream are forbidden. Park officials explain that the water is polluted.

Park officials had a word of caution as they invited residents and visitors to enjoy the facilities and beauty of the park—this weekend and at all times—watch out for poison ivy and the ticks and don't try to take out any flowers or wildlife.

'Irregularities' Charged In Property Sale

By the United Press

Government Investigator J. S. Balaban said yesterday the Justice and Navy Departments are considering "action" in connection with the sale of 112 acres of New York waterfront property to the Government in 1942.

He said that "all sorts of entertainment" and other "irregularities" went on before the New York real estate firm of Joseph P. Day, Inc., sold the property to the Government for six million dollars.

Balaban, an employe of the General Accounting Office, testified before a House Judiciary Subcommittee which is considering a bill to let the Government transfer part of the Manhattan Beach area in King's County to New York State for a recreation area.

He gave members of the subcommittee a report on the original sale which, he said, contained "serious charges." But he urged them not to make the report a part of the record "in order to guard the interests of the Government."

Chairman Joseph R. Bryson (D., S. C.) agreed to comply with the request "at this time" and Balaban said he will provide a "narrative account" later on covering most of the points in the report.

Subcommittee Counsel C. Murray Bernhardt said "the present head of the Day Co. was the negotiating Coast Guard officer at the time of the transfer in 1941." He did not elaborate.

The Government originally bought the beach area for the wartime use of the Coast Guard and the Maritime Commission. The State of New York later questioned the title, claiming it owned about 50 acres of the tract.

Balaban said he set out to check the title but ran into material "that probably would be far more interesting." He added, however, that publication of his findings at this time might hamper Government efforts "to recover."

Then he observed, again without elaboration, that his report contains "serious charges."

"These charges have been turned over to the Department of Justice and the Navy Department and they are contemplating action," he said.

1.8 Billion U. S. Deficit

President told the officials to keep their fund requests as low as efficient operations would permit. No figures were mentioned in the preliminary session. The conferees went over the general conomic situation.

The deficit for fiscal 1949 was the first in three years. Fiscal 1948 turned up a surplus of $8,419,000,000, an all-time record.

Snyder ignored authority given him in the Republican-controlled 80th Congress which would have enabled him to claim a bookkeeping surplus instead of a deficit.

The act, in effect, directed that the first three billion dollars spent on foreign aid in fiscal 1949 be ignored on 1949 books and charged back to the preceding year when there was a surplus.

Snyder and President Truman have paid no attention to it, calling it a "phony bookkeeping" device.

Could Be, Says Sikes of Gas War Without Pain

By The Associated Press

Is a "painless" gas war in the offing?

Representative Sikes (D., Fla.), with a slight touch of mystery, told the House yesterday such a prospect "is not necessarily pure fancy."

He said the Army Chemical Corps "may, with proper incentives, produce a painless war."

"The Army Chemical Corps today may not be far from the production of a gas which temporarily destroys the will to fight but does no lasting harm," he said.

"That would make short shrift of any aggressor and render his defense impotent.

"Such a weapon, properly guarded, could be much more valuable than the atomic bomb, for it would be free from the destructiveness of the atomic bomb."

Bradley Visions Long Military Tension for U. S.

Fort Leavenworth, Kans., July 1 (AP).—Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today this country must "anticipate a long period of tension" in its military planning.

The Army Chief of Staff, in a talk at graduation exercises at the Command and General Staff College here, said "militarily speaking, the situation is as stable as it is going to be for some time to come."

"In the four years since V-J Day," he said, "I think the advantage has swung to our side and that the aggressor, who was once a friend, is now on the defensive.

"Rather than expect a long period of friendly cooperation, however, we must anticipate a long period of tension, with alternating day-to-day improvements or setbacks, which must not be allowed to unstabilize the long-range plans for security."

Cronin Loses $1244 —Nats Just a Game

The Nats weren't the only ones who chalked up a loss at Griffith Stadium last night.

Thomas J. Cronin, a bleachers ticket seller at the 5th st. entrance told police someone took $1244 from his window when he turned his back for a few seconds.

The ticket seller, who lives at 1820 N st. nw., said he had just counted the night's receipts and had it nicely packaged when the theft occurred.

Priest Faces Bingo Charge

Rockford, Ill., July 1 (U.P.).—Assistant State's Attorney H. Emmett Folgate said today he will prosecute a Roman Catholic priest on charges of operating a bingo game in his church.

Illinois law prohibits bingo games.

The charge was brought against the Rev. Raymond Patrick Gordon, pastor of St. Bridget's Catholic Church, and three of his parishioners after a raid on the church last night.

The priest was freed on his own recognizance.

The law provides a $100 minimum fine upon conviction, but no maximum.

The raid was made on warrants brought by Mayor Frank Larson of Suburban Loves Park.

The priest said there was no gambling, but that a church social was in progress.

Chief of Police Roy York said he found a large numbered board, a bingo sign and cards and buttons.

Father Gordon said that the winners of the bingo game got no money but competed in a quiz program where prizes were given for correct answers.

1600 Guerilla Casualties

Athens, July 1 (AP).—A Greek general staff spokesman said today the Communist-led guerillas suffered 1600 casualties in the second half of June in a government offensive which has reduced the enemy to groups of disorganized bands.

Strike Peace Plan Rejected

Honolulu, July 1 (AP).—Honolulu stevedores overwhelmingly turned down a plan for ending Hawaii's crippling waterfront strike yesterday. Their comrades elsewhere in the islands are expected to follow suit today.

The peace plan, advanced hopefully by a fact-finding board and accepted reluctantly by employers, was batted down 826 to 59.

The board proposed a raise of 14 cents an hour. The workers in striking 62 days ago demanded 32 cents on top of their current hourly wage of $1.40. President Truman approved the plan.

Wearily, Acting Gov. Oren E. Lang said he would ask the two sides to resume collective bargaining. "Surely, there must be some way this strike can be ended," he added.

The CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, however, indicated it was preparing for a long struggle.

Harry Bridges, union president, is flying from San Francisco Tuesday or Wednesday to take over personal direction of the strike.

ILWU Official Harry Schmidt declared if violent attempts were made to break the strike, longshoremen along the whole Pacific Coast would shut down.

[The United Press quoted Schmidt as telling a union meeting he does not expect violence but said he was warned today that "things will be rough from now on if the strike continues." He did not say who had warned him.—Editor's note.]

Legion Head Sees Americans Trading Off Right to Govern

Williamsburg, Va., July 1 (AP).—The American people are "trading off their right to govern" by allowing power to be centralized in Washington, Perry Brown, national commander of the American Legion, said tonight.

"Proposals to pipe additional broad powers into Washington do not represent adjustment to meet changing conditions," Brown told an audience attending the first 1949 performance of Paul Green's historical drama, "The Common Glory."

"They represent departure from the principle of self-determination on which this Nation was founded and has grown great," he said. "That priniple does not change. It is not expendable. When it is lost, you have not an independent Nation but a Nation of regulated dependents.

"Under the political and economic system adopted back in the early days, definite areas of authority were given the community and the State . . . because in order for the people to govern themselves, the incentive and power for governing had to be in their own hands.

"But the trend in our time has been away from that arrangement. We have seen a steady pyramiding of power in the Federal departments. The range of local authority has shrunk noticeably, and more drastic shrinkage would result from proposals now pending. "I sometimes wonder if the American people have a clear conception of where this process leads. We simply cannot have something for nothing — as the veterans of the Nation learned so well."

Brown saw "real problems" in growing unemployment, inflation and rising living costs, but said "there is only one basis of approach consistent with American ideals, and that is the enterprise of the American people."

Man Arrested For Wearing Army Uniform Illegally

Norman Harris, 37, of 226 Oakdale pl. nw., was arrested at Fort Belvoir late Thursday night and charged with wearing an Army uniform without authority.

Federal officials said Harris told them he was discharged from the Army in 1945, bnt had put on his old uniform to go to the post to gamble.

He was released under $250 bond by U. S. Commissioner Stanley King for action of the Alexandria District Court.

German Ships Unshackled

Frankfurt, Germany, July 1 (AP). The Western powers took the shackles off Germany's merchant marine today. German ships may now sail to any port.

Ortega Doubts U. S. Weight In Ideals Spread

Aspen, Colo., July 1 (U.P.).—Jose Ortega y Gasset, Spain's greatest living philosopher, today commended America's vigor but said he doesn't think this Nation "has any influence in the spread of democratic ideals throughout the world."

The 68-year-old sage, here to present two lectures at the international Goethe convocation, said he found America in a state of "vigorous adolescence so powerful that it can absorb the errors of its politicians without any harm."

Ortega, in what he called the first interview he ever had granted, said he was optimistic "about the fate of Europe, and America can help to save what is possible to preserve of European civilization, principally by spiritual aid."

He said he doesn't see the future of the world as dark and pessimistic "as most people do." Nor does he believe in what politicians say because they "mix things up."

Ortega said there are two essential things to gauge in studying a nation—its pulse and its historical age.

"America has magnificent vigor and strength which are the best qualities it can possess . . . The only thing America and her people need is training in the art of concentration.

"Europe which is old and has many vies, needs the faith in life and reasons to exist which it can get from the United States."

Post Reporter Cited for Fight On Court's Crime News 'Gag'

Philip J. Austensen, veteran reporter for The Washington Post in the nearby Maryland area, yesterday was commended by the Montgomery County Press Association for work in fighting a Baltimore court rule curbing crime news reporting.

Austensen

Austensen was one of the most active newspapermen in opposing a rule of the Baltimore Supreme Court prohibiting publication of the confession of an accused person before his trial, taking a photograph of the accused without his consent, any statement on the future course of action by either the prosecution or defense and publication of any matter that might prevent a fair trial or improperly influence a jury.

Spokesman for the Press Association, which acted at its regular meeting yesterday at Bethesda, said the reporter was partly responsible for fight spread of the restricting rule throughout the State.

Married and the father of two children, Austensen lives at 9318 Worth ave., Silver Spring. He has been a reporter for The Washington Post for nearly 25 years.

Many Boycott 'Harmony' Dinner In South Carolina

Columbia, S. C., July 1 (AP)—Vice President Barkley came here to dinner tonight. It was a "harmony" Democratic dinner, but a number of State political figures did not attend.

The genial Kentuckian, in the role of peacemaker, stepped into the breach created last year when the Democratic Party divided on the States' rights question.

Former Gov. Ransome J. Williams arranged the $15-a-plate dinner for the pro-Truman Democrats.

A notable absensee was Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, who drew South Carolina's eight Electoral College votes away from the national party last fall as States' Rights presidential candidate.

U. S. Senator Olin D. Johnston, expected to lock horns with Thurmond in the U. S. Senate campaign next summer, was absent because of the death of a brother.

Most top-ranking state party and Government officials also were absent. The State's six U. S. Representatives were not on hand, although U. S. Senator Maybank turned up.

Housing Conferees Meet Next Week

Congressional conferees start to work next week to put the national housing bill, largest in the Nation's history, into final shape for President Truman's signature.

First task of the conferees will be to reduce the number of public housing in the House-passed measure to 810,000 from the 1,050,000 passed by mistake. The figure of 810,000 was adopted by the Senate.

Federal housing officials said construction of low-rent public housing units should begin within a year and the slum clearance program shortly thereafter.

Conferees for the House are Representatives Brent Spence (D., Ky.), Paul Brown (D., Ga.), Wright Patman (D., Tex.), A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.), Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), Paul A. Gamble (R., N. Y.), and Frederick C. Smith (R., Ohio).

Victim Wounded

Deaf Mutes Accused In Holdup Case

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 1 (AP).—Two men and two girls, three of them deaf mutes, were brought back from Virginia today to face charges of shooting and robbing an elderly filling station operator.

Clinton Johnson, 64, is in a serious condition in a Martinsburg hospital from a bullet wound in the stomach. He was shot yesterday at nearby Bunker Hill while being robbed of $21.

The men and girls were arrested across the Virginia line four hours later after a manhunt in which bloodhounds and airplanes were used.

Armed robbery warrants were issued against Hugh A. White, 26, Clearbrook, Va.; Rocky Spears, 20, near Winchester; Bertha Cressel, 14, and Almeda Cressell, 18, Staunton.

Only Bertha Cressel has speech, said Sheriff Robert DeHaven. The others were questioned in sign language and by written notes. Magistrate Larkin said he also charged Spears with assault in commission of a felony.

Scott Defense Rests Case

try to do to Dana?" Cuddy demanded.

"I never suggested anything like your tone implied, sir," Lee answered.

"Didn't you try to have relations with Dana?" Cuddy asked again.

"I did not."

"Didn't Dana resist you and fight you . . . to keep you from taking advantage of her?"

"I would never take advantage of a girl like that," was Scott's answer.

Scott's testimony traced his background of a normal youth brought up in a good family, touched on his accomplishments as an Eagle Scout, high school wrestler and acolyte and chorister at the church where Dana Marie was slain.

Meeting Occurred by Chance

He said he knew Dana because she had been in one of his classes, but he never had gone with her. It was only by chance they met in the church house, he said. She had gone there thinking to attend a youth meeting which had been canceled; he to play ping-pong with another boy who did not keep the date.

When he saw Dana, he said, "I just said, 'Howdy'—I never was much talking to any girl."

He suggested a game of ping-pong, he said, but they couldn't find a ball so they went upstairs for soft drinks from the cooler kept for the young people.

Then Dana began talking about Jimmy Webb, school wrestling champion, who was his "idol" and Dana Marie's former "boy friend."

"He was a fine boy," Scott said. "But she said that he was low-down and that he was lucky to have won the championship, or words to that effect."

"She Kicked and Clawed"

Scott then said "something swept over me . . . I struck her." Cuddy asked him to describe the fight.

"She turned and swung at me," Scott said. "She kicked and clawed . . . I fell down . . . We both fell down . . . I held on."

"But you grabbed her by the throat," Cuddy insisted.

"Yes, sir . . . but just with my hands . . . there wasn't much pressure."

Scott explained that in his wrestling lessons "we were never allowed to stop the breathing . . . put an arm over the throat or use any bone-breaking holds."

"But I had to hold her," the youth continued. "I held her some more . . . when I let go she didn't move."

Tells of Feeling Sick

Scott said he became ill and was in a fog after that. He remembered vaguely going downstairs, taking the bottle and wiping the blood from his hands with a piece of cloth. He disposed of the bottle and rag and went home. His dog licked his hand "and I got sick again," he said.

Just before resting, the defense got the admission from Coroner Charles M. Irvin he did not think Dana Marie had been killed by a person with "murder in his heart." In that case, the lower tissues of the neck would have been more damaged, Irwin said.

Dr. Glasgow Reports To Annapolis Post

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—Dr. Roy S. Glasgow of St. Louis reported to the United States Naval Postgraduate School today to assume the duties of academic dean.

He was appointed in April after Dr. Ford L. Wilkinson resigned last December to become president of Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Ind.

Dr. Glasgow had been chairman of the department of electrical engineering at Washington University, St. Louis, since 1936.

'Pooh-Bah' (U. S. Style) To Retire at 69

Lincoln, Mass., July 1 (U.P.).—The Town of Lincoln was in a bad way today because John J. Kelliher decided to retire at 69.

His retirement left vacant the offices of police chief, constable, water commissioner, Water Department superintendent, tree warden, moth superintendent, slaughtering inspector, dog officer and sealer of weights and measures.

Lawyer Gets $10,000 for Defamation

A Fairfax County jury late Thursday night awarded Attorney Richard C. Horne, jr., $10,000 for malicious prosecution by another lawyer and real estate man.

Damages were assessed against Charles Pickett, Fairfax attorney, and Buford M. Bridwell, Falls Church real estate man, for giving information which led to Horne's indictment a year ago on a charge of illegal practice of law.

Pickett and Bridwell moved that the verdict be set aside. Judge C. G. Quesenbery of Waynesboro, presiding in place of Fairfax Judge Paul E. Brown, who had disqualified himself, gave them until July 9 to file written motions.

The suit stemmed from another filed three years ago against Bridwell by the Falls Church (Episcopal) of Falls Church. The church was to receive part of an estate of which Bridwell was executor. It claimed he made an improper accounting of funds in the estate.

Bridwell was exonerated of any misconduct or bad faith, though the court ordered some adjustments made in settling the estate.

Horne, an official of the church, entered the case on behalf of the church and was indicted by a Fairfax grand jury in May, 1947, for practicing in Virginia without a license.

The indictment was quashed, and Horne brought suit against Pickett and Bridwell charging they did "falsely and maliciously . . . testify and procure an indictment."

The Williamsburg will anchor tonight off the St. Mary's River and Sunday night off Blackiston Island in the lower Potomac.

Court Dispersed, Cannot Stay Order On News 'Gag'

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals is "dispersed for the summer" and cannot stay an order wiping out parts of Rule 904, Chief Judge Ogle Marbury declared yesterday.

Attorney General Hall Hammond had asked a delay in the order invalidating parts of the Baltimore supreme bench rule which restricts publication and broadcast of crime news.

The order invalidating parts of the rule and reversing contempt of court convctions of three Baltimore radio stations and a news commentator is scheduled to be issued July 9.

Biscuits Shoot Back At Biscuit Shooter

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, July 1 (AP).—Mrs. Lowell Long of this city made some biscuits and they were a bang-up success.

She lighted the oven, put the biscuits inside and closed the door.

A few minutes later five shots in rapid succession came from the oven.

Mrs. Long recalled that she had hidden two .22-caliber pistols—one in the oven and one in the broiler—when her family went on a two-week vacation.

The biscuits, she said, turned out swell.

Air Stowaway Gets Probation --And $15 Fare

James LeRoy Holliday, 30, arrested at Washington National Airport June 18 as a stowaway on a plane from Miami, was placed on probation for one year yesterday by Alexandria Federal Court Judge Albert V. Bryan, who suspended imposition of sentence.

Holliday pleaded guilty to a criminal information. At the time of his arrest he had told police he was out of a job and was trying to go to New York to obtain work as a ship's radio operator. He said he had locked himself in the plane's men's room before takeoff on the nonstop flight to Washington.

United States Attorney George Humrickhouse recommended probation on the grounds that the 13 days Holliday had spent in jail was enough punishment.

"What concerns me," said Humrickhouse, "is where he will go from here." Holliday had only 70 cents when taken into custody.

Holliday told the court he had $15, reecived in contributions since his arrest, with which to finish his trip.

Judge Sets Deadline

Annapolis, Md., July 1 (AP).—Comptroller James J. Lacy has until July 18 to file an answer to a petition for a writ of mandamus which seeks to block the transfer of the State income tax office from Annapolis to Baltimore. Chief Judge James E. Boylan set the deadline in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court.

Nebraska Hall Rent Collector Gets 2 Years In Theft of $6005

Hobart S. Langdon, jr., 28, was given a two-year prison sentence yesterday in Alexandria Federal Court for embezzling $6005 from Arlington Farms last year while he was treasurer of Nebraska Hall.

Langdon, who lives at 6 Halifax st., Bethesda, Md., had pleaded guilty to the charge June 8.

Federal officials said Langdon took the money from rentals paid him by Government girls living in the dormitory. In doing so, he held up depositing his receipts for a day or more until he received more funds to make up the difference, they said.

In another case, Judge Albert V. Bryan, sentenced Edgar Goff, 32, to six months for stealing metal from Fort Belvoir. The metal was valued by the Army at $670, but Goff reportedly sold it as junk for $17. Goff, a civilian employe at the post who lived at Gray's Hill Village, pleaded innocent.

Charles Ward, jr., 29, of 203 6th st. ne., was placed on probation for two years after pleading guilty to a charge of embezzling $648 from an Alexandria moving van firm that employed him. Ward reportedly collected the money for delivering furniture in several States, brought it back to Alexandria, but spent it when he was unable to contact his employer immediately.

Saved By The Bell

Capital Transit and its employes, no less than the commuting public, have reason to be grateful to the Mediation and Conciliation Service for the last-minute compromise formula that averted a streetcar and bus strike. From the standpoint of the thousands of Washingtonians who depend on Capital Transit for daily transportation, a tie-up of this utility would have been intolerable. From the standpoint of both company and union a strike would have been foolish because each side had offered to arbitrate and the sticking point was over methods. Both parties are to be congratulated on their good sense in averting a situation in which they would have taken out their grievances on the public.

The compromise formula seems eminently fair. A five-man board will be selected to arbitrate the differences, one representative each from the company and the union, and three members from a seven-man panel to be proposed by Federal Mediation Director Ching. This should remove the company's fears of an unfavorable settlement coming from a three-man board as originally suggested by the union. It also should remove the union's objections to the "public" members proposed by the company. The arbitration board as now planned will consist of experts familiar with negotiating techniques and equipped to get to the core of the dispute. Meanwhile, contract talks will continue pending selection of the panel.

On wages the differences are such as to allow reasonable settlement. Although the union's initial demand was for a 25-cent hourly increase, it has indicated informally that it might take 10 cents. The company has offered 5 cents, contingent on operating economies to make up the cost. Some of these economies may be objectionable to the union, and hence probably must be included in the arbitration.

Acceptance of arbitration should not, of course, imply a mere splitting of the difference. For Capital Transit's status as a regulated public utility is inflexible—that is to say, it cannot raise fares at will. A wage increase that pushed the company into a demand for higher fares would not be in the public interest. Nor would it, in all probability, be in the union's interest, since fare increases have reached the point of diminishing returns and traffic is declining. Thus the room for negotiation is fairly limited unless operating economies are part of the settlement. For, according to company estimates, each 1-cent increase costs $115,000 annually, and the company's net income for the year ended May 31, reflecting the gains from the fare increase last summer, was only $504,000. Beyond the equities on both sides, the arbitration panel also must consider its responsibility to the public to hold transit fares at no more than their present level.

Hoover's Fears

Former President Hoover dislikes the proposal to create a chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff because of the possibility that a general staff for the armed forces might evolve from it. He believes that the provision in the Tydings bill, now before the House Armed Services Committee, would put the chairman of the Joint Chiefs in a position to override responsible civilian officials of the Government—meaning the Secretary of Defense. To us his fears are without foundation.

Mr. Hoover assumes that if a chairman of the Joint Chiefs were given power of decision, the Secretary of Defense and his superior, the President, would suddenly abdicate their authority. Surely this is imaginary. Both would still be on the job, and, besides, Congress is always on hand with the power of the purse; and so are the two Armed Services Committees. The reason for setting up a chairman of the Joint Chiefs is, purely and simply, the past inability of the Joint Chiefs to agree. That inability has injected the civilian Secretary of Defense into the realm of essentially military decisions. The burden of resolving military controversies has been an impossible burden on an already overburdened official.

Mr. Hoover refers to the late Secretary Forrestal's frustrations in attempting to accomplish unification by persuasion. The reference was pertinent. Mr. Forrestal initially held Mr. Hoover's view against a chairman of the Joint Chiefs; but in his last months in the Pentagon he became convinced of the futility of inadequate authority—and was an ardent advocate of the Tydings bill. He wanted decisions, not procrastination. The hope of the sponsors of the Tydings bill is that it will enable the chairman of the Joint Chiefs to focus on the target—to resolve the dichotomy of function of the Joint Chiefs as strategic planners on the one hand and heads of individual services on the other, and to encourage thinking in terms of unified defense. The alternatives to giving the chairman power of decision are delay and division in the military establishment.

Recess At Lausanne

The recess that has been taken at Lausanne in the job of turning the armistices in Palestine into peace instruments is a most curious one. The theory was that the conciliators and the parties at interest would seek fresh instructions. But no such activity is reported. There were three conciliators, an American, a Frenchman, and a Turk, and all three conciliators have returned to their domestic hearths. For instance, the American, Mr. Mark Ethridge, is back in his office at the Louisville Courier-Journal, of which admirable newspaper he is the publisher. As for the Arabs and the Israelis, they are still at Lausanne, marking time very pleasantly in the Swiss sunshine. In the meantime, Washington and Tel Aviv seem to be firing splenetic notes back and forth which will promote Arab do-nothingness and nothing else.

Let us take what the soldiers in wartime called a fresh reading. The Conciliation Commission is the agent of the General Assembly, but the members of it seem to have been working much more closely with their home governments than with Lake Success. This is a striking departure from the precedent supplied by the armistice negotiations. Dr. Ralph Bunche in his role as mediator was a United Nations official, and he reported to Lake Success, not to any individual government. He succeeded in his task, partly because of his personality, partly because of the framework in which he operated. Except for Syria, where there has been an overturn in the government, he arranged armistices between Israel and the rest of the Arab countries and left Rhodes, where he worked, with a high standing in the eyes of Arabs and Israelis alike. The question that comes obviously to mind is how this experience can be put to use to complete the task of peacemaking.

The first lesson of that experience is that the only way to get any progress is by the bilateral approach. When all the Arabs come together, fears and jealousies enter the conference room, and Dr. Bunche quickly realized it. Each has his own particular problems with Israel. For instance, Trans-Jordan wants either a sea outlet or use of Haifa as a free port, but there is no point in discussing the Trans-Jordan aim in the presence of Trans-Jordan's rivals, some of whom are anxious to curb and not to increase Abdullah's influence. Should we leave Trans-Jordan and Israel to come together of their own volition? Only if we are not anxious to get any peace. If peace is what we need, then the full force of diplomacy should be exerted in favor of bilateral talks; and if Dr. Bunche was able to promote such conversations, surely the chancelleries, particularly the State Department, can.

The appearance is being given that the State Department is opposed to bilateral conversations till the problem of the Arab refugees has been settled. Here, to be sure, is the only issue that is common to all the Arab countries. It is more than that. All of them, along with Israel, have a responsibility toward the Arab refugees—the Arab nations for precipitating the war and Israel as the sovereign over the vacated homes of the individual refugees. As to this problem, there is a solution—a solution that, it is said, Mr. Hoover is quietly advocating. This is to bargain human settlement against a scheme of economic reconstruction in the areas admitting the refugees.

However, there is no need (and no warrant in the U. N. mandate of conciliation) to delay conversations on other aspects of peace-making till these details have been worked out. What is required is a fresh start. Given some declaration of a common responsibility for the refugee problem, the Conciliation Commission could apply the hero of the armistices as well as the lesson of those negotiations to the problem in hand—that is to say, depute the management of bilateral talks to Dr. Bunche. In that event some progress could most certainly be achieved. The Arab governments will never demonstrate any initiative so long as they see no leadership among the great powers which they can display to their hoodwinked peoples as the reason for conversations. Drift and recrimination, combined with the gun-running that the Western nations are now indulging in, can have only one result, and that is to invite a much more serious explosion than the one Dr. Bunche stopped.

Punishing By Publicity

The House Committee on Un-American Activities, at the moment having nothing more dramatic to do with its funds and facilities, has undertaken to punish certain residents of the District of Columbia for opinions and associations which the committee deems offensive but which have not yet been shown to be in any respect criminal. The procedure is very simple. Persons presumed to be Communists are haled before the committee and asked if they belong to the Communist Party. The committee, in most cases, seems to have evidence that they are party members, so it can scarcely be said to be seeking information. The witnesses might be better advised and would certainly seem more respectable if they were to answer the question frankly instead of hiding behind a constitutional right to avoid self-incrimination. In either case they are incriminated not in a legal sense but in the public mind. And the incrimination may entail severe economic penalties.

Of course, a person who holds unorthodox beliefs or adheres to an unpopular political party ought to be prepared to stand up for what he thinks and accept derision, scorn or opprobrium if these are the public's reaction to his views. Heretics have always had to endure this sort of punishment. But when a committee of Congress, acting in the name of the United States, singles out citizens and deliberately exposes them to public scorn for the purpose of punishing them, then it puts the Government itself in the role of suppressing heresy. This is a role which the Government cannot play in a country where citizens have the right to be wrong. There is no official orthodoxy in the United States either in religion or in politics, and no proper public purpose is to be served by an official pillorying for unorthodoxy so long as no crime is involved in it.

Neglected Mobilization

Despite President Truman's refusal to comment on Bernard Baruch's blast at the failure to evolve a national mobilization plan for use in the event of war, the criticism deserves more than shoulder-shrugging. Whatever the White House meant in saying that Mr. Baruch was misinformed, our best information is that no such plan exists today in practicable form. The responsibility for such a plan devolves upon the National Security Resources Board, the top-level advisory agency charged with allocating over-all resources between potential civilian and military needs.

The defect is largely one of leadership. For more than six months the NSRB has been adrift, and before that, under the chairmanship of Arthur M. Hill, the agency was ineffective. To be sure, a mobilization plan of sorts was in the works when Mr Hill retired last December, but this was more of a plan for planning than a detailed schedule of what should be done in an emergency. Since President Truman's nomination of Mon C. Wallgren to fill this important post went awry, Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman has been devoting part of his time to the NSRB, but the primary emphasis under his direction has been on internal organization rather than on the board's basic objectives.

The lack of executive leadership has been reflected in a demoralization of personnel and a splintering of views on what ought to be done. One view holds that the NSRB should be primarily an agency concerned with theory and preparing papers on questions that might come up. A more realistic position, it seems to us, is that the board ought to be working on the details of mobilization and the assignment of definite responsibility—in other words, practical blueprints continually under revision. One essential part of organization, not fully developed under Mr. Hill, is a working relationship with other civilian agencies of the Government to enable them to participate in planning. But without leadership, no cohesion in approach is possible.

In marked contrast to the faltering of the NSRB is the efficient operation of the Munitions Board, whose chairman, Donald F. Carpenter, retired June 30. This is the agency of the military establishment charged with allocating industrial plants, stockpiling critical materials, assigning priorities, and coordinating armed-service purchasing. Under Mr. Carpenter's direction, the Munitions Board has been demilitarized in that it has sought qualified civilians for key spots. Some 80 per cent of service purchasing has been placed on a consolidated basis, and while this figure may give an overly rosy picture of the saving, the accomplishment is certainly significant. Likewise, stockpiling is going forward. The Munitions Board knows its mission and is performing it.

The Munitions Board will, of course, need a new chairman no less than the NSRB, but of the two vacancies the greater urgency seems to us to be in the top-level planning agency. We hope that the President is not permitting pique over his rebuff in the case of Mr. Wallgren to deprive the country of leadership in this vital instrument of national security.

Chinese Students

The resignation of Mr. Roger Lapham from direction of the ECA in China leaves a question as to the disposal of unexpended balances. Clearly, in the light of present conditions, the program in China must be virtually at a standstill. However, there is no need to go to China to help the Chinese. In this country there are 2000 students from China, a lot of whom, according to the China Institute in America, are in dire distress, having in some cases been left stranded. They need help. Why not put five million dollars—at least—of the fund to work on this beneficent enterprise—an enterprise that, for a change, would be a real investment in service.

It is understood that the Chinese Communists are trying to repatriate these half-trained students for administrative posts in the areas which have come under Communist domination. Some of the hard-pressed students may not be able to resist the pressure if they don't get some financial assistance. Thus, their training would be left incomplete, and, only briefly acquainted with American life as well as semitrained, they would probably be easy marks for Communist indoctrination. In thinking over this problem, let us not forget that experience hitherto is that investment in educating foreign students is by far the most valuable form of propaganda.

However, a joint resolution of Congress is necessary for such a diversion of funds; but we cannot imagine, in view of the congressional interest in China, that there will be any hesitation. This would be one way to recapture the goodwill in China that has been so freely frittered away along with American dollars in recent times.

Hawaii Prices

Nobody should be misled by the full page ads which damn labor and unions in the current waterfront strike here in Hawaii. People certainly are far from starving. Your "poignant" editorial on the subject was emotionally and factually overdrawn, to say the least. The "desperate plight" of Hawaiians can be traced to gouging merchants who seize the strike as another opportunity to hike already exorbitant prices.

A pair of shoes of a particular well known brand—to use a single example—cost $3.85 more in Honolulu than in San Francisco. The West Coast merchant pays higher rent and higher wages. Fifty cents would pay the freight over here, yet local merchants charge more than $3 over the West Coast price. The 'Frisco merchant is making a legitimate profit, so you can see what the Honolulu merchants are getting.

Other merchandise prices follow the same pattern. Sugar and pineapple (raised on the islands) sell for the same or higher price than on the mainland. Fruit and vegetables go to waste on some of the outlying islands instead of being brought to Honolulu where there is a great demand. Why? Possibly it is because more money can be made by shipping companies who prefer to bring such items over from the States—longer haul!

Federal and territorial workers receive a bonus or wage differential to cover the high cost of living here. Rents are in proportion to food and other living costs. Thus merchants, landlords, Government workers and others are receiving above parity, compared with State-side prices. And when the lowly stevedore attempts to seek a wage that is somewhere near parity with West Coast workers—he is damned as a Communist and accused of everything, from earthquakes to communism.

Fifteen thousand dollars was raised here in a few hours—to pay for those full page ads in an effort to break the strike. We have yet to see the same group who raised that $15,000 raise as much as 15 cents to rid Honolulu of its disease breeding slum districts! HETZIL A. KENTON.

McMillan's Letter

That the United States Senate, which recently passed the D. C. home rule bill, is actually a Communist-front organization has just been exposed by South Carolina Congressman John L. McMillan, who has perceived the fine hand of Comrade Joe Stalin in District suffrage activities. Representative McMillan's next obvious move is an expose of the Supreme Court as a result of its recent decision assuring District citizens of certain rights in the courts.

Washington, which led many of the States in war efforts and other national endeavors, should receive nothing less than a public apology from Representative McMillan for his vicious and unwarranted insult.

Girl Cadets

In answer to the June 27 letter from Mrs. B. G. McIlwee on dropping the girl cadets from the schools, I think the cadet corps is one of the finest things in the schools today. Their training has nothing to do with the boys whatsover. They are trained by women instructors and the finest. This training gives them poise, leadership, courtesy and prepares them for bigger and better things.

I urge every school to make the girl cadets bigger and stronger. My girl was a cadet all through high school and I know what it has done for her.

Barden Bill

I wish to go on record as opposed to the Barden bill which I feel is discriminating against millions of American children in nonpublic schools in our country. As an educator, I believe in the American way of life and in the equal rights and equal responsibilities of all Americans toward their country. If this country is to aid the children of the United States, it must aid all of the children or none of them.

EDWIN JAMES SCEERY,
Dean, the Robinson School.
West Hartford, Conn.

In all fairness it seems that any Federal aid to education should be available to each child on an equal basis. It is my own preference that any such aid be made available to each school child in the form of a credit, which credit shall be applied to the school of his parents' choice upon designation of that school in an application to be made by the parent. In the case of the children attending public schools, this credit would go to the State concerned; for others, to the school or school system concerned.

Subversive Textbooks

Despite all the furor about the invasion of "academic freedom" by a check-up on college textbooks, the fact remains that some textbooks now in use by schools and colleges contain subtle propaganda designed to influence immature minds; (1) to doubt the value of America's ideals, of its successful economic system, of the U. S. republican form of government so widely copied by other countries; (2) to question the authenticity of the U. S. history and the greatness of its outstanding leaders; (3) to minimize Christianity and its teachings.

At the same time "liberal" or "progressive" textbook writers cunningly glorify Marxist philosophy and fill inexperienced, juvenile intellects with roseate dreams of a Utopian socialism which never has succeeded in any country.

Certainly educational textbooks should be inspected by a trained, qualified, loyal, nonpolitical commission and any subversive contents should be given full factual publicity.

Mixed Audience

The picture in your June 27 issue of the rapt expressions of the "mixed audience" at Meridian Hill Theater exemplifies the old adage that a picture is worth a thousand words. It demonstrates that great drama knows no boundaries in its appeal, and should not, therefore, be withheld from those who wish to enjoy it.

Congress And The B-36 Investigation

In his June 20 column, "The Investigation Business," Walter Lippmann questioned the qualifications of the House Armed Services Committee to investigate and report upon certain aspects of the department of Government over which it was designed to be a watchdog. Specifically, he challenged the committee's qualifications to look into phases of the B-36 controversy which he sums up thusly:

"When a congressional committee sets itself up to determine the performance characteristics of a bomber and the roles and missions of the various armed forces in the unknown strategical situations of a hypothetical war, then surely it must be recognized that these investigating committees rush in where men with even a little wisdom fear to tread."

Now Mr. Lippmann himself pontificates periodically upon matters considerably more complex, profound and esoteric than "the performance characteristics of a bomber and the roles and missions of the various armed forces." He has even afforded the American public the benefit of his own cerebrations on the very two questions he considers too profound for consideration by a committee of Congress.

Mr. Lippmann derives the material for his essays from many sources, as do all reporters; from reading, of course, and from talking with experts who live with the matters in question. He conducts his own investigations and issues his own reports in the form of his newspaper column, his magazine articles and his speeches.

The House Armed Services Committee will make its investigation by means of a trained staff, by interviewing experts whose views will be recorded verbatim by stenographers, and from documents based upon long study and experience. Its report will be in the form of a conclusion from which any minority may dissent and present its own conclusions, accompanied by the transcript of the expert testimony.

This process Mr. Lippmann conceives to be an intrusion upon the time and energy of the experts who compile the information to be presented and then testify upon it before the committee.

Possibly he considers the time publicly employed experts must give him so that he may acquire material for his writings is spent more nearly in the public interest. Be that as it may, he is positive enough about the effect of giving such time to the investigating committee. He writes:

"The harm done by these intrusions into matters which cannot be determined by the votes of uninformed and untrained men is enormous."

How, I wonder, does Mr. Lippmann suspect that "uninformed and untrained men" acquire information and training except by the same process he employs in gathering information for his writings: asking questions of men who are informed and trained? And how does he believe members of Congress can be expected to vote with reasonable intelligence upon complex questions without the benefit of assistance from people qualified to supply assistance? Does he believe the Congress should ignore altogether matters beyond the normal day-to-day experience of its members?

The danger is not, as Mr. Lippmann fears, that the House Armed Services Committee will vote ignorantly or will consume too much time of public servants in an effort not to vote ignorantly. It is that it might permit the forthcoming investigation to become so entangled in personalities and politics that the fundamental and vital questions of doctrine and weapon will be lost sight of entirely.

Slowdown In Jobs

By Malvina Lindsay

People's Adjustment

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—Not until you get out of a capital city, either national or State, where employment is fairly stable, do you really sense the hovering presence of the returned specter—joblessness.

It stalks lightly as yet, but enough to make people uneasy. After about eight secure, self-confident years, they find it disturbing to hear of layoffs in textiles, retailing, at packing plants and factories or to learn that their neighbor, Mrs. Brown, no longer has part-time work in a nearby store. Their daughters, just out of school, find that even clerical work is tightening.

Nearly everywhere there is a feeling of slow-down. Landlords say it is getting harder to collect rents. Salesmen of houses are becoming the pursuers instead of the pursued. Railway stations again have the prewar spaciousness and calm that once seemed destined never to return.

A walk through a "crack" train reveals many empty roomettes and Pullman berths. Tourist camps aren't crowded—though it is now a little early for the vacation cavalcade. But frequently one hears that this or that family is "staying home this summer" or at most taking a two-day outing.

MOST PEOPLE seem to be getting along all right, but they realize change is in the air and it makes them cautious, even anxious. And occasionally the layoffs strike at their households. The mounting claims for unemployment compensation in many States further attest to job uncertainty.

No matter how small the present recession may be, it is warning that an era is ending. Days of looking for jobs in a sellers' market loom ahead.

But what if there should not be work? That is the specter haunting many families. It also troubles State officials. And it bobs up to cast an occasional shadow over a traveler's pride in the radiant stretches of June countryside and in cities surging with power and energy. Looking on this wealth, power and beauty, one thinks: Surely men will not again be hopelessly walking the streets for jobs!

Many State officials are trusting to their backlogs of public works to take care of the jobless. But there is growing feeling that more advance study of who may be jobless and why should be made at this time. Otherwise widespread joblessness might have to be met by a hurried, mass attack, as in the 1930s.

Some clew to the future problem may be obtained from the ranks of those now getting unemployment insurance. For these, predicts Robert T. Lansdale, New York State Commissioner of Public Welfare, are the people who will be chiefly eligible for whatever work relief is planned.

TWO PROBLEMS present themselves in relation to these people—their lack of varied skills, and their lack of living mobility. For instance, a man laid off at a certain factory might be able to find work in his vicinity if he could fit into another line of work. Or he might be able to pursue in some other locality the work he had been doing. But often there are aged parents, or a baby is on the way, or there are no funds for moving expenses. Hence he is tied to his surroundings.

Some of those studying the future job picture believe any public works program should be planned with relation to the human skills available. Hence they advocate surveys by States, through their unemployment insurance rolls, of what types of men and women are likely to be among the Nation's jobless. It is also possible that training for the jobless, and especially retraining for older workers, would help cut down the number of those futilely seeking work or resorting to public relief.

The inefficient worker, now among the first to go in layoffs, presents another special problem as he—or she—has not been trained in work habits. But even such persons might be made more employable.

The slowdown in business and jobs, which appears in the newspapers in terms of statistics, becomes very human when you come up against the anxieties and fears of those who have had layoffs or who fear them. The economic uncertainty they face now is something that will not be short-lived—barring another war boom. For that reason it needs a long-range human approach.

Segregation Solution

Segregation is a vital local problem, and as such rightfully demands an active stand by each of us. However, in taking any such stand, we must constantly bear in mind our responsibilities as Americans.

We know that peaceful and lasting solutions come only through open discussion and fair compromise—that harsh words, bitter feelings and ill-mannered actions only subtract a measure from our common bond as rational men.

And of critical importance, we realize that as Americans living together with common purpose, we owe equal respect to all, except in part to those who disqualify themselves by the abuse of our laws or the breach of common dignity.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Reminder For The Fourth

LOOKING back across the years, we in this great, rich powerful America find it hard to appreciate what a magnet for the rest of the world that other America was. Struggling, uncertain, poverty-stricken, the newborn Republic was nevertheless a beacon of promise.

Childs

At the age of 19 the Marquis de Lafayette made his way to this country in spite of many obstacles. He offered himself as an ordinary volunteer in Washington's army even though he had been assured of a high commission before he left France.

Kosciusko, the Pole, came to fight for freedom, giving up comfort and an assured position. So did other liberty-loving men from all over Europe. The blaze that had been lighted on this shore was seen a long way off.

That may well be the most important difference between the intellectual and emotional climate of that first July 4th and the anniversary we observe Monday. There are powerful and narrowly prejudiced men who would shut out the refugee, the seeker after freedom. They would close the door forever and hang up a sign saying, "Not wanted."

THESE narrow and suspicious men have blocked the displaced persons bill in the Senate. It is the most conspicuous single failure of the present Congress, and that is saying a lot.

Just a year ago both parties pledged in their platforms to admit a reasonable number of displaced persons under a just law that would not discriminate against religion or race. The Eightieth Congress had permitted other meanly prejudiced men to block the way.

Organizations representing millions of voters of every faith and creed have approved decent legislation. The pitiful plight of the refugees has been depicted over and over again.

Many of them, and especially those from the Baltic countries, are refugees from the tyranny of our day. They would not go back to their homes, now under Soviet Russian rule, even if they could be safe there. Devotion to the ideal of independence, freedom, personal integrity, is too deep-rooted. So still they wait in the fourth year after the end of the war for some place of refuge.

Every now and then the news tells of a perilous journey in search of freedom of a few of the bolder or more fortunate among these men and women who have lived so long in a kind of purgatory. They have managed in some miraculous fashion to make their way across the ocean in a small, unseaworthy boat, two or three families banded together against the worst that wind and wave can do.

THE OTHER day a group of Finns reached the United States in this manner. They had come in a small sloop that any sane seafaring man would have hesitated to take out into Chesapeake Bay for fear of a sudden summer squall.

It is profoundly moving that that still happens. It means that the hope and the promise of America still live in the hearts of those who have suffered oppression and misery.

You can, of course, be cynical about it. You can say that they are coming in search of the almighty dollar, for security, for the glamorous life portrayed by Hollywood.

That would be partly true. But it would be only part of the story. The right of the individual to work and to make his own way is definitely a phase of the American dream.

Recently in the New York Times, Henry Steele Commager, professor of history at Columbia University, reviewed those periods in our history when we have succumbed to something like the present jitters. It happened not long after the first Independence Day when nervous Tories enacted the alien and sedition laws. That fever passed, the laws were repealed and those who suffered from them were compensated.

Commager thinks the present attack of jitters is the worst we have ever suffered. He believes that the basic freedoms are endangered at the very moment when America is at the pinnacle of power and strength. At such a time it becomes the obligation of all Americans to stand up for the beliefs that have made this country a refuge from tyranny. This is a time when July 4 must mean more than just an outing at the beach or a long weekend in the mountains.

British Union Drops Plans For Rail Tieup

London, July 1 (AP).—Britain's railwaymen today called off a threatened slowdown in response to government arguments it would jam the vital exports program.

They yielded to pleas a tie-up would jeopardize the nation's economic security and decided to carry on their wage demands through mediation. The slowdown was scheduled to start Sunday midnight.

Leaders of the 460,000 union railmen asked Labor Minister George Isaacs to intervene between the union and government railway officials.

Some prospect appeared today for early settlement of the London dock strkie. Although the work stoppage spread to 7922 men and 87 ships, the general secretary of the powerful Transport and General Workers Union said new steps are being taken to get men back.

Legislature Demands New Korea Cabinet

Seoul, July 1 (NYHT).—The Korean National Assembly opened today with a warning by Chairman Shin Ick I to President Syngman Rhee that the legislature would postpone action on government measures until the cabinet is completely reformed.

He recalled resolutions of the last assembly calling for the resignation of President Rhee's cabinet, in which he said the people have no confidence.

Rhee asked for a supplementary budget bill to cooperate with the Economic Co-operation Administration, new tax bills and amendment of land reform.

President Rhee said the anti-Communist rider attached by Representative John Davis Lodge, (R., Conn.) to the Korean aid bill in the House of Representatives will strengthen the hands of the Korean government if it is passed by Congress.

He said Koreans never will accept a coalition with the Communists.

Chinese Issue Order to Sink In 'Closure'

Canton, China, July 1 (AP).—The Chinese Nationalist Cabinet tonight authorized its navy to sink ships resisting search in connection with Nationalist 'closure" of Communist-held ports.

This effort to tighten the "closure" followed an official reply to a United States note rejecting the closing order.

The reply said it was the Chinese government's "sovereign right" to close ports and expressed hope the U. S. would help in preventing "any untoward incident."

American Editor Says He's Held as Hostage

Shanghai, July 1 (U.P.).—Randall Gould, editor of the suspended American-owned newspaper, Evening Post anad Mercury, said tonight he was being held "hostage" in the American Asiatic Underwriters Building by workers who want him to resume publication.

Gould suspended the newspaper a week ago after a dispute with his employes over wages.

This morning Gould heard his wife scream when she answered the doorbell. They stopped a group of employes who were trying to force their way in.

The police persuaded the workmen to leave after Gould promised to negotiate with them.

Gould came downtown to negotiate. He reported tonight that scores of workers were taking turns in discussing the situation and refused to let him leave.

Like Cold Syrup

Berlin Rail Freight Gets Slow Start

Berlin, July 1 (AP).—The Berlin railway system started freight flowing today—like molasses in January.

The Russian rail management gave the go signal after a six weeks shutdown caused by a strike of non-Communist union men and then found they were too short of locomotives to do the job.

As a result, only four loaded western trains came into Berlin during the day and 12 empty ones left.

The Russians insist on using thing own locomotives to haul all trains through their zone.

Most of the 14,000 west Berlin anti-Communist workers who went on strike May 21 were back at their jobs with a guarantee of full pay in west marks.

The city's elevated passenger trains, all electric, started to hit normal efficiency toward sundown.

Outside the city and around the Potsdam area the shortage of Russian locomotives prevented movement of cars stalled all the way along the single track to the west zonal borders.

Highway travel between Berlin and the west was normal again today. The Russians were stopping only food trucks from their own zone, trying to choke off an illegal flow of food into the west sectors.

The city government debated an expected budget deficit of 321 million west marks ($96,300,000) without finding a solution to the imminent state of bankruptcy.

In a resolution they asked the western military governments for funds to help.

Western Berliners who work in the Soviet sector get paid only in the east mark ,which is invalid in the west.

The mliitary governors hinted Berlin can raise taxes to meet the deficit.

Austria Talks Run Into Snag On Minorities

London, July 1 (AP).—The Big Four treaty writers today hit a snag in their new try at drafting an independence pact for Austria.

They wrangled for three hours to no decision over a Russian demand for guarantees on the rights of minorities in Austria. Then they adjourned for the weekend.

The deputies of the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Britain, France and Russia were the targets, meanwhile, of a new blast over Marshal Tito's demands for territory and reparations.

Rights Are Problem

The Yugoslav Ambassador to London, Col. Obrad Ciemil, declared his country will not accept "the diktat" of the four-power Foreign Ministers Council to keep Austria's frontiers as they were in 1938 before Hitler moved in.

The Foreign Ministers at Paris had brushed off Tito's claims to Austrian lands.

The Foreign Ministers had announced that Austria should pledge certain rights to Austrian Slovenes and Croats, who have ethnological ties with the lower Balkans, including Yugoslavia.

Soviet Deputy Georgi Zarubin said the ministers—Russian Foreign Minister Vishinsky, anyway—intended they should write the guarantees in a kind of statute as part of the treaty.

British Are Silent

The Western deputies countered by contending Austria could guarantee those rights without specifying them.

Ambassador Ciemil denied a charge by Vishinsky that Yugoslavia tried to make a deal with Britain behind Russia's back in 1947 to satisfy Tito's demands on Austria.

Ciemil acknowldged that Yugoslav talks with Western diplomats took place then, but he said Russia knew about them.

The British Foreign Office kept silent on this.

Congress Gets Two Plans to Aid Poorer Areas of the World

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Acheson yesterday sent congressional leaders drafts of two bills giving the President sweeping powers to develop "economically underdeveloped areas of the world."

The bills put into legislative language the now-famous Point 4 of President Truman's inaugural address and his message to Congress a week ago.

One would enable the Government to send American technical experts to any part of the world; the other would let the Export-Import Bank guarantee private American investments abroad "against risks peculiar to such investments."

Committee Jammed

The House Foreign Affairs Committee is expected to open public hearings on the technical assistance bill soon, with Secretary Acheson as the first witness. The guarantee probably will be taken up by the House Banking and Currency Committee.

In any case, passage of the two bills is not expected at this session, for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has its calendar so jammed with other business it does not plan hearings on Point 4 before adjournment.

In sending the bills to Vice President Barkley and Speaker Rayburn, Acheson did not ask for immediate action. He described the drafts as "informal suggestions" rather than formal proposals.

"Such Necessary Sums"

Whereas the President's message last week asked for 45 million dollars for technical assistance, the draft bill on the subject simply asks for "such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act."

In the same way the guarantee bill puts no limit on the amount of private investment that might be insured, nor does it specify the kind of risk or the premium involved.

The technical assistance bill provides that the participation of the United Nations, the Organization of American States, "their related organizations and of any other international organization shall be sought wherever practicable."

It repeats also the President's assurance of last week that private agencies and individuals "shall be encouraged" to take part in the program.

Institute Suggested

It says the interchange of technical knowledge and skills "may include but need not be limited to economic, engineering, medical, educational and fiscal surveys, demonstration, training and similar projects that serve the purpose of promoting the development of economic resources and productive capacities of underdeveloped areas."

It contains one new idea: that the Secretary of State may establish an institute of international technical cooperation within the Department of State."

In line, however, with Mr. Truman's message of last week, the bill says the President may carry out the program "through the Secretary of State or through any other officer or official of the United States Government."

The bill provides also that American Government officials may be detailed to foreign governments under the technical assistance program, as they now are to Latin American governments, on condition that "such acceptance of office shall in no case involve the taking of an oath of allegiance to another government."

Ecuador First to Get New U. N. Aid Benefits

Lake Success, July 1 (U.P.).—Ecuador today became the first country to benefit from the expanded United Nations technical-aid program when a team of six experts was named to head a six-month economic-development mission to that country.

In Geneva, Switzerland, the governing body of the International Labor Organization today voted to include Germany in meetings and activities "of interest and concern" to that country.

It was the first time the Germans have been invited to any U. N. specialized body.

The ILO approved a program of technical assistance to underdeveloped countries in line with President Truman's recent recommendations.

U. S. Charges Russia Ignores Three Balkan Peace Treaties

The United States yesterday accused Russia of disregarding Balkan peace treaties.

A State Department note said the Soviets are trying to block action by the Western powers on charges of human rights violations in Communist-dominated Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

The charge was made in the latest of the long series of attacks by the Western powers on alleged denials of religious, political and other rights in the three countries.

The State Department announced the note was delivered to the Soviet embassy here Thursday. It accused Russia of disregarding peace treaty provsions by refusing to join with the U. S. and Britain in handling disputes which arise under the peace treaties.

On May 31 Britain and the United States invoked treaty clauses specifying that when disputes arise they shall be handled by ranking American, British and Russian diplomats in each of the Balkan capitals.

On June 11 Russia replied that no violations of peace treaties had occurred, that the Western powers were trying to meddle in the internal affairs of the countries and that the Russian government saw no reason for having the Big Three diplomats even dscuss the matter.

The American reply — Britain took the same position in a note Thursday—asked that the Russian government "reconsider its decision" and agree to the three-power talks in each of the Balkan capitals.

At Bendix Plant

5 Conferred 20 Hours to End Strike

By Robert S. Allen

Inside story of the settlement of the 10-week Bendix Aviation Corp. strike is a high tribute to the persistence and physical endurance of five men.

They are Air Secretary Stuart Symington; Assistant Secretary of Labor John Gibson; Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers; Malcolm Ferguson, president of Bendix, and Air Force Public Relations Director Stephen Leo.

It took this group 20 hours of continuous negotiations to work out the agreement. As a result of the long strike, both military and commercial aviation faced a serious situation due to lack of urgently needed replacement parts and devices.

The negotiations began last Monday at 2 p. m. and concluded Tuesday at 10:15 p. m. Throughout, the five men worked harmoniously but on a strictly business basis.

After one particularly difficult issue had been settled, Reuther exclaimed, "What amazes me is how people of good faith and good sense can get themselves into a situation as badly balled up as this one."

The other conferees heartily concurred.

Secretary Symington had a midnight lunch brought in. Looking the food over, Reuther remarked, "The Air Force feeds well."

"Yes," laughed Symington, "we've got to keep our strength up. The Air Force is always on the spot in one way or another."

Symington opened the joint conference.

"The Air Force is the customer in this situation," he said, "and we need the output of the Bendix plant in South Bend, Ind., very badly. The whole aviation industry is threatened with a tie-up if this strike continues. There is no reason why a fair and equitable agreement for all parties concerned cannot be worked out. That's what this conference is for and all we ask is that you earnestly endeavor to get this thing resolved. Regardless of how long it takes, please keep at it until a settlement is reached."

Twenty hours later, Symington's request was met and a settlement was concluded that ended the long shutdown.

D. C. Government Reports Saving

About one million dollars were saved by departments of the District government during the fiscal year which ended Thursday through failure to fill vacant positions on staffs or through savings on appropriation grants.

The budget office said detailed accounts of lapsed funds are being prepared by department heads for checking by Auditor A. R. Pilkerton.

Meanwhile, the million in anticipated savings has been applied toward the five million dollars necessary to pay the $330 retroactive pay raise. A request for the remaining four million was submitted by the budget office to the Bureau of the Budget on Thursday.

Truman to Let Missourians Run Primary

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman has adopted a hands-off policy in connection with the 1950 Democratic senatorial primary in his home State of Missouri.

That primary will determine what Democrat is to oppose the Republican incumbent, Senator Forrest C. Donnell. A dozen or so Missouri Democrats, it is reported, are eager to take on Donnell. Naturally, before throwing any hats in the ring, they would like to get a White House blessing.

Yesterday John J. Nangle of St. Louis, Democratic National Committeman for Missouri, called on Presidnt Truman to determine what his position was in the matter.

According to word that circulated in political circles afterward, Mr. Truman told Nangle that he preferred to leave it up to Missouri Democrats to pick the man most likely to defeat Donnell.

This hands-off policy, it is assumed, will apply to other States as well as Missouri when the 1950 primaries are run off.

Those who knew Mr. Truman when he was a United States Senator from Missouri say that he frowned on President Roosevelt's intervention in State party battles. They say he was especially opposed to the famous "purge" of 1938, when Mr. Roosevelt tried in vain to defeat members of his own party like Senators Tydings of Maryland and George of Georgia.

Nevertheless, President Truman launched a minor purge battle of his own in 1946. The results were not very happy.

At a White House news conference that year, Mr. Truman formally indorsed Enos A. Axtell, a former neighbor, for the Democratic nomination for the House seat of Missouri's Fifth Congressional District. The incumbent was Representative Roger C. Slaughter of Kansas City, a Democrat who had aroused Mr. Truman's ire by opposing New Deal measures.

If he's right, Mr. Truman said of Slaughter, I'm wrong.

He staked all the prestige of his high office on the outcome. Not only did he indorse Axtell, but he flew home and was on the scene when the primary election took place.

Axtell, backed by the Pendergast organization and the CIO, defeated Slaughter and drove him from political life.

The triumph, however, was an empty one. In November, thanks partly to the family quarrel among Kansas City Democrats, the House seat was won by the Republican nominee, Albert L. Reeves, jr., son of the Federal judge who has just tried the Judith Coplon case.

Acheson to Consult Senate Before Action on Red China

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Secretary of State Acheson has assured Senate foreign policy leaders they will be consulted before any decision is made on recognizing a Chinese Communist government.

State Department officials said yesterday word had been given Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that Acheson will consult fully with the committee on the recognition question when it arises.

There has been recent criticism from some Senators of Administration policy toward China. Twenty-one Senators sent President Truman a protest last week against establishing diplomatic relations with the expected Communist regime.

At the moment, State Department officials take the position there is no real issue, because the Chinese Communists have not yet formed a government.

But most diplomatic officials feel that if the Communists are going to run China this government should establish contacts with them and have trained observers in their country as it has done in the Communist nations of eastern Europe.

The American Government is understood to have urged two points in talks with other countries on future developments in China:

1. That when the recognition issue does arise the Western nations should act with a solid front and not be in haste individually to recognize the Communists.

2. That whatever trade is carried on with Communist China should exclude delivery of materials having military value.

This is the same trade policy which governs selling by the Western powers to Russia's eastern European satellites.

The department several years ago abandoned the practice of withholding contact with a foreign government because the United States disapproved of that government.

In recent years considerations governing a decision to grant recognition to a particular regime have been these—that it has effective control of its territory, popular support and willingness to live up to its country's international obligations.

Korea "Will Go" Without U. S. Aid, Acheson Warns

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, in publishing a report urging Congress to act promptly on the 150-million-dollar recovery plan for Korea, yesterday quoted Secretary Acheson as saying that Korea "will go in two or three months" unless the plan was adopted.

"If you do not take this step," warned Secretary Acheson, "it seems to me that it is a public declaration that we are not going to do anything in the Far East, and I think you will get a shiver of fear all through the Philippines, all through Southeast Asia, India, and all other parts of the Far East, which would be quite unjustified, because we are not taking that attitude toward those areas . . .

"With the approval of this program there is hope; without it, there is despair. In the light of present world conditions we cannot afford to risk return to despair."

Alexandria Baptists To Dedicate Church

The new $192,000 Baptist Temple Church at 700 Commonwealth ave., Alexandria, will be dedicated officially at 11 a. m. Sunday.

The red brick colonial building, first of three units planned, includes an auditorium, about 20 Sunday school rooms, a kitchen, a dining room and a social hall.

Guest preacher at the morning dedication service Sunday will be the Rev. Cecil H. Franks, pastor of Columbia Baptist Church, in Falls Church, whose topic will be "God's House."

The Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor, will preach a sermon titled "I Believe in a House," at 8 p. m.

The new building, for which ground was broken in the spring of 1947, will provide the congregation with its first permanent meeting place in over two years.

A fire in 1947 severely damaged the old King st. church, and services after that were held until last week in the Maury School.

Rising costs were only one of the difficulties encountered in construction of the church, according to Mr. Dodge.

Excavations for the structure disclosed a hidden underwater stream, about 12 feet down, and called for an extra $9000 worth of measures to protect the foundation. The stream will be a blessing, however, when the church's air conditioning system is eventually installed and it is harnessed as a free cooling system.

Church Bingo And Suppers Are Deplored

Church benefits to raise funds were deplored last night by a Seventh-day Adventist Church leader before an audience of 2000 persons in Takoma Park, Md.

Rebok

"Nowhere in the Holy Scripture do we find a command or entreaty for the conduct of rummage sales, chicken suppers, white elephant exchanges or bingo games to keep up the finances of the Christian church," said Elder Denton E. Rebok. He is president of the Adventist Theological Seminary, Takoma Park.

Speaking at the annual 10-day camp meeting of the SDA Potomac Conference, he said that "God has a plan of titles and free-will offerings," that, if followed, "fully meets all the costs of evangelism and church expenses."

"The great need today," he said, "is for members of churches to get their thinking straight in regard to the financing of the church."

The system of tithing, he explained, means more than merely giving for church purposes 10 per cent of the wage or profits.

"The real Christian enters into a partnership with God at his conversion; he recognizes God's ownership of himself and all that he has."

Seventh-day Adventists were admonished to "be faithful in tithes and offerings." The primary purpose of tithing in God's plan is not to raise money, the speaker urged, "but to build and enrich character." To become a steward means to accept responsibility, and to accept responsibility strengthens character, he said.

Approximately 24 million dollars in tithes came into the denomination's general treasury last year, he diisclosed. More than 15 million dollars was given by members for local church work and for the missions program overseas.

"If the 73 million professed Christians in the United States had given to the church on the same per capita basis as Adventists," he said, "there would have been available 10 billion dollars for the work of the church in the United States and other countries in the world."

Ministers and church press secretaries at the camp meeting representing 53 Adventist churches in the Washington area heard an afternoon talk by J. R. Ferren on good press relations. He is press relations director of the denomination.

He called upon churchmen to learn and follow newspaper procedure and to cooperate intelligently with the press. Newspaper editors, he said, are interested in "live stories" on religion and religious activity.

An educational rally, also held in the afternoon, was addressed by Dr. J. M. Howell, educational secretary of the Columbia Union Conference, which embraces eight States.

Today's speakers will include Elder Charles S. Longacre, religious liberty secretary of the General Conference; Elder L. R. Mansell, Roanoke, Va., pastor, and Miss Mary Walsh, Bible instructor of the Columbia Union Conference.

A preaching mission, featuring outstanding religious leaders from over the country, is also planned.

Mass visitation of the unchurched throughout the city will take place during March, 1950, with the aid of more than 5000 church volunteers, Dr. Reissig disclosed.

Home Rule Backers Lose Plush Chairs

You couldn't exactly say that the House jerked the rug from under Washington home-rule proponents.

But they did take away the chairs, black leather chairs with comfortably cushioned seats, that might have been occupied by home rule backers in a hearing set for next Thursday.

The chairs were taken yesterday from the District Committee room. They will be among the 440 occupied by House members when they meet again Tuesday in their temporary chamber, in the new House Office Building.

Fifty of the cushioned chairs were removed from the House District room, and they will be replaced by hard-seated folding chairs in time for the home-rule hearing. There's one compensation—the room will still be air-conditioned.

Other and more important chairs were moved yesterday, the 96 red leather seats of the Senators, from their regular chamber into the old Supreme Court room in the Capitol, where the Senate will meet for the rest of the session.

Moving day, in fact a weekend of moving, was brought about by plans to remodel the two chambers and replace their ancient roofs. The work is to start Tuesday.

Capitol Architect David Lynn said that nearly 100 persons would be at work this weekend to complete the necessary preparations for the two Houses to convene in their temporary quarters Tuesday.

Main change for House members will be noticeably more comfortable individual chairs. Their curving ranks of seats in the regular chamber are uncushioned.

Senators will have their customary individual chairs, but not their customary desks. Of the 96 desks, only six were moved, one for Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.), one for Minority Leader Kenneth Wherry (R., Nebr.) and two others for each party to be used by the handlers of whatever legislation is being worked on at the time.

Temporary press and radio galleries are being set up near each tempoarry chamber.

Cafeteria hours in the New House Office Building are being lengthened one hour—they will be 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. instead of 8 a. m. to 3 p. m. Other Capitol restaurants will continue present schedules.

In Turkey

4 From U. S. To Search for Noah's Ark

Istanbul, Turkey, July 1 (AP).—Four Americans arrived today to start searching for Noah's Ark.

But whether they'll ever get to Mount Arrat, Biblical landing place place of the Ark, remains to be seen. Mount Ararat looks down on Russia from a point in eastern Turkey.

The Russians think anyone seeking to find the Ark is a spy. The Turks have heeded the Soviet opinion to the point of preventing two British explorers from probing around the 16,000-foot peak.

The Americans said their climbing equipment is en route to Turkey by boat and they don't know when they'll start out.

No one else does either—except the Turkish Foreign Office and the army high command.

To reach Ararat they'd have to cross highly fortified military zones which the general staff guards with great secrecy.

The U. S. explorers are: Dr. Aaron J. Smith of Greensboro, N. C.; Edmond J. Newton, of Colfax, N. C.; Walter I. Wood, of Sea Cliff, N. Y.; and W. G. Ogg, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Smith told newsmen: "Russia is Turkey's biggest enemy and the United States' also. Even if the Turkish government grants us permission the Russians will do all they can to sabotage our plans. We believe they will not hesitate to kill us. We believe with all our soul the Ark is there."

They will go to Ankara next week and begin negotiations to travel.

The petrified remains of an object which peasants insist resembles a ship reportedly was found two thirds of the way up the peak when usually warm weather thawed an ancient snow mantle.

have to come from Congress. We don't have money enough here to participate in any such type of construction program.

"However, Congress, in the Federal Aid Act of 1948, directed the Public Roads Administration to prepare such a plan for highways across the country for national defense. The report, including this estimate for the District, is PRA's answer to Congress' orders for plans and estimates."

The entire estimate as laid before Congress by PRA would cost 11¼ billion dollars. PRA urged that the 37,800-mile trunk system be completed within 20 years and said that the present construction rate should be stepped up seven times.

It recommended also the stockpiling of enough highway and bridge materials for a continuous six-month reserve against the possibility of war or a major peacetime disaster.

Hedgecock said he believes the PRA plan as outlined in the first report will be discussed in detail before committees of Congress in the near future.

A breakdown of the program by States made public yesterday showed that it contemplated expenditures in Maryland of $140,493,484 for 219.8 miles of rural roads and $30,431,000 for 45.7 miles of urban highways.

Virginia, under the proposal, would get $170,536,000 for 844.6 miles of rural roads and $36,773,000 for 57.1 miles of urban highways.

Chicago Woman Wins $14,900 Video Jackpot

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Mrs. Marian McFall, 33, $2700 a year Government clerk-typist, last night won the $14,900 jackpot on the "Stop the Music" television program.

Mrs. McFall, of Cicero, correctly guessed one tune as "Tip Toe Through the Tulips" and then the jackpot winner, "Jefferson and Liberty." She saw the answer, she said, in a Chicago newspaper.

Guild Re-Elects Martin, Novak; Meets Here in '50

Columbus, Ohio, July 1 (AP).—The sixteenth annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild today reelected Harry Martin of Memphis, Tenn., president, and Ralph B. Novak of Detroit, secretary-treasurer.

They weer chosen by acclamation to serve another two-year term beginning next November 1. The convention ended today. Next year's convention is to be in Washington.

Other national guild officers are to be chosen by referendum late this summer. The balloting will determine the executive vice presidency, five regional vice presidencies and five vice presidencies at large.

Nominated for vice president in the newly constituted Region 2 was Philip Price of Washington, D. C., reelected by acclamation. (He was the only nominee.)

Nominees for the five vice presidencies at large include Dillard Stokes of Washington, D. C.

Curb Klan or Resign, Guild Tells Officials

Columbus, Ohio, July 1 (U.P.).—The American Newspaper Guild (CIO) today called on law enforcement officials to curb the Ku Klux Klan or get out of office.

The 20 delegates to the national guild convention here adopted without a dissenting vote a resolution sponsored by Southern delegates calling for an end to the Klan. The resolution branded Klansmen as "criminals."

Reciprocity In Action

GAVEL CHANGES—Barse Stonebraker (left), newly elected president of the Reciprocity Club, receives the gavel from Donald Gray, retiring president. Installation of officers yesterday started the club off on its 29th year. Other new officers are Jasper Moore, first vice president; Lloyd Ankeny, second vice president; Duncan Brooks, corresponding secretary; Robert H. Murphy, recording secretary, and William Holtman, sergeant at arms was 324,900, compared with 342,365 in May.

The volume of continued claims—those on the insurance payment rolls for a week or more—declined slightly; from 2,050,196 in May to 2,046,380 in June.

"June was the first month this year in which the average weekly number of claims did not show an increase over the previous month," Goodwin said.

"The peak of continued claims this year was reached in the week ending June 11, when 2,107,979 claims were filed. Claims postponed, due to the Memorial Day holiday, made up much of that increase."

Some of the drop in the number of those drawing unemployment benefits may have been due, Goodwin said, to unemployed workers who have exhausted their benefits.

Average of 18.9 Weeks

"In the first quarter of this year," Goodwin said, "368,893 workers had exhausted their benefits. These had drawn benefits for an average of 18.9 weeks."

Goodwin pointed out that the areas of unemployment are somewhat changed from earlier this year.

"The situation generally is more serious in New England than in the rest of the country," Goodwin said. "In Rhode Island, for example, insured unemployment was 22.1 per cent of covered employment. Other States with a percentage of 10 or more were New Hampshire, 12.6; Maine, 11.3, and Massachusetts, 10.6.

"California had the next higher percentage, 9.8. South Carolina, with a percentage of 8.5 was the only other State with more than 8 per cent. North and South Dakota had the lowest percentage, 0.7 per cent."

Of the almost one million more employed in June than in May, the Census Bureau reported, 722,000 were on farms, and about 200,000 in industry.

World Production Off First Time Since War

Lake Success, July 1 (AP).—The U. N. Bulletin of Statistics reported today the first quarterly decline in world industrial production since the end of World War II.

Until the first quarter of 1949 the monthly publication said, world production had shown an uninterrupted increase. The output for the first three months of this year, however, was 1.4 per cent below the figure for the last quarter of 1948.

The bulletin, prepared by U. N. economists, attributed the drop primarily to a leveling off of production in the United States.

New Beatings Are Reported In Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., July 1 (AP).—A county grand jury today began investigating violence by hooded and robed bands, delving first into the invasion of a cafe by 60 white-sheeted men.

Three more Alabama floggings were reported as the inquiry got under way. In addition, two State investigators reported the disruption of what apparently was a Ku Klux Klan meeting near Lineville, Clay County.

The investigators, V. J. Kitchen and Ed Pepper, visited a building formerly used as a school and found 25 to 30 cars parked nearby. Windows of the building were covered with white cloth and the door was locked.

The two officers returned to Ashland for reinforcements. When they got back, the building was empty and the cars gone.

Ministers Report Floggings

The officers were sent there after two Methodist ministers, the Rev. H. Frank Ledford and the Rev. Luther Brown, said they verified three floggings in recent weeks there.

Circuit Judge Robert J. Wheeler charged the grand jury to "get to the bottom of riotous, venomous and malicious acts" of night-riders in this district.

More than 50 witnesses have been summoned by the jury.

In the cafe invasion, on June 10, Steve Marshler, proprieter, was told "We've got to keep those Negroes down."

Marshler's cafe served both Negroes and whites, but in separate parts of the building. A cross was burned near the cafe.

A fourth Clay County flogging case was uncovered today. John Henry McCullers, Negro father of six, said he was beaten senseless by hooded men. They accused him of going with a woman other than his wife.

Another Clay County flogging involved Young Buney, 36, water truck driver for the City of Lineville. He said he was seized at his home the night of June 1, taken into the woods and beaten with a leather strap.

Buney said the masked men asked him if he was "in favor of the legislation." He said he told them he didn't know what they were talking about.

The State Legislature this week completed action on a law banning public use of masks and hoods.

'Bama Segregation Law Jails 2 Teen-Age Jersey Negroes

Montgomery, Ala., July 1 (U.P.).—A teen-aged Negro brother and sister were on their way home to Newark, N. J., today after their admitted ignorance of Alabama's segregation laws landed them in the juvenile detention home for two days.

Marshall Johnson, 15, and his sister, Edwina Johnson, 16, were placed on probation yesterday by Judge Wiley C. Hill, jr.

The boy and girl said they arrived here Tuesday with their father, Ed Johnson, 43, after attending their grandfather's funeral in Georgia. It was the first time the children had visited the South.

They said they boarded a city bus "to see the town" about 15 minutes after their arrival, and sat in the white section.

The pair was ordered off the bus and arrested.

"These are the kind of things that cause trouble," Judge Hill told them, "I don't know the law where you come from and I don't care. That's the law in Alabama. It's a good law and I'm in favor of it."

"What you do in New Jersey is your business," he continued. "What you do in Alabama is Alabama's business."

He said he was granting probation because he felt the children realized their mistake. He said he was empowered to commit them to the State reform school until they were 21.

Compromise on Segregation purchased with Capper-Cramton Act funds actually were within Federal jurisdiction. Interior would withdraw this claim as part of the settlement.

Last April, in response to pressure by the Interior Department, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission removed all racial designations from its recreation system map, which had been used as a guide by the Recreation Board.

The board earlier had complied with Interior orders to end segregation at tennis courts controlled by the department. It also offered to continue Interior's nonsegregation policy on public golf links in return for a chance to operate the links. Last month a formal statement of board policy favored a gradual abolition of segregation on playgrounds. The board also set up two experimental interracial play areas for the summer.

The issue was joined again last week when the segregation policy of the Recreation Board and the nonsegregation policy of the Interior Department came in conflict at the six GSI-operated swimming pools.

To avoid trouble, the Recreation Board gave up its free swimming and instruction program at the McKinley pool when incidents of interracial swimming were reported.

The Interior Department itself closed the Anacostia swimming pool after a series of racial disturbances which culminated Wednesday with arrest of six persons and injury to four others.

The conference between Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug, Wender, the Commissioners and other Interior and Recreation officials yesterday was the direct result of this latest development.

Following the conference, an Interior spokesman said the Anacostia pool will remain closed until the agreement has been approved by the Recreation Board.

Boy, 13, Drives Off, Dismantles Tractor

Van Nuys, Calif., July 1 (U.P.).—Electrician Lorin C. Kemp notified police today his tractor was missing from a field where he parked it when not in use.

Officers started a search and located what had been the tractor, but it was entirely dismantled. They also found a 13-year-old boy with a fondness for tinkering with machinery.

"Yep," the lad said, "I took it apart. I dunno why but it was fun."

Lake Speeder Charged In Girl's Mutilation

Sacramento, July 1 (U.P.).—The Federal Government today charged Phillip Davis with reckless operation of his speedboat in the Lake Tahoe accident that cost 13-year-old Imogene Wittsche her feet.

The wealthy Oakland automobile dealer faces a maximum of a year in jail and a $2000 fine if found guilty.

U. S. Retires 6 With 200 Yrs. Total Service

With an even aggregate of 200 years of public service six employes of the Federal Government were retired yesterday.

Heading the list of veterans was Woolsey W. Hall of 1330 Wallach pl. nw., with 46 years behind him as a Treasury Department worker.

Trailing Woolsey in second place was Albert B. Nichols of 225 Emerson st. nw., architectural engineer, with 36 years in Government employment, most of which were in Treasury.

In third place on the length of service list was Miss Ella E. White, of 1228 I st. nw., with 31 years in the office of the Chief of Engineers, Department of the Army.

Pressing close for service honors was William W. Dean, of 3391 Stephenson pl. nw., with 30 years as a fire prevention engineer, also with the Department of the Army.

Fifth in service honors was Frederick W. Jones, of 1830 17th st. nw., architect, with nearly 30 years in the Army's engineer office.

The sixth to retire, Frederick J. Ritter, of 5236 42d st. nw., served the Army Department for 27 years as an engineer.

Nichols plans to move to Cleveland, N. Y., and build a home, while Miss White expects to live with a sister in Canton, Mass. The others, they said, would remain in Washington, scene of their labors.

76% of Britons Favor School Sex Education

London, July 1 (U.P.).—Seventy-six per cent of Britons approve sex education in schools, a private survey showed today.

One woman, a midwife, was quoted as saying that at 26 she was still ignorant of sex.

"Even when I started my midwifery training, I never thought fathers had anything to do wth it," she said.

Fleet Admiral Has 'Breakdown'

ADM. ERNEST J. KING

In Portsmouth for rest

Portsmouth, N. H., July 1 (AP).—Admiral Ernest J. King, wartime Chief of Naval Operations, arrived by plane today for a summer-long rest at Portsmouth Naval Hospital.

Rear Admiral John H. Brown, jr., Portsmouth Naval Base commandant, said he would be at the hospital "at least for the summer." King was accompanied by John L. Sullivan, former Secretary of the Navy.

A Navy spokesman said there has been no change in the physical condition of the 71-year-old admiral who, he said, suffered what was described as "a minor breakdown" 18 months ago.

Nats Lose to Yanks, 5-4, on Keller's Pinch Triple

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE GUY with the tournament's hottest putter, Al Smith from out of Winston Salem, N. C., showed up with a 64 at the end of the first round yesterday in the Washington Star open at Prince Georges. He was showing up, as well, the tournament favorites.

He wasn't supposed to be in front at any point in the tournament, this 5-foot-7 33-year-old who had never won anything of importance. But he went out in 33, back in 31, carving eight strokes from par with the trusty blade he was whipping out on the putting greens.

POVICH

On No. 9, he dropped one from 30 feet for his birdie there. On 10, he eagled it with another 15-footer in the can. His putter was smoking. He lapsed to two putts on eight of the greens. On the other 10, he one-putted; that added up to a mere 26 putts for the 18 holes, and now they have him to catch.

You look far down before you can find Smith's name among the 25 leading money leaders on the pro tournament circuit. In fact you look for the last name. But yesterday was not a good day for the top money men.

'Twas neither Snead nor Mangrum nor Middlecoff who gave the gallery its show yesterday. On the day that Snead and Middlecoff posted a pair of neat 69s, they were overshadowed. Smith with his putting, big Skip Alexander with his screaming woods had the galleries buzzing.

Until Alexander slumped to a 36 on the back nine after an outgoing 30 that tied the course record, the first round was looking like a unanimous triumph for the golfing sons of North Carolina with a glowing chance to tie Smith's 64, perhaps eclipse it. Alexander lost control of his sharp game and wound up in third place behind the veteran Ky Laffoon's 65.

But on that first nine, the bulky Alexander was something to see with his powerful swats that must have inspired the duffers to take their own sticks to the nearest pawn shop and find a new hobby. The guy was doing incredible things off the tee, and it was a prime case for the antivivisectionists as he proceeded to take the course apart.

ALEXANDER STEPPED up to the 315-yard first hole and all but drove it to get his 3. He was only warming up for his effort from the second tee. From there he whipped into the ball with the green 323 yards distant and overdrove it, but got his second birdie in a row.

The 400-yard third hole required only a drive and a wedge shot for Alexander. On the par 5 fourth, he played his second with a seven. On the 6th, a 354-yarder, for his second shot he whipped out his putter, no kidding. I wouldn't say it if it weren't true. That's what he did.

Word of Alexander's sensationalism was spreading, and a bigger gallery began to accrue. On the 433-yard eighth, and the 445-yard ninth, he was on the green with drives and eight irons. He barely missed a 20-foot putt for an outgoing 29 that would have tied Ed Furgol's course record.

ALEXANDER was shooting golf in the best tradition of Skip Alexander at Prince Georges. Never in the three years of the tournament has he soared out of the sixties. His average for the nine rounds at the local course is 67 2/3 strokes. Never has he finished worse than second. Last year he won it.

There's nothing wrong with Alexander's game that the Prince Georges course can't cure, apparently. He hadn't won a tournament since his triumph there in May, 1948. Couldn't make the list of the 25 leading money winners this year. He was sort of frantic coming up to this one. Asked his fellow pros what was wrong with his game, solicited their help.

A dozen guys tried to help Alexander iron out his faults, but it was no dice until he stepped up once again to the first tee at Prince Georges. He was grinning happily at the finish despite his failure to catch up with Smith's 64. "I'd like to package this course and take it around the tournament circuit with me," he said. "How do you crate a golf course?"

Smith's 64 Leads Open; Middlecoff, Snead at 69

By Bus Ham
Post Sports Editor

A little guy from Winston-Salem, N. C., who is little known but has the crowd-appealing name of Al Smith, spanked a golf ball around the Prince Georges country Club course yesterday in 64 strokes.

At the end of a long day on which 114 players took turns at par, Smith's 8-under-par score held the lead by one shot for the first 18 holes of the third annual National Capital Open tournament, sponsored by the Evening Star.

Ky Laffoon, a graying veteran of the professional trail and a part Cherokee Indian from Oklahoma, surprised his old cronies by coming in with 65 to almost catch Smith, who had posted his 64 early in the afternoon.

Skip Alexander, friendly, bespectacled big fellow from Mid Pines, N. C., who tied for second in this tournament in 1947 and won it last year, shot 30, six under par, on the first nine, and had a chance to pass Smith and Laffoon but wound up with 66.

Snead-Middlecoff Post 69s

Virginian Sammy Snead, currently reigning as Mr. Golf, and Cary Middlecoff, National Open champion from Memphis, had 69 each, three under par, but weren't exactly proud of their scores.

Lloyd Mangrum, well-dressed Chicagoan, 1947 tournament winner and rated with Snead and Middlecoff as the big three, probably was the unhappiest man on the course with a 74, two above par.

The Prince Georges course, measuring 6892 yards, was in such excellent condition that a round of par was no trick at all for the best players in the business.

The fairways were close-cropped, hard and the ball got a lot of roll. The par 5's weer consistently played with a drive and an iron. The greens were almost perfect and putts ran into the holes all over the lot as 38 of the starting field beat par 72.

Smith, the little guy with the pace-setting 64, said he was "shooting this one for my 4-week-old baby."

Smitty, as the boys call him at the Old Town Golf Club at Winston-Salem, where he is playing pro, is no physical giant. He stands only 5 feet 7 inches and weight 165 pounds, but he had a champion's stuff yesterday.

He was out in 33, three under par, which wasn't so startling for the front side is pretty easy. But he shot the far tougher backside in 31, five under and the day's best performance on that nine.

Smith had a chance to tie or beat the course and tournament record of 63, held by Ed Furgol. Pontiac, Mich., as he went to the 16th hole, an easy par 5 of 516 yards.

But he missed a five-foot putt for a birdie—one of the few putts that failed to drop for him as he

Harris Sets Up Rally By Walking 3 In Last Inning

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Stilled for eight innings, the New York Yankees committed assault on the pitching part of the Nats' battery last night, scoring four runs in the ninth to cart away a 5-4 victory.

From off of the bench of the league leaders came three pinch-hitters to bat them to a triumph which their regulars, including Joe (The Pro) DiMaggio, had been unable to do.

Mickey Harris, three outs away from a spectacular six-hit, 4-1 triumph, set the stage for the sad climax by walking the first three men he faced in the Yanks' last stand.

In one, two, three order, Pinch-hitters Gene Woodling rapped a one-run single; Yogi Berra the same, and Charlie Keller a two-run triple, which gave the Yankees the opener of a three-game series.

Explosive Finish

The explosive finish was quite in keeping with other events of the evening which included:

(a) Spectacular fielding plays by Sam Dente and Tommy Henrich;

(b) A two-run homer by Eddie Robinson to propel the Nats into a 4-1 lead;

(c) The banishment of Manager Joe Kuhel after a violent and stormy argument with Plate Umpire of Joe Paparella.

Harris, displaying form he hadn't shown since his big year with the Red Sox three seasons ago, was the darling of the 20,790 fans entering the stretch inning, but he soon won their disfavor and his first relief pitcher, Dick Welteroth, followed and lost the ball game.

Harris walked DiMaggio, Billy Johnson and Johnny Lindell before Acting Manager Clyde Milan ambled out to the mound and ordered Welteroth into the game.

Keller Comes Through

Rookie Woodling greeted him with a single which scored DiMaggio, but when Johnson also tried to come he was cut down at the plate. Yogi Berra followed with another single to score Lindell and reduce the Nats' lead to 4-3.

Up strolled the menacing Charlie Keller, a left-handed batter to face the right-handed Welteroth. The Nats matched this strategy by calling on Rookie Lloyd Hittle and the maneuver was disastrous.

Keller laced a 2-2 pitch into the remote recesses of right field for a triple to score Woodling and Berra and give the Yanks the 5-4 lead that Joe Page protected for them in the ninth inning.

The only other Yankee run until the violent ninth came in the fourth inning when they used three of their nine hits to move into a temporary 1-0 lead.

Ed Lopat, Yankee starter, lost the advantage in the Nats' half of the same inning when three infield hits and an error by Catcher Charlie Silvera enabled the Nats to tie the score.

Vollmer Scores on Foul Fly

With Clyde Vollmer, who got two hits and scored three hits, on second, Al Kozar singled off Shortstop Jerry Coleman's glove. Vollmer slid into home and was out, but Silvera dropped the ball, and the Nats tied the game.

The Nats made it 2-1 off Lopat in the sixth and they did it the

Giants Beat Newcombe, Dodgers, 4-1

New York, July 1 (AP).—The New York Giants made the most of three hits in the eighth inning—a double and a pair of singles—to notch three runs and beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-1, today.

Both teams made eight hits, but the Brooks could bunch as many as three in only one inning, the third, in which they scored their run.

Don Newcombe, seeing his sixth victory was chased in the eighth, and replaced by Jack Banta. The defeat was charged to Newcombe, his second of the campaign.

.502 Hitter Tells How It's Done: "Battle With Pitchers'

Portland, Me., July 1 (AP).—After 60 New England League games Bob Montag of the Pawtucket (R. I.) Slaters, is hitting .502. How does he do it?

The husky right-fielder from Cincinnati, Ohio, says "it's a constant mental battle with the pitchers."

For example:

"When the pitcher gets a strike on me, I spread right out in the box. They think I'm expecting a curve, but I want to see that fast one.

"Another time I'll fall away from a fast curve. If the pitcher throws it again, I'm set to break it to pieces."

Mike Uline Meets With Feerick, Bones Tuesday

Owner Mike Uline will sit down Tuesday with Bob Feerick and Bones McKinney and try to iron out the problems of who will coach his Washington Capitols next season.

Both Feerick and McKinney want the job and have been mentioned as successors to the resigned Red Auerback, but Bones has said on one occasion he wouldn't play for the Caps if Feerick was named coach.

In his announcement yesterday about the Tuesday meeting Uline said that he had been approached by outside coaches but favored either Feerick or McKinney "if arrangements can be made." Tuesday he'll have a try at those arrangements.

Rizzuto Suffers Mild Concussion

New York, July 1 (AP).—Phil Rizzuto, New York Yankee shortstop, suffered a mild concussion in a spill at Boston but will rejoin his teammates in Washington tomorrow, Dr. Sydney Gaynor said today.

Rizzuto was upset by John Pesky of the Red Sox in Tuesday night's game while trying to complete a double play. He landed on his temple and was knocked unconscious.

In yesterday's game he was forced to leave in the first inning when his right arm began to tremble. He came here for an examination which disclosed the concussion.

Braves Beat In 12th, 2 to 1

Boston, July 1 (AP).—Righthander Vern Bickford scored the winning run in the twelfth inning, on Al Dark's single, as the Boston Braves broke their third-place tie with the Phillies with a 2-1 victory tonight before a 17,058 crowd.

To gain his tenth win, Bickford lined a single to left field with one down in the twelfth and took third on Eddie Stanky's drive into right.

Cubs Beat Pittsburgh By 6 to 5

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs parlayed Hank Sauer's hitting, including his eleventh homer, and Bob Muncrief's able relief pitching into a 6-5 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates today.

The triumph left the last-place Cubs only one game behind the seventh spot Bucs.

Dutch Leonard was belted from the mound by a three-run Buc rally in the fourth for a 4-3 lead.

hard way. Vollmer again launched the rally with his second single and moved to third as Lopat walked Robinson and Kozar.

Christman lifted a high foul near the Nats' dugout and Henrich reached into the dugout, caught the ball, falling, stomach first into the bat rack as he did. With Henrich, the breath knocked out of him, picking himself up, Vollmer tagged up and scored. After a brief rest, Henrich resumed action.

Robinson increased the Nats' lead to 4-1 in the eighth with his tenth homer of the year, a rifle shot over the right field fence. It also scored Vollmer, who was on first on Coleman's error.

Kuhel Chased in Seventh

The banishment of Kuhel came in the seventh inning when the Yankees were threatening to unseat Harris from his 2-1 lead. They had Lindell on third by virtue of his double and a long fly by Bauer. Kuhel then ordered Silvera, who represented the winning run, intentionally walked and the Yankees ordered in Pinch Hitter Jack Phillips.

Trying to stall to allow Fred Sanford more time to complete his warmup, Lindell called time and went into the dugout. Kuhel screamed and articulately protested and was thumbed by Paparella.

The excitement wasn't completely over yet. Harris took a full wind up and Silvera went to second. Then Phillips shot a grounder over second which was a hit in anybody's book, but Dente dived for the ball, came up with it and threw Phillips out at first, saving Harris two runs—at the time.

With two out in the ninth and GH Coan on second, Page fanned Eddie Robinson to kill the Nats' last hope.

Rivals Hurl No-Hitters

The Washington Capitals won their tenth straight game yesterday by defeating Fort McNair, 2-1, at the Army War College. Both Hugh Waln, pitching for the Capitals, and Bill Polinowski, pitching for McNair, hurled no-hit games. The runs made by the teams were scored on errors.

Gonzales, Parker Win In Doubles

London, July 1 (AP).—Ted Schroeder won the Wimbledon tennis championship today by putting together two great passing shots that stopped Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia in a five-set final.

This double-barreled maneuver in the seventh game of the fifth set enabled the top-seeded favorite from La Crescenta, Calif., to complete his initial conquest of the men's singles title, 3—6, 6—0, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4.

It cracked Drobny's service and broke up a match that had stood dead level at two sets and three games each with the points at 30-all.

Schroeder then held his own delivery in the eighth game, dropped the ninth, and ran out the match by serving a love game before a packed house of 17,000, including four members of the royal family.

The 27-year-old Californian, who started the tournament on June 20 as a 7-4 favorite, justified the short odds by rising always to the necessary heights.

As in previous matches, Ted came up with the right shots at the right time. The first of the two which broke Drobny's heart was a blistering cross-court backhand, hit on the run. The second was a backhand down the sideline.

Until that critical moment the match belonged to anyone. Both played forcing games with volleys and smashes that nipped rallies at the outset.

Dowager Queen Mary, Princess Margaret, the Duke of Edinburg and the Duchess of Kent saw the match, played in steaming heat.

The duchess, sister-in-law of the King, came down on the court from the royal box to present the victor's trophy to Schroeder.

All-American finals tomorrow in both men's and women's doubles, as well as women's singles, were assured by the outcome of semifinal matches today.

United States Champion Richard Gonzales and Frankie Parker, both of Los Angeles, defeated Eric Sturgess and Budge Patty of Los Angeles, 6—3, 6—1, 3—6, 5—7, 7—5, and will meet Schoeder and Mulloy for the men's doubles title. The latter pair gained the final round Thursday.

In the women's doubles final it will be Louise Brough of Beverly Hills and Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont of Bellevue, Del., against Gertrude Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., and Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif.

Miss Brough and Mrs. Dupont drubbed the British team of Joy Gannon and Mrs. Betty Hilton, 6—2, 6—2. Defending doubles champs, the winners also will meet in the singles final for the title won last year by Miss Brough.

Miss Moran and Mrs. Todd turned back another American combination, Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany of Boston, 6—0, 7—5.

Miss Brough also will go after the mixed doubles title tomorrow with her partner, John Bromwich of Australia. They gained the final by whipping the Australian team of George Worthington and Mrs. Thelma Long, 6—1, 6—2.

Their opponents will be the South African combination of Eric Sturgess and Mrs. Sheila Summers, who eliminated Mrs. DuPont and Billy Sidwell, 6—4, 7—9, 6—3, in the last semifinal today.

Robinson on All-Star Team

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—The National and American League starting lineups for the All-Star Game July 12, picked by vote of 4,637,743 fans, were announced today.

The starting teams must be used for at least the first three innings of the game at Ebbets Field.

The Chicago Tribune, which conducted the poll, said the heavy vote was a record and exceeded by 529,850 the figure last year, when the game was played at St. Louis.

Lou Boudreau, manager of the World Champion Cleveland Indians, and Billy Southworth, who directs the Boston Braves, National League champs, will direct the respective All-Star teams and will pick the pitchers.

The American Leaguers represent six clubs and the National League five. The Indians, although world champions, and the St. Louis Browns failed to land players on the American League starting teams. The Braves, with the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds, also failed to land representatives

Bill Bennings

AT CHARLES TOWN.

Dear Folks:

Three-year-olds will have their innings in the Harpers Ferry Purse, featuring the weekend program. The race is at 6½ furlongs and E. A. Nicodemus' Wayfern is the likely favorite. Apprentice M. J. Knapp is beginning to make good with a bang. He has taken on a lot of polish since he arrived here. Apprentice Mike Mafale, who rode 16 winners on mile tracks last year, is trying to shake off a jinx that seems to keep him out of the winners' circle. He claimed a foul after finishing second in the fourth race today but officials failed to see it his way. Jockey J. R. Hill, who has been dividing his time between here and Delaware Park, reports the 3-year-old Speaker went lame after leaving this tarck, which accounts for his recent inactivity.

Laffoon, trying out a new set of clubs, fell in love with the par 3 holes. Of the four, he birdied three and was the only man in the tournament with three 2s on his card. He made four putts of more than 25 feet, had seven birdies and 11 pars.

Alexander, an established favorite in this tournament because of his fine play the past two years, drew the day's biggest gallery late in the afternoon as word spread that he "might break the course record.

Easy-going Skip was out in 30, six under par. He actually was six under for the first six holes as he sank birdies on the first, second, fifth and sixth and holed an eagle 3 on the fourth, a par 5 of only 485 yards.

Alexander became seven under with another birdie at the tenth but he got into trouble in the woods several times thereafter. He lost a stroke on the fifteenth when his second went across the green far into the trees, and he finished up the back nine with even par 36 for his 66.

Snead and Middlecoff had one of those days on which their putts simply were not dropping. Snead couldn't get his first putt up to the hole, used 32 for the round, while Middlecoff, hitting almost every green, took 34 putts.

Mangrum hit a ball out of bounds on the first hole, an easy par 4 of 315 yards, took a 6, and never settled down to his best game.

Three shots off the pace at 67 were Ted Neist, who comes from Walla Walla, Wash.; E. J. Harrison, Richmond, and Herman Keiser, Akron, Ohio.

There were so many scores at 68, 69, 70 and 71 that the young man who posts the scores in the press room, ran out of space and had to write some of them at the bottom of the board, including that of the National Open champion, Middlecoff.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Wheat took a good deal of hedging pressure without giving ground on the Board of Trade today. Final prices were mostly fractionally higher, although the relatively less active March contract got up more than a cent.

A pessimistic crop report by the Santa Fe Railway encouraged enough buying to absorb the hedging pressure. Some purchases also were made on the belief flour buyers had overstayed their market, and soon must come in with heavy wheat orders.

New Layoff Rules Both Good and Bad For Career Workers

Those new layoff rules issued yesterday by Civil Service are far more important than they appear on the surface. They not only give laid-off career people additional benefits but they also take away some of their rights. These are the highlights of the vital document:

That any satisfactory career employe who is to be laid off must have a minimum of 30 days' notice and be given high-priority reinstatement rights for a full year after he receives the discharge notice.

During that year his accumulated sick leave will be preserved. No agency where he's located can hire a new employe to fill a job he's qualified to hold, with the sole exception of a 10-point employe. No agency may transfer or reinstate an employe to a job the laid-off employe is qualified for, but the exception here includes all preference (veteran) eligibles. But the order doesn't block promotions or shifts from within the agency.

The laid-off career employe will lose, too. No leave-on-leave will be allowed. The worker must be paid his accumulated annual leave in a lump sum after the minimum 30-day notice period. Also, he'll lose retirement credit if he's out of work for the whole year's notice period.

The new rules make plain that an employe in a classified Civil Service job can't be placed in competition with an employe in a non-Civil Service position. For example, some lawyers have Civil Service; others don't. In any future layoff, these two classes of lawyers would have to be placed in different areas of competition even though they might all be doing identical work.

Another major change provides for an exception to be made to Civil Service's layoff regulations. Any exception granted is appealable to the commission. The old system was inflexible and rigid. If your name came up on the retention list you had to be fired.

But now Civil Service has opened the way to Federal agencies to save the jobs of outstanding employes during layoffs by asking the commission to make "exceptions" in their cases.

The new regulations can be made effective any time before September 1, but that date is the deadline for all agencies.

GUN FACTORY: The thousands of employes at the Navy's big gun factory here have more than a casual interest in the new layoff rules.

At the factory yesterday 1631 full-time employes were given 30-day layoff notices and more than 200 jobs were abolished in the process. Some 400 jobs that had been vacated over the past six months when a major shakedown became imminent were wiped out.

Nonveteran career employes up to 21 years of service were among those to get the ax. In the shakedown process, the factory knocked out the jobs of all machinists who had floor and vise ratings. Hereafter, it will have only machinists with an over-all rating.

Patternmakers, inspectors, as well as floor and vise machinists with up to 21 years' service were among those who were given pink slips. General helpers with a maximum of 15 years' service and boilermakers up to 13 years of work also were fired.

Career employes and veterans have 10 days to appeal their layoffs to the Civil Service Commission. Admiral Fahrion promises to rehire the employes in reverse order to their firings to fill vacancies.

Sewell Thompson Headley, 35, of 406 36th st. ne., died early yesterday in Freedmen's Hospital from injuries suffered when struck by a streetcar near Georgia ave. and W. st. nw., shortly before midnight Thursday. His death brought to 34 the number of persons killed in District traffic accidents this year.

According to police, Headley stepped off a loading platform directly into the streetcar's path. He was pronounced dead at 3 a. m. yesterday by Dr. Oscar Ellison. The streetcar was operated by Robert Green, 22, of 1811 Monroe st. ne.

A woman and two children were injured in other accidents during the past 24 hours.

Ruth Holland, 21, of 1321 T st. nw., was admitted to Casualty Hospital, suffering from shock and possible skull fracture following collision with a truck by the taxicab in which she was riding. The taxicab, driven by William A. Burroughs, 26, of 928 T st. nw., collided at South Capitol st. and D ave. sw., with the truck, driven by Charles M. Silverman of 701 Chillum rd., Chillum Heights, Md.

Joan Palmer, 9, and Gloria Palmer, 5, of 4905 Sheriff rd. ne., were injured when struck by a car driven, police said, by Coleridge D. Singleton, U. S. Navy steward, of 1106 57th ave. ne.

The girls were playing on the sidewalk near their home when Singleton's car leaped over the curb knocking them down. Joan suffered possible fractures of skull and left leg and was admitted to Casualty. Gloria was treated for scalp contusions and released.

Singleton's car sped along the sidewalk for 30 feet. Then, returning to the street, it went 120 feet further to crash into a parked car, police said.

Four tires on Singleton's car were collapsed by the impact. Damage to Singleton's car was estimated at $500, and that of the parked car, owned by Dennis Ligon of 4921 Sheriff. rd. ne., at $100. Singleton was charged with operating a motor vehicle at excessive speed.

Bethesda Man Killed, Son Injured in Crash

A Bethesda, Md., man was killed and his son critically injured last night in an automobile accident at Atkins, Va., 7 miles east of Marion, Va., the Associated Press reported.

Virginia State Police identified the dead man at Otto H. Sylvester, jr., 60, an employe of the Exide Battery Co. here and his son, Gene M. Sylvester, 25, a student at Baldwin-Wallace College in Cleveland. A passenger, A. E. Ewald of Knoxville, Tenn., suffered minor injuries. The Sylvesters live at 6805 Exeter rd., Bethesda.

Police said the accident occurred when the Sylvester car swerved to miss another auto making a turn in the road and turned over on the lawn of Cedar Bluff Church

The elder Sylvester was dead on arrival at an Atkins hospital, police said, from a crushed head and injured side pierced by a piece of metal from the nearly demolished car. Young Sylvester suffered serious face and head injuries.

Police said the driver of the turning car was Junior Allen, 20, of Atkins. He told police he was taking two other boys and girls to a singing class at the Cedar Bluff Church and was turning in the road to park his car.

Manslaughter Charge After Crash Holds Man

As an aftermath of a traffic death Wednesday, John E. Coconis, 53, of 1454 Monroe st. nw., yesterday was held on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury.

The charge was returned in the death of James Jones, 45, of no fixed address. Jones was killed, police said, when the rear bumper of Coconis' car severed his jugular vein following a collision with a taxicab.

Jones, police said, was thrown clear of Coconis' car in which he was riding after hitting the taxicab at 21st and R st. nw. As he attempted to rise, the car driven by Coconis swerved, the rear bumper striking him in the throat.

The driver of the taxicab, Albert J. Snead, 40, of 1355 U st. nw., was not held, but will face a charge of colliding.

Deadline Eased For Purchase of Housing Projects

Raymond M. Foley, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, yesterday extended until July 31 the deadline for two cooperatives to purchase the Carver and Dunbar housing projects in Arlington.

The Public Housing Administration, which operates the two Negro projects, said the extension was granted to allow the co-ops to complete their financing for the purchase. Yesterday had been set as the original deadline.

Boy, 9, Burned as Pants Ignite; Companion, 10, Rips Them Off

"THANKS, PAL"—John Jackson (left), swathed in bandages, grins gratefully at his buddy, Conrad Kreel, who is credited with saving his life

A 9-year-old boy, painfully burned when his clothes caught fire while playing near his North Englewood, Md., home yesterday, was saved from more serious injury and possible death by the quick thinking of a 10-year-old playmate.

John Jackson, 5822 Reed st., suffered first and second-degree burns of the right arm, body and thigh when his trousers were ignited as he poured a paint-thinning compound on a fire he had built in a wooded area behind his home.

The injuries were not more severe, Prince Georges County Policeman Wallace Baker said, because Conrad Kreel, 5811 Reed ave., ripped John's flaming trousers from his body. Another boy, who was playing in the area, had run home in fright when John fell screaming to the ground.

"He was lying on the ground doing a war dance," Conrad said. "I stood him up on his feet and ripped his pants off him because that looked like the best thing to do."

John, who was shirtless, suffered the most serious burns on the upper portion of his body. Conrad escaped injury although he tore the trousers off with his bare hands.

Conrad said he took John to the home of a neighbor, who suggested that he take the lad home. Another neighbor, summoned by John's mother, Mrs. Robert I. Jackson, drove the boy to Prince Georges County Hospital, where he was released after treatment.

The two boys, now on vacation, are pupils at the Cheverly-Tuxedo Elementary School.

Transit Row May Be Settled Without Help

Company and Union To Continue Talks Before Arbitration

There's still a possibility that Capital Transit Co. and its 4300 AFL employes will reach a new work agreement without the necessity of arbitration, it was learned yesterday.

The company and Division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, have agreed to continue informal discussions on their contract dispute, which narrowly averted becoming a strike early yesterday.

The union, at a mass membership meeting in Turner's, Arena, accepted a peace formula proposed by Cyrus Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Ching, incidentally, had been early in his career both a motorman and assistant to the president of the Boston Elevated Railway, and thoroughly understands the problems of a transit system.

The peace formula, accepted by the company at 11 p. m. Thursday and by the union at 1:25 a. m. Friday, calls for a five-man arbitration board to settle all the points of dispute over the new contract. The union has demanded a pay increase of 25 cents an hour and other benefits; the company has asked for continuation of present wage rates together with "economies" in operating procedure to save $500,000 in annual expenditures.

The five-man arbitration board would be set up in this manner: one member to be chosen by the union; one by the company; and the other three to be chosen from a panel of seven impartial arbitrators to be selected by Ching.

It is expected to take around two weeks for Ching to locate seven eligible arbitrators who would be available for the local dispute.

If the negotiators fail to agree on a new contract, then any wage increases that might result from the arbitration will be made retroactive to July 1.

Woman Injured By Parking Sign Asks $100,000

Mrs. Frances P. Scancarelli of 1418 N st. nw. yesterday asked District Court for $100,000 damages she received April 15 when a high wind blew down a metal parking lot sign, pinning her under it.

Mrs. Scancarelli and her 7-year-old son, Peter, were walking on the sidewalk when the 34-foot sign on the property of Ott's Service Station, 1419 I st. nw., was blown down. She suffered a fractured back, internal and other injuries. The boy was treated for cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Scancarelli's husband, Peter, also asks for $50,000 damages in the suit for the loss of his wife's services. Named defendents are A. G. Dezendorf, Inc., also known as Ott's Service Stations, and the G. D. C. Corp., of which Morris Cafritz is president, who own the parking lot property.

Bus Line Asks Voiding Of Extension

W. M. & A. Tells PUC Capital Transit Route Will Mean Slump In Property Values

The W. M. & A. Motor Lines Inc., yesterday petitioned District Court to void a District Public Utilities Commission order which will permit the Capital Transit Co. to extend two bus lines Sunday.

Under the PUC order, the Capital Transit bus lines could be extended into a terminal point in the vicinity of Pennsylvania and Alabama aves. se.

In its petition, W. M. & A. said that since 1922 it has had a bus route with a stop at 38th st. and Alabama ave. se., that this stop serves Fairfax Village with its approximately 1000 families.

W. M. & A. said that about 30 per cent of all its customers are at this stop.

According to the petition, the PUC held a hearing February 2, 1949, on the subject of extending the Capital Transit lines, but W.M.&A. was never given a notice that the hearing was to be held, nor furnished with a copy of the resultant PUC order.

The petition asks that the PUC order be temporarily suspended and eventually declared void because W. M. & A. had no chance to take part in the proceedings as an interested party, and because the new competitive service will mean "substantial and irreparable" property loss through slackening of revenue.

W. M. & A. said the PUC rejected its application filed June 2 asking reconsideration of the order.

Arnold Lines Dispute To Go to Arbitration

A contract dispute between the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. (Arnold Lines), and its employes union will go to arbitration, it was decided last night.

The decision came after a day-long session between management and union representatives with a Federal conciliator and a representative of the office of the Governor of Virginia.

The entire question will be open to arbitration, including wages and fringe issues, said H. J. Harris, president of Division 1079 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes, unless management submits an acceptable offer in the meantime.

The past contract expired May 18. Negotiations have been in progress since that time. Once, the union voted to accept a 5-cents-per-hour wage increase, but the talks snagged on other benefits to be included in or omitted from the contract.

The union has appointed Eli Oliver as its arbitrator. The company, under the agreement yesterday, has four days to name its representative. The two will then select a third. If they do not agree on one within 10 days, then the Federal Counciliation Service will appoint one. Hearings will follow.

Harris said last night that in view of the arbitration agreement, there will be no strike vote by the employes.

NCPPC to Request $53,700 For Slums Redevelopment

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday voted to seek $53,700 for redevelopment planning and surveys in downtown Washington slum areas.

The action was independent of further developments on the much discussed Marshall Heights redevelopment project for which $2,180,000 had been asked of and rejected by the House for land acquisition in the Heights section.

The sum decided upon yesterday would be, presumably, for areas in the neighborhood of the Capitol.

Senate Drive Voted

The Commission voted also to acquaint the Senate with the Marshall Heights Plan in the hope that the appropriation rejected by the House would be restored.

The Marshall Heights Plan was approved last December by the Board of District Commissioners, with recommendation that it be certified to the District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency. House refusal to approve initial appropriations for property acquisition has since stalled progress.

Most objections to the plan have been overcome, according to the Commission. Among these were protests raised by the Federation of Civic Associations that the plan would perpetuate racial segregation and discrimination.

Home Owners Skeptical

Home owners in the area fear they would not realize enough on present holdings to rebuild homes under the plan.

A Commission member emphasized importance of rehousing area residents who now own substandard dwellings.

"Some democratic solution must be found to the problem of improving housing and, at the same time, work as little hardship as possible," the member declared.

The Commission authorized its legislative committee to appear before Congress to adjust sections in the Home Rule bill that conflict with its functions.

Zoning Clarification Sought

The legislative group will ask that land acquisition functions of the commission be continued, and its zoning duties clarified.

It was pointed out that in rezoning the commission is recognized as a planning agency for both Federal and District jurisdictions; but in the field of zoning is limited by the House bill to Federal interests only.

The commission also suggested re-routing of traffic to relieve congestion at Virginia ave. and Constitution ave. It proposed to make Virginia ave. a one-way arterial northwesterly between 17th and 19th sts.

Connection Approved

In other actions the commission approved a temporary connection between Whitehurst Freeway and Rock Creek-Potomac Parkway via 27th st. to avoid conflict with southbound traffic over Potomac Parkway.

It also tentatively approved one of several studies for the recently proposed "Parque America." Consultation on the plan will be held with the Fine Arts Commission and the Pan American Union.

The site for "Parque America" is located south of the Pan American Union building, where temporary Navy buildings now stand.

The legislative committee also was authorized to push for enactment of a Baltimore-Washington super highway.

New Parking Ratio Favored

The commission went on record as favoring a ratio of one parking space for every four efficiency apartment units, instead of the 1 to 12 ratio already advertised. The commission held that the current 1 to 4 ratio is not stringent.

It also voted to request the District Commissioners to act on House Appropriation Committee recommendations and inspect some city blocks in slum areas to learn extent of street improvements, in order that residents could be advised of expenses in bringing houses up to standard.

In connection with the House and Senate reorganization bills, the commission asked that General U. S. Grant, III, chairman resigned, continue guidance of reorganization through the Congress.

Boys Lasso Liquor at State Store

Stone walls do not a prison make,
Nor iron bars a cage;
Minds innocent and quiet take
That for an hermitage.
—RICHARD LOVELACE.
1618-1658.

Arlington police may have waxed poetic yesterday as they took into custody two juveniles who burglarized, cowboy-fashion, the State ABC store at 1929 N. Moore st., in Rosslyn.

It has barred windows, barred doors, and barred skylights. Nevertheless, the two boys, aged 15 and 17, used a lasso to lift three full cases of liquor out of the store.

Police told this story:

Wednesday night, the boys climbed to the store roof, broke out a pane of glass in the skylight and lowered a 15-foot lasso between the iron bars. They roped a case of liqueurs, hoisted it to a point just below the bars. Then they reached through, removed one bottle at a time through the bars to the roof. Finally, they collapsed the empty case, pulled it through, reshaped it and put the bottles in it.

The boys, both from Glen Echo Heights, repeated the process with a case of rum and a case of sherry, police said.

In Washington, the boys were stopped by police for a minor traffic violation. Police spotted the liquor and noted the address of the Rosslyn store on the cases. Arlington police then went to the boys' homes, they said, and readily obtained a confession.

The boys have been turned over to juvenile authorities.

Lawyer Is Sued For $500,000 In Man's Arrest

John F. Oertel of 1343 Fairmont st. nw., yesterday filed suit in District Court for $500,000 damages against John J. O'Brien, Washington lawyer, charging O'Brien caused his illegal arrest and detention.

O'Brien and a United States Deputy Marshall, Emil V. Berquist, caused Oertel to be arrested and committed to the District Jail for more than 18 hours on July 2, 1948, according to the suit. Oertel's attorney, I. William Stempil, said it was in connection with a divorce action.

Oertel charged in the suit that he suffered loss of his good name and reputation, that he was embarrassed and held up to public ridicule and that his job was placed in jeopardy.

Truman Signs Award To Shooting Victim

President Truman has signed a bill providing payment of $10,000 to June C. Dollar, Hyattsville, Md., for injuries received when he was shot by a District policeman. The shooting occurred in February, 1942, when Dollar was seated with a friend in a parked taxicab.

A committee report on the bill quoted Dollar as saying he thought it was a holdup when the officer, dressed in civilian clothes, ordered him to open the car window. Dollar refused and the policeman shot him, the report said.

Death of D. C. Golf Pro Laid To Poisoning

Robert T. Barnett, veteran Washington golf professional, died early yesterday in Georgetown University Hospital of barbituric poisoning. District Coroner Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald said last night.

Barnett

MacDonald said he will issue a certificate of suicide. The barbituric poisoning could have been caused by sleeping capsules from an almost empty bottle found in a wastebasket, MacDonald said.

The golfer was discovered unconscious in the golf shop at Chevy Chase Club about 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Barnett, 54, left a note to his wife in a sealed envelope on a nearby cash register. It was delivered unopened to the family. Its contents were not disclosed.

The golfer was last seen conscious on Monday about 8:30 p. m., when fellow workers in the golf shop at Chevy Chase Club, where Barnett had been professional for 26 years, departed for home.

He was found slumped in a chair the following morning and remained in a coma until his death.

The sleeping medicant in such capsules can be obtained only by a physician's prescription. There was no label on the bottle, which contained only one capsule, and it was turned over to police yesterday by club officials.

The body is at Robert A. Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda. Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. at the funeral home.

A native of Philadelphia, Barnett was an assistant golf professional there before coming to Chevy Chase Club where he was the tutor of many outstanding golfers.

Among them were Lew Worsham, 1947 National Open champion, Buck Worsham of Congressional Club, and Charles Bassler of Baltimore, Md.

A former Middle Atlantic PGA champion, he was defeated last year in the Maryland Open by Bassler, his former pupil. During his career he was also golf instructor for such notables as Presidents Taft and Harding and Robert Todd Lincoln, son of President Lincoln.

He lived at 4503 Ridge st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Irene T. Barnett, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. William T. Nelson of Chambersburg, Pa., and a grandson.

Defense Of Self, 3 Others In TV Suit Requested

John T. Bonner, a Washington attorney, yesterday asked District Court to allow several other persons to join him in his fight to keep his television aerial.

Through his attorney, T. Emmett McKenzie, Bonner filed a motion in District Court for leave to amend his original complaint, in which he has asked for a court order restraining his landlords from taking down his aerial from the apartment house at 4204 Kaywood dr., Mount Rainier, Md., where he lives.

The amended complaint would allow him to bring action in behalf of William Thompson, 4202 Kaywood dr.; Joseph Burgess, 4204 Kaywood dr., and Lester J. Colbert, 4307 28th pl., all of whom, he charges, are "aggrieved in the same manner."

The amended complaint, he seeks to file, charges, moreover, that Thompson purchased his television radio from George Wasserman, 816 F st. nw., a defendant in his suit. Other defendants are Abram and Minnie Kay, 4800 17th st. nw., and Louis C. and Celia K. Grossberg, 3421 Garrison st. nw.

Board Hikes Non-Resident Tuition Fees Of All Types

Ruling, Consequent On Teachers' Raise, Goes to District Heads for Approval

Tuition rates for non-resident pupils of District schools were raised yesterday by the Board of Education.

The higher rates, which begin next fall, are subject to the approval of the District Commissioners.

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, told the board that the new rates will include cost of the recent $330 pay increases for teachers.

Higher operational costs and a decline in the number of nonresident pupils were factors in the tuition increase, according to Adelbert W. Heinmiller, assistant to Dr. Corning. Heinmiller said, as an example, that enrollment of nonresident senior high school pupils dropped 7 per cent in the term just ended.

Proposed Changes

Here are the proposed tuition changes:

Teachers colleges, from $303 to $326; senior high schools, including veterans' centers, $217 to $255; vocational high schools, $242 to $276; junior high schools, $164 to $192; elementary schools, $110 to $122; crippled children's classes, $290 to $353; evening schools, $27 to $29.

In its annual election, the school board chose C. Melvin Sharpe its president for a one-year term ending June 30, 1950.

Sharpe, who has been acting president since the resignation last March of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, was elected by a 5-3 vote over Dr. James A. Gannon, who was named vice president.

Three Sworn In

Sworn in for three-year terms on the school board were Adelbert W. Lee and Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, both reappointed recently by the District Court judges, and Dr. Phillip T. Johnson, who was named to succeed George E. C. Hayes.

Mrs. Madgeburger was appointed alternate delegate to the District Recreation Board.

In other business, the board:

Asked the District Commissioners to authorize addition of five administrative assistants to direct the sick-leave program if it becomes law this year.

Approved purchase of reading clinic equipment and lunchroom equipment for elementary schools.

Accepted conditionally an offer of the National Symphony Orchestra to sponsor free children's concerts next year.

At ABC Hearing

Judge Scolds West Aide For Lateness

The Corporation Counsel's office yesterday received a scolding from Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers for the tardiness of its representative at an early morning court hearing.

Judge Myers called it the "height of discourtesy" and declared if it happened again he would make an official complaint to Corporation Counsel Vernon West.

He said he had set the hearing for motions in an Alcoholic Beverage Control violation case for 9 a. m. to accommodate both the prosecuting and defense lawyers.

Neither appeared at that time. At 9:10 a. m., Defense Attorney Curtis P. Mitchell came into court, and about 20 minutes later Assistant Corporation Counsel Philip Brophy appeared.

Mitchell said he had telephoned several times but had been unable to get any answer from Judge Myer's chambers. Brophy said there was a misunderstanding and he was not aware the hearing was scheduled early.

Judge Myers then continued the case to 9 a. m. next Thursday.

Area News in Brief

Man Wounds Self Waiting for Prowler

While waiting for a prowler, Thomas H. Dillon, 33, of 107 Park Valley rd., Takoma Park, shot himself in the leg, Montgomery County police reported yesterday.

Dillion had previously suspected prowlers around his home and Thursday night was waiting for them with a German Mauser automatic, cocked and ready, police said.

Hearing a noise, he reached for the gun. It went off. Police said the bullet entered the right leg above the knee, emerged on the other side of his leg below the knee and came to rest in the left calf.

Dillon, an official with a travel insurance company, was admitted to Washington Sanitarium, where his condition was said to be good.

The Hardvard Hall swimming pool, 1650 Harvard st. nw., has been ordered closed temporarily by the Health Department for failure to chlorinate the water properly and for permitting "dirty conditions in and around the pool."

Col. William H. Cary, jr., director, Bureau of Public Health Engineering, said reopening will be permitted when inspectors approve the condition of the pool.

Licenses will be issued to the two swimming pools at the Young Men's Christian Association, 1736 G st. nw., next week, Colonel Cary announced. The Meridian Hill apartment hotel pool also has been approved.

Cross-Breed Hog May Be Answer to Sunburn Problem

Blacksburg, Va., July 1 (AP).—Virginia's hog farmers hope they have the answer to the sunburn problem—for the hogs, not themselves.

They've long fancied the white hog because of its superior hams, but the trouble has been that the white hog sunburned too easily. The dark hog didn't burn but its hams weren't so choice.

The Virginia Experiment Station has announced it is now trying a breed developed in the agricultural research center in Beltsville, Md., which crossed the Landrace white hog with the large black. The result, it hopes, is a hog with a tender ham but a tough skin.

In Memoriam

BAILEY, MRS. MAZIE R. In loving memory of MAZIE BAILEY, who left us one year ago today, July 2, 1948.

A loving one from us is gone.
The voice we loved is still.
A place is vacant in our hearts
Which never can be filled.

We often sit and think of you.
And think of how you died.
To know you could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.
Our hearts still ache with sadness.
Our eyes shed many a tear.
Only God knows how we miss you
At the end of one long year.

Your loving husband, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Barrett Receives Plaudits on 24th Job Anniversary

Fellow officers and friends congratulated Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, yesterday, on his twenty-fourth anniversary in the department and his second on his present job.

Barrett, for the most part, just shook hands and grinned. He recalled that on July 1, 1925, he was sworn in as a patrolman and began pounding a beat "right where this building stands." Conditions in the area were considerably different then, he recalled.

July 1 has been an eventful date for Barrett. Two years ago, he was sworn in as superintendent of police on that day, succeeding Maj. Harvey Callahan.

Fake Bill Suspects Get Bail Reduction

Five suspected members of a counterfeiting ring arrested here Monday by Secret Service agents were held for action of the grand jury yesterday by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

The ring is alleged to have manufactured about $100,000 in bogus $20 notes in a two-room suite at 1807 H st. nw., only a few blocks from the Treasury Department building, operating base of the Secret Service.

The five are Eugene H. Creighton, 25, and Walter W. Kidwell, 30, both cab drivers and both of 1315 Delafield pl. nw.; William F. Hughes, 28, driver for Thompson's Dairy, and his wife, Josephine, 25, of 6000 13th st. nw., and Arthur M. Bebar, 35, employe in the Adjutant General's office at the Pentagon and part-time offset printer, of 1013 17th st. ne.

Creighton and Kidwell waived preliminary hearing yesterday and their bond was reduced from $15,000 to $3000 each.

John Fitzpatrick, attorney for Bebar, and Milton Kaplan, attorney for Mrs. Hughes, questioned the legality of arrest of their clients without warrants.

Assistant United States Attorney Edward Carey maintained this question could not be brought into the preliminary hearings and Commissioner Lawrence agreed.

Commissioner Lawrence reduced Bebar's bond from $25,000 to $3000 and cut the bond of Hughes from $15,000 to $2000 and the bond of Mrs. Hughes from $15,000 to $1000.

Poultrymen Hit Subsidies

Hagerstown, Md., July 1 (AP).—Delegates to the Maryland State Poultry Council today unanimously opposed the Brannan farm plan as "impractical" and "extravagant."

At its closing business meeting, the council adopted a resolution expressing its feeling that "subsides to agriculture (are) impractical and offer too great an opportunity for extravagance at the taxpayers' expense."

The State's No. 1 poultry breeder, L. B. MacDowall, of Salisbury, was named winner of the council's 1949 "chicken of tomorrow" contest. He received a trophy before 300 delegates present for the eighteenth annual meeting.

Dagger Thief Gets $101 Here

An intruder who menaced him with a long dagger for 90 minutes early yesterday in his apartment took $101 in cash, a wrist watch and pen, and fled after forcing him down six flights of stairs, Paul Dickerson told police.

Dickerson, who is 56 and lives in an apartment at 1020 19th st. nw., said the man knocked on his door shortly before midnight Thursday, forced his way in with a knife, and then remained, menacing Dickerson. The intruder knocked him over a chair, hit him in the face and finally cut his chest slightly with the knife. Dickerson told officers. He said the man told him he needed money to leave the city.

The robber was described as a swarthy man with thin, flat nose; 5 feet 9 inches; 185 pounds; about 32, dark brown eyes; wearing dark slacks and a white shirt.

Dickerson was treated for his injuries by a private physician.

Later in the day, Mrs. Ruby S. Manning, 60, 2853 Ontario rd. nw., told police a man approached her from the rear as she walked near Ontario rd. and Lanier pl. nw., and snatched her purse containing $60. She said he was young, about 5 feet 7 inches, weight about 170, wearing a tan shirt and dark trousers. He fled, she said, in a maroon automobile.

Refusal to Work For Subcontractor Ruled 'Boycott'

A trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that an AFL union was guilty of a secondary boycott in refusing to work for a subcontractor for a firm against which the union was on strike.

The examiner, Arthur Leff, made his ruling against the AFL Metal Polishers Union and its local in Indianapolis. They had ordered their members to stop work at the Climax Machinery Co., which was handling chrome plating under subcontract for the Adams Plating Co., both in Indianapolis.

Leff recommended that the unions be ordered to stop inducing or encouraging employes of Climax or any other company to engage in a secondary boycott against the Adams firm.

Peck-Gaillard Wedding Joins Old D. C. Families

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, LaFayette Square, was the setting of a wedding yesterday of wide interest to "old Washington," when Miss Monica Blodgett Gaillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David St. Pierre Gaillard, became the bride of Frederic Taylor Peck, jr. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. F. Taylor Peck of Spring Hill, Mobile, Ala., and the late Mr. Peck. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John H. Stanton of Johnstown, Pa., assisted by the Rev. Leslie Glenn, rector of the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown with fitted bodice and bertha made of rosepoint lace from her mother's wedding gown, and an ivory satin skirt with long train. Her fingertip length veil of tulle was fastened to a coronet of rosepoint lace, and she carried a bouquet of Brandywine roses, bouvardia and lilies of the valley.

Miss Hope Erwin, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Frederic Krafft was matron of honor. The bridegroom's brother, William Henry Peck 4th, was best man.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. John A. Croghan, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Parkman Clancy, Mrs. Joseph Dear, Miss Ann Gillespie, Miss Betty Jo Manfuso, all of Washington; Miss Winnie Buck Clemson of Baltimore, Miss Marcia McMichael of Bronxville, N. Y., and Miss Phyllis Newman of Brooklyn, N. Y.

All Groups Invited to Sample Famed Southern Hospitality

By Nicha Soure

THE State societies will have a chance to observe first hand that wonderful thing called "Southern hospitality."

At an evening meeting Thursday, the Conference of State Society Officers met and indorsed a weekend pilgrimage to Williamsburg, Va., where the symphonic drama "The Common Glory" is being staged.

Each local State society will decide if it wants to take the trip to see historic Williamsburg, as well as the play of the founding of America.

The weekend trip will cost around $12 per person, including bus fare, tickets to "The Common Glory," a sightseeing trip around Williamsburg, picnic lunch and lodging.

The trip was recommended to the State societies by the conference as pleasant weekend entertainment during the summer months when many of the local social clubs have not scheduled monthly dances and get-togethers.

At the meeting, presided over by the chairman, Carl M. Walker, the conference indorsed the pending financial plan for the 1950 sesquicentennial now in Congress. The Senate approved a two-million-dollar loan for the 1950 celebration of Washington's 150th birthday, but the measure was blocked in the House of Representatives.

In a resolution put before the members by Charles Helsper, the conference voted unanimously to indorse the present financial plan as well as contact the individual State societies and inform them of the conference's action.

A regional committee was appointed by the chairman, Mr. Walker, and approved by the membership. Each member of the nine-member group is responsible for informing his geographical section of State Societies on conference action.

The committee includes Larry Schewee, Maj. Robert Joy, Miss Louise Finks, Claude Hirsh, Mrs. Esther Costa, Holden Rhymes, John Slear, William Clay and Miss Catharine Flynn.

The Way You Do It

Exercise Well Done Is Twice as Good

By Ida Jean Kain

LEAVE the dishes in the sink . . . I want to look in on your exercise program again. The beauty of exercising at a certain time every day is that it becomes habit. After all, the only exercises that are any good are those you take. And, taken correctly, they can be twice as good.

So here we go—for a starter, stretch . . .

Standing, arms raised overhead, fingers locked, palms up. Pull. The whole idea of this exercise is to stretch while on the beam—head up, girdle muscles pulled firmly up, hip muscles strongly contracted. If hips bustle out rearward, you're off the beam . . . you might better stop exercising and go do the dishes. Try again, pulling up slim through the middle. There, that's it, you're streamlined! Repeat a third time, just for good measure.

Now that you have the right line-up, progress with a side bend, for a willowy and slim midriff . . .

Standing, same posture, arms overhead. Grasp right wrist with left hand and pull as you bend to the left side. Wait, don't relax girdle muscles or let hips get out of line, or all slimming bets are off. Make this a slow bend, starting the pull through the midsection—then increase the bend by pulling on the arm.

POSITION: Lying on floor on right side, both knees pulled up toward chest. Rest head on right arm and have left arm out in front of chest, palm on floor, as a brace.

Movement: Shoot one leg straight down, and as you bend that knee bringing it toward chest again, shoot the other leg straight down. Do this rhythmically and smoothly but at a fairly fast clip. To double the value of this exercise, contract the girdle muscles and hold the up-pull throughout the movement. Ten times on each side for a starter, but if you're rusty on exercise stop at six counts each side.

A Homemade Workbench

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

If you haven't a fully equipped shop in your house, or if Dad is a little leary about having the youngsters use his bench, here's a workable idea that will provide them with one of their own at almost no cost.

All you need to start with is a heavy packing case such as pieces of machinery or books come packed in. The center top board and the top side boards may be removed so that iron clamps can be easily used to hold pieces of wood tightly for sawing or boring. Or, the box may be left intact and the sides or ends utilized as a conveninet place to hold tools. If you wish, small wooden cheese boxes or other suitable containers such as tin cans can be fastened inside or outside to hold nails, screws, and other small pieces of material.

Some people like to paint the "work-bench," though usually the natural color of the wood seems more attractive. But this is one other place in which you can give the youngsters a chance to decide on what they would like.

About Applying Oil Painting Over Casein Paint

Can oil paint be put on over casein paint? What has to be done to the walls first?
R. M. B.

Yes, you should have no trouble in applying oil paint over casein paint. Dry brush the wall first. If there are rough or peeling places, sandpaper them smooth. Scrub any greasy spots or other unsightly dirt with a solution of washing soda and warm water, rinsing with clear water. Fill all cracks and holes with patching plaster, shellacking over the patches or painting them with thinned oil paint.

Sometime ago, one of your readers asked for a recipe for Poppy Seed Strudel. Several from other readers were printed in reply. Those that I saw all used a heavy dough. Strudel, however, is a very light pastry and I hate to see a strudel-lover disappointed. Here is one that I got when in New York from my grandmother, who recited it for me. I hope the reader who inquired will find it clear enough. It takes a lot of effort, but the results are definitely worth it. Cheese or apple may be used in place of the poppy seeds (otherwise known as mohn).
B. W.

POPPY SEED (MOHN) STRUDEL

PREPARING POPPY SEED: Take 2 cups poppy seeds. Put into pot with enough water to cover and allow to boil. Turn off the heat and let water cool. Pour off water and repeat entire process twice more.

Strain and set aside to dry well, then put poppy seeds through grinder four times. Next mix in sugar to taste (½ to 1 cup).

DOUGH: 1 white of egg
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons oil, or equivalent in butter
1 pound flour

Dampen these ingredients with warm water to make a dough. Knead very well, then fold over and cover with warmed casserole cover or pot. Keep warm for 45 minutes, then roll dough out on floured tablecloth. Stretch dough until it covers entire table. Dough must be extremely thin. Dot this expanse of dough with the oil or butter.

FILLING: Mix about ½ pound of chopped walnuts or almonds with 1 cup of sugar and some yellow raisins and sprinkle over the oiled dough. Now cover this with poppy seeds. By lifting two side corners of the tablecloth, one can roll the dough into a long vertical strip which may then be cut into pieces that fit one's baking pan. Bake at same temperature used for coffee cake. Remove from oven when brown.

I spilled melted wax from a white candle on a blue faille bag. Can you tell me the best way to remove it? J. C. T.

Scrape away as much of the wax as possible with a dull knife. Place a clean white blotter over the stain and hold a warm iron against it. If the bag is a soft one and not too heavy, put blotters on both inside and outside before pressing the iron against it. Shift the blotter as it takes up wax. When no more will come out, sponge spot with carbon tetrachloride.

Have you any suggestions as to how to remove the dust from dust mops after using in view of the fact that apartment house tenants are not permitted to shake or throw things out the window? A Reader.

A Washington man has recently placed on the market a plastic bag designed especially to meet this problem. For more information about it, call Ordway 0649. Another idea is to place the mop in a very large paper grocery bag, hold the top of the bag tightly about the handle of the mop, and shake. If the mop is very soiled, the bag may need to be emptied several times and the shaking repeated before all of the dust is removed. Another way is to lay the mop on the floor on several layers of newspapers and remove the dust from it by holding the brush or nozzle attachment of the vacuum sweeper

Highlighting Hair Colors

HAIR, long considered a woman's crowning glory, can all too soon become her major beauty woe. Age, diet and climate can have disastrous effect on its color and texture, reducing its lustre and charm.

Most frequent remedies for this condition are dyes and rinses. The latter are especially popular with the woman who does not want to actually change the color of her hair, but is interested merely in highlighting the tones that are beginning to fade.

Today's market offers a new budget-wise aid for fading hair, in the form of a combination rinse and wave lotion. It is available in nine shades besides natural tones and contains pure vegetable coloring.

Directions for its use are as follows:

After you have shampooed and towel-dried your hair, dissolve one of the small curl-rinse packets in warm water. Then dip a comb, brush or a small cotton pad into the solution and saturate your hair thoroughly. Set your hair with bobby pins or curlers as usual. When hair is completely dry, comb it into any style that suits your fancy.

The product is packaged in a box that contains six separate curl-rinse packets. Called Furl it is available locally at all Capital Drug Stores.

New Baseball Film A Scratch Single

TWENTIETH-CENTURY FOX, capitalizing on the American craze for baseball, has tried to come up with a hit in "It Happens Every Spring," at the Capitol. Instead it has knocked a dribble down the third-base line which is good for a scratch single.

Lack of invention hampers "Spring" from being the funny picture it could have been. The whole plot is built on one gag: Ray Milland, as a college chemistry prof, accidentally discovers a composition which is wood repellent. He dips a baseball in it and the results are obvious to the newest tyro of our national game.

Douglas Good

What saves the picture from being a strikeout is the presence of Paul Douglas. When Milland turns up at St. Louis claiming he can win the pennant, he is paired off with Douglas after a spectacular demonstration of Ray's pitching prowess. Douglas becomes his guardian-battery mate. As a crude, outspoken, dumb-but-good-natured jerk, Douglas is effectively funny in most of his scenes. His badinage with umpires and his attempts to understand Milland are the highlights of the film.

Milland is a fine actor and he does well with what the writers and director have given him. Trouble is, they've not given him enough. As a famous sensation, trying to keep his real identity quiet, he is required to act erratic and shy. That's about the extent of the demand on his talents.

Jean Peters Does Well

As the girl Ray loves, Jean Peters has a fresh charm and an unstudied manner which are used to good advantage. As her parents, Ray Collins and Jessie Royce Landis are appropriately staid and proper. Ted deCorsia does a nice bit as the skeptical manager of the ball club.

Joe MacDonald, whose name few people will notice, is the man most responsible for the sight gag used so often in the picture: a baseball going through a 2-foot hop over a bat. It's funny when you first see it but after a while it isn't. Incidentally, Ray wins 38 games in his one season with the Cards, plus three in the World Series against the Yanks. Rube Waddell and all the other baseball immortals must really be chuckling over that record, wherever they are today.

Eaton Cites Gas Co. Bonds In SEC Row

Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland financier who is conducting a running battle with the Securities and Exchange Commission, yesterday fired a volley using private sale of two million dollars in Washington Gas Light Co. bonds as ammunition.

He wrote Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) calling for a cut in SEC appropriations because he said the gas company sold its bonds Thursday at private sale "to avoid the expense of registering the bonds" with the SEC.

Gas company officials, asking the District Public Utilities Commission for permission to make the private sale, contradicted his assertion.

They testified under oath that private sale of the issue would save the company $34,500, of which only $300 would be for registration. Other savings came in advertising, prospectuses and other expenses at public offerings, they said.

Eaton, whose securities' sale license was attacked by the SEC in connection with an agreement for sale of Kaiser-Frazer stock, has replied with a campaign before Congress to get the SEC appropriation reduced.

He used the Washington Gas Light Co. case, in his letter, as an argument for the reduction.

'Twin' Statute Upheld

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 1 (U.P.).—The Supreme Court today upheld a law providing that in cases of twin brothers, one of the two will be exempt from military service.

Captive Boy Unwillingly Returns Home

Boston, July 1 (U.P.).—Thirteen-year-old Gerald Sullivan, Boston's "captive boy," was taken from a convalescent home today and returned to the mother he "hated."

His face white and his hands trembling, Gerald clung to a chair when Attorney Daniel J. O'Connell came to the Children's Mission to reunite the boy with his mother, who had locked him up in a small room for 10 years.

"I don't want to go with you," Gerald yelled. "I don't want to live with my mother. I want to stay here."

Posted Bond

O'Connell was able to claim the boy because he had posted $10,000 bail set yesterday when Gerald was adjudged a neglected child. It was a technical charge that put him on trial with his mother, Mrs. Anna Sullivan, 45.

Mrs. Sullivan was convicted of neglect and sentenced to an indeterminate term in a reformatory. She appealed and was released on $2000 bail.

Mrs. Sullivan had kept the boy locked up for a decade because he was an illegitimate child and she wanted to shield her "secret sin."

Mrs. Elizabeth Bissell, secretary of the mission, said "the way he was torn away was inhumane. This is the first time in his life he has ever received any love or affection and now he's lost it."

Persuaded to Go

Gerald was persuaded to go peacefully by Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, the superintendent. Mrs. Smith said Gerald was miserable. He agreed to go—but wouldn't take any clothes.

"I'll leave them here until I come back," he said. He emptied his pockets of candy and gave them to Mrs. Smith.

She suggested that he take it and "eat it on the way."

"No, Mrs. Smith, I can't do that," he said. "I'll eat it when I come home. I want it here at home when I come back."

Court Fines Wife, 'Other Woman'; Man Goes Free

San Jose, Calif., July 1 (U.P.).—A judge ruled today that an irate wife has no right to kick down the door of her suspected rival's house even if she thinks her husband is hiding under the other woman's bed.

Police Judge Percy O'Connor fined Mrs. Justina Tucker, 26, the wife, and Carrie May McClendon, 24, the rival, $20 each for disturbing the peace.

Officers who were called to the McClendon trailer home to end the disturbance found husband Van Tucker, 27, hiding under the bed. Tucker escaped without a fine.

McCloy in Germany To Begin New Duties

Frankfurt, Germany, July 1 (AP).—John J. McCloy arrived from Paris tonight to take up his new duties as United States military governor for Germany.

Asked when he expected to take over from Lieut. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, McCloy smiled and said: "I guess right now. I'm here."

Contract Let For School In Arlington

Arlington's school board last night awarded a $281,594 contract for the first school to be constructed under a $6,500,000 program.

Award for construction of a nine-classroom elementary school at N. Greenbrier and 28th st. went to Contractor Allen C. Minnix of Washington on his low bid.

The $281,594 contract is for completion of the school, ready for occupancy, by February 1, 1950, and for all landscaping about the building. Minnix's was one of six bids received by the board, the highest being $329,338.

At the same time, the school board renamed Barnard Joy chairman and Mrs. Edmund Campbell vice chairman for the coming year.

Joy is assistant to the administrator of the Agriculture Lepartment's research and marketing administration, lives at 1718 N. Hartford st. Mrs. Campbell, who lives at 2912 N. Glebe rd., teaches at a private school.

Joy announced he will resign as board chairman (not from the board) January 1, 1950, at which time the board conceivably could have two new members, elected this November. Joy said he took the action to allow any newly composed board a chance to name its own chairman.

Earlier yesterday, the school system's administrative staff held a meeting with William A. Early, who had just assumed his new duties as Arlington school superintendent. Early formerly was superintendent of Norfolk County Schools.

He announced the appointment of Edward J. Braun, formerly school consultant, as assistant superintendent in charge of school business affairs. Charles J. Walsh will remain an assistant superintendent to handle school personnel, Early said.

The new superintendent also announced the inauguration of a new centralized accounting and purchasing system for the school system, set up to conform to that of the county.

Murray Alerts Steelworkers for Possible Strike

Pittsburgh, July 1 (U.P.).—The one-million-member United Steelworkers Union (CIO) was alerted today for a possible strike against the steel industry this month.

A "strike memo" was issued by CIO President Philip Murray, who also heads the USW, to all local unions of the United States Steel Corp. just five days before he resumes crucial negotiations here with "Big Steel." The union legally is free to strike July 16.

At the same time, the USW terminated a contract extension with the Aluminum Company of America, effective July 31. The action paved the way for a possible August strike of 20,000 employes at nine Alcoa plants.

The strike instruction to U. S. Steel locals told union officers precisely what steps to take in event of a walkout. It cautioned against premature walkouts, violence and indefinite contract extensions; reviewed picketing rights, and urged local committees to have bail bond sources lined up in event of arrests.

2 Girls Charged With Assaulting Truck Driver

Boston, July 1 (AP).—Two young women who fit the description of a pair who robbed a truck driver in Maryland were in custody today on charges of assaulting a Pennsylvania motorist.

Four Pennsylvania officers came here with fugitive warrants for Jane Ann Muldoon, 18, and Lennie Harkness, 26, both of Lynn, Mass. Detective Sergt. Arthur Riernan of Boston said the Muldoon girl admitted shooting Charles Klevis, 22, of Frackville, Pa., "because he tried to get fresh with me." Tiernan said she had a loaded gun when arrested.

A Pennsylvania officer said the girls look like the hitchhikers who struck and robbed I. Strickler, truck driver from Hanover, Pa. He picked up the girls at Havre de Grace, Md. He said one hit him on the head and then he was bound, gagged, rolled in a blanket and robbed of $50.

Stay of Execution Granted Slayer Of D. C. Druggist

Lawrence Goodall, 24, convicted in the hold-up slaying of Nathaniel Johnson, Washington druggist, yesterday was granted a stay of execution to permit him to appeal his sentence.

District Court Judge Richmond B. Keech postponed his execution date from July 15 to October 28.

A District Court jury on March 21 found Goodall guilty of being the trigger man in the hold-up of Johnson's store at 600 3d st. nw. last October 12. His companion that night, Edward M. Jackson, 25, pleaded guilty to second-degree murder as "lookout man" in the holdup and was sentenced to 15 years to life imprisonment.

2 More Red Incidents Reported in Tokyo

Tokyo, July 1 (U.P.).—Two more Communist-led disturbances aimed at the police were reported in Tokyo today, bringing the total incidents during the past 48 hours to over a half a dozen.

Press reports from Osaka said that Takashi Asano, described as a reporter for the Communist Party organ Red Flag, and at least 11 others were arrested after 1000 demonstrators surrounded the Sonezaki police station. The incident occurred when a participant in a Communist - organized welcome rally for repatriates was arrested.

I'm Innocent, Aged Don Juan Says in Court

Chicago, July 1 (U.P.).—Master swindler Sigmund Engel, 73, today pleaded innocent to a charge of fleecing a Chicago widow of $8700 and asked for a jury trial.

His trial on a confidence game warrant brought by red-haired Mrs. Reseda Corrigan, 39, was set for September 12. During his week in jail he gave her $5400 in cash in an attempt to make amends for taking $8700 after promising to marry her.

Engel asked Judge George M. Fisher to reduce his $50,000 bail, but the request was denied temporarily. An assistant State's attorney said the high bail was set because of warrants from New York and California women.

Girl Rescued From Canyon, Sister Missing

Yosemite National Park, Calif., July 1 (AP).—A plucky 22-year-old girl who had lain helpless with a broken ankle through two days and three freezing nights in a rugged canyon was rescued yesterday.

Miss Thompson

But her missing sister's shoe prints—the only clew — disappeared on granite.

Patti Thompson, 22, and sister Joan, 18, went hiking Monday—without telling friends where. They wound up in Yosemite's almost inaccessible Tenaya Canyon.

They tried a short cut back.

"It was awful," Patti said. "We found ourselves sliding down rocks and for the last mile we were in the gorge itself—swimming, wading, falling into pools."

Then Patti fell. Her ankle bone snapped.

Joan started for help—only 4 miles away. She hasn't been reported since.

Bills Introduced To Hold Marines, Establish Strength

Identical bills were introduced in the Senate and House yesterday to perpetuate the Marine Corps and set its strength at no less than 6 per cent of all armed forces.

The House bill was introduced by Representative Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) in behalf of 56 sponsors. In the Senate the measure was introduced by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) for four sponsors.

In addition to making statutory provision for the Marine Corps and establishing its minimum strength, the bill would add an Assistant Secretary of the Navy for the Marine Corps. It also provides for Marine aviation.

"We have every confidence in the pledged word of the present Secretary of Defense," Douglas said, "that the Marine Corps will not be abolished. But new secretaries will take office in the future and of them we cannot be certain."

House Unit Snubs Army Request for Power Project

The House Public Works Committe has turned down the Army Engineers' request that it authorize a 22-million-dollar flood control and power project at Smith Mountain, near Alta Vista, Va.

A consulting engineer for the Appalachian Power Co. recently testified to a Public Works Subcommittee that his firm would be willing to construct a plant there if prices decrease.

The Army Engineers and other witnesses had urged that the committee approve the Smith Mountain dam. Under the comprehensive plan approved by Congress for the development of the Roanoke River Basin it would have originally been the fifth in the series of 11 federally built dams. Ahead of it were to come the Buggs Island, Philpott, Roanoke Rapids and Gaston dams, in Virginia and North Carolina.

Brannan Wants Debate With Byrd On Farm Plan

Norfolk, Va., July 1 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan today challenged Senator Byrd (D., Va.) to a discussion of the Brannan farm bill before a group of Virginia farmers.

"If he (Byrd) would like to discuss it before a group of Virginia farmers with me, I would like very much for him to," Brannan said on arrival here by plane to spend the holiday weekend at Kill Devil Hill, N. C.

Byrd's attack on the bill was made last night in a speech before the Southeastern Chain Store Council at Virginia Beach. Brannan said he is sure Byrd "hasn't read the program."

Bank Debits Increase Only in Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., July 1 (AP).—Although unemployment has been causing local residents considerable concern in recent months, Cumberland is the only major city in Maryland with an increase in bank debits over 1948.

The American reports debits here for the first five months are 5.9 per cent ahead of last year. Baltimore, Hagerstown, and Frederick show declines.

3000-Square-Mile Grasshopper Band Plagues 2 States

Reno, Nev., July 1 (AP).—A record-breaking horde of migratory grasshoppers covering some 3000 square miles is eating its way into Oregon and California.

The State Department of Agriculture said today the band of hoppers in northern Washoe and Humboldt Counties is 75 miles long and 40 miles deep.

"This is undoubtedly the largest and most intensely populated single band of the Western range locusts in modern times in this country," said Harry E. Galloway, field supervisor.

Flying only by daylight, the hoppers sound like the roar of a distant waterfalls or the rumble of a fast freight train, said Galloway.

"A man can't stand in the face of the onslaught without protecting his head with his arms," he reported.

The hoppers move two to six miles a day.

UAW Rejects 2d Ford Plan For Pay Freeze

Detroit, July 1 (AP).—The CIO United Auto Workers today turned down a second Ford Motor Co. proposal that wages be left as they are for 18 months.

UAW Ford Director Ken Bannon said in reply:

"We are sticking to our present demands despite the attitude of the company."

Ford hinted the company could reduce prices if the UAW would agree to a wage freeze.

Meanwhile, negotiators working on a new contract for Ford workers reported an agreement to extend the current pact on a "day-to-day basis" if necessary after July 15, its expiration date.

That move was seen as reducing the likelihood of a second UAW strike this year in Ford plants. It had been feared 106,000 Ford workers might walk out when the current contract expires.

The UAW executive board has called for a strike vote in Ford plants. Several locals already have reported approval.

Threat of Strike On C. & O. Called Over for Present

The National Mediation Board announced last night that the "threat of a strike is over, for the present at least" on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad.

Frank P. Douglass, chairman of the Railway Mediation Board, said that about 400 grievance cases, mostly involving pay claims, have been adjusted between the C & O and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The firemen had set a strike date in mid-June because of a backlog of grievances. The board intervened promptly, and has been working with the negotiators for the last two weeks.

Douglass told a reporter that the meetings here were recessed Thursday with only 12 to 15 cases still unsettled. It is likely that these can be cleared up without great difficulty, he said.

The strike, if called, would have tied up the entire C & O system in Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

Agreement Seen In Maryland Labor Dispute

Baltimore, July 1 (AP).—A settlement by July 15 of the labor dispute involving about 75 employes of the Southern Maryland Electrical Cooperative was forecast by Labor Commissioner Joseph Didomenico today.

Didomenico said after a meeting with representatives of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers that prospects are "encouraging."

The union men agreed to a counter proposal to offer to the cooperative. The terms will not be disclosed until presented to company ocials. The original union demands were for a 15-cent-an-hour pay increase, a union shop agreement and supplementary pay for night work.

18 Die in Plane Crash

Perth, Australia (Saturday), July 2 (AP).—Eighteen persons were killed when a DC-3 transport plane bound for Darwin crashed in a blinding rainstorm early today at Guildford Airport, 8 miles from Perth.

The Lyons Den By Leonard Lyons

Lyons

THE current giveaway radio programs which feature forgotten melodies boost the ASCAP stock of composers who never dreamed that their least known songs would be performed so frequently. And the more performances a songwriter gets, the better his ASCAP rating . . . A melody written by the late Franz Lehar has been played the last three weeks on the "Stop the Music" show. It's the mystery melody in the $15,000 jackpot. The same tune, for the past 10 weeks, has been the mystery melody at the WLPO in LaSalle, Ill.

WENDELL Holmes tells of the speaker in Union Square who, despite his rantings, could muster no audience except one decrepit man. The man listened to the speaker for an hour, then timidly asked a question. "Shaddap," replied the speaker. "Who's talking to you?"

IN ITS September issue Esquire will publish a short story it purchased from Ernest Hemingway 12 years ago. At that time Hemingway had promised David Smart, publisher of Esquire, that he would write a short story for him. He had to finish another short story he was writing for Cosmopolitan, and on the day he completed it Hemingway wrote a note to Smart: "Don't worry. I'll write you one tonight with the same African background." The story for Cosmopolitan was the memorable "The Short, Happy Life of Francis Macomber." The story he wrote that night for Esquire was "The Snows of Kilimanjaro," which some critics have lauded as the finest short story ever written in the English language.

JUNIOR STANDISH of the Latin Quarter is New York's most fortunate young lady these days. Her luck was born of accidental timing and the superstition of all ballplayers. For she met Joe DiMaggio recently—and DiMaggio's reaction, he said, was not only in his heart but also in a more important place, an improvement in his heel. And as his friendship with Miss Standish blossomed, and he recognized, simultaneously, an easing of the pain in his heel, the superstitious ballplayer decided that this must be Cause and Effect . . . And while DiMaggio is hitting, the lady's place in his affection is secure.

NORMAN THOMAS, the presidential candidate, will become a professor in the fall. He'll teach at the New School For Social Research, and his subject will be "America in Quest of a Political Program" . . . WNBT will introduce an Inca singer. Her name is Imma Sumack, and she's just up from Lima, Peru . . . Researchers in arthritis, cancer, rheumatic fever and mental hygiene will pool some of their resources soon to expand the "Compound E" and see if it can be useful in easing all these ills.

WHEN Sarah Churchill first was invited to tour the summer-stock theaters, it was to be in "The Heiress," the play which has a cast of four people. Actors Equity gave her the necessary permission, for it meant that this would be creating jobs for American actors. Miss Churchill, therefore, suggested another play, which would give employment to more than three other actors. That's how she came to choose "Philadelphia Story."

FANNY Hurst and her husband booked passage to Europe. A group of friends came to their cabin to see them off. The party was a gay one, and after the "All Ashore" was sounded and the guests left, Miss Hurst studied the flowers and the going-away gifts, and then noticed that her husband seemed saddened. He confessed that he didn't really want to go to Europe . . . "It doesn't excite me either," said Miss Hurst. "Besides, the party, the gifts and the flowers are the best part of a trip. We've had it—so let's leave." They called a porter, took their trunks off the ship, and went home.

24% Cut in Round-Trip Air Rates to Europe Set

Montreal, July 1 (U.P.).—The International Air Transport Association announced today that the cost of a round-trip ticket to Europe will be reduced more than $150 during the winter months beginning October 1.

The new rates, subject to government approval, will reduce the present rate of $630 between New York and London to $466.70. Similar reductions will be made between other North American and European points.

Companies affected are: American Overseas Airlines; Pan American World Airways; Trans-World Airline; Trans-Canada Airlines; Air France; British Overseas Airways Corp.; KLM Royal Dutch Airlines; Sabena; Scandinavian Airlines System, and Swissair.

Bill Gold is on his vacation and will resume "The District Line" July 18.

Johnson Smooths Out Air Dispute

By Drew Pearson

A few months ago any move to scale down the 70-group Air Force would have brought howls from Congress and certain air force advocates.

Johnson

But it is indicative of the improved harmony slowly settling down over the three warring armed services that Defense Secretary Johnson has quietly decreed a 48-group air force —and it did not cause a ripple.

Johnson first broke the news to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in an off-the-record session.

He explained that the original 70-group force had been based on using the B-50 and the B-29, which were cheaper planes and which the Joint Chiefs had declared outmoded, in favor of the B-36. But the B-36, Johnson continued, is a much more expensive plane, and to build 70 air groups around it would send the military budget from $15,780,000,000 up to 17 billion dollars.

Note—Later that day Johnson made the same presentation to a secret session of the Senate Armed Services Committee. They also accepted the plan without argument. Some experts, incidentally, figure the proposed 48 groups at 54 groups.

Next Generation

I do not know whether Alger Hiss was ever a Communist, but I do know that a lot of youngsters turned out by the schools and colleges in the depression years of around his time were discouraged and disillusioned.

Depression breeds discouragement. And the more the youngsters pounded the pavements, the easier prey they became for the rabble-rousers and the soapboxers. That is why it is so important to give openings to the 1,600,000 youngsters graduated from high schools and colleges last month—70 per cent of the college graduates being veterans.

That is also why the step taken by William Fulton Kurtz, head of the Pennsylvania Co. of Philadelphia, is so important. Kurtz wrote to every firm doing business with his bank, urging that they give openings to these youngsters.

Unpublished Scandal

Those who criticize J. Edgar Hoover for having a certain amount of unchecked gossip in his confidential files might be interested in this hitherto unpublished fact.

Two years before the expose of Maj. Gen. Benny Myers in connection with airplane procurement scandals, the FBI received an anonymous letter stating that Myers was engaged in irregularities. Hoover sent the letter to General Arnold, then chief of the Air Force, who, instead of checking the letter, discarded it because it was unsigned.

Later Arnold was severely criticized for having allowed Benny Myers to operate right under his nose.

Incidentally, this column also received rumors of General Myers' irregularities during the war, and published on December 1, 1942, a charge that Myers was practicing deception regarding airplane production fgures. The charge, if untrue, would have been libelous. However, it was made only after careful checking.

The anonymous letter received by the FBI could not be checked by the FBI without permission from the Army, since its own Inspector General has jurisdiction over military personnel. That was why Hoover sent the letter to General Arnold.

Note 1—Perhaps the solution for FBI files is to have two sets: 1.) strictly confidential and containing unchecked data never to be made public; (2) A set of evaluated files, containing carefully checked data, known to be true, which could be produced in court.

Note 2—On another point, Hoover says: "Some of my friends in Congress think they are flattering me by proposing that the FBI be constituted as a separate agency. I do not agree. The FBI is an investigating agency for the Justice Department, which is the prosecuting agency. The two must work together, and thus cannot be divorced."

Diplomatic Pouch

The British are hopping mad at Chairman Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission for refusing to inform them of the latest A-bomb developments. The British think they are entitled to all A-bomb information, since they helped develop it. But Lilienthal is keeping the most sensational inventions close to his chest for fear of leaks to the Russians.

Bishop Hopes To Meet 5 Dogs In Heaven

Chelmsford, England, July 1 (U.P.) Bishop Henry Wilson, 72, said today that he hoped to meet his five pet dogs, who have preceded him in death, in heaven.

"Won't there be a delighted barking and yelping and hand-licking to welcome me?" he said, assuming that this would please the dogs, too.

The bishop talked after rousing some comment when, wearing his Episcopal robes, he solemnly dedicated an animal cemetery. The congregation stood with bared heads at the graves of dogs, cats and one rabbit while the bishop prayed:

"May God bless these our friends here. We pray that we may meet them in the life everlasting."

The service was held before the grave of "Dusty," the bishop's German shepherd which was the last of his five dogs to die.

"It is difficult for me, a dog lover, to believe dogs will not be preserved, whatever the theologians say," he replied to critics.
